FIRST STORY OF NORWAY BEHIND GERMAN LINES

Tribune Writer Tells of War Front Tour.

War at a Glance

The first story by an American correspondent from behind the German lines in Norway was received by The Tribune from Donald Day last night. Mr. Day made his way from the Swedish border thru the Norwegian and German fighting lines to Trondheim.

As Prime Minister Chamberlain prepared to face a crucial test in parliament today London admitted that a French, a Polish, and a British destroyer had been sunk by Nazi air bombs.

Germany, using parachute as well as ground troops, began a drive on Narvik to relieve the beleaguered troops in the Norwegian ore port.

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TRONDHEIM, Norway, May 4, Saturday [By Courier to Stockholm]. —It's Saturday night. The war in this part of Norway is over. The British and French troops have fled to their ships. The Germans are masters, but it's Saturday night.

Important towns mentioned in this dispatch.

And so it was in the Trondheim hotel, where I had dinner with my liaison officer, that I saw the most amazing thing that I have witnessed in watching this lightning war of three weeks.

The ballroom of the hotel was crowded with young Norwegian men and women. They filled the floor as they danced to Viennese waltz music, played in compliment to the Germans' Austrian troops, who had taken over the city. The orchestra interspersed the waltzes with American swing tunes. All the dancers seemed to be thoroly enjoying themselves.

German Watchers at Dance.

There were many young German soldiers present, but none attempted to dance. They have been under antifraternization orders.

Hundreds of prisoners were captured on Friday and Saturday, but thus far the Germans have not taken a single French soldier, altho they were said to be on the Namsos front north of Trondheim.

Eyewitness accounts by both the Germans and Norwegian officers concerning the behavior of the British troops, both south and north of Trondheim, were obtained here today. When the Germans first encountered the Norwegians supported by British troops south of Lillehammer more than a week ago, they found the combined forces holding a strongly fortified position in a narrow part of the Gudbrands valley.

The Norwegian troops held this front for 12 hours against a relentless German attack. Then the Norwegian commander, Gen. Haug, asked the British commander to send in British troops to hold the center of the line.

Make Only Brief Stand.

The British for the first time advanced to front line positions and the Norwegians retired to protect their flanks. The British held the line, the Germans asserted, for just 35 minutes before they retired suddenly, boarded their motor trucks, and vanished down the road toward Dombas.

Gen. Haug blamed the British commander for ordering his retreat without warning him. The Germans entered the Norwegians' lines unopposed, attacking them on the flanks, and forced the surrender of much of their forces.

The British flight continued from Dombas to Andalsnes, the landing place on the west coast 100 miles south of Trondheim. Near that town of 6,000, most of whose civilian population left when the British landed a fortnight ago, the German air force

THE BATTLE FOR MASTERY OF THE SEAS

Seaplane Takes Submarine as Captive of War

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, May 6.—For the first time in history a submarine has been captured by aircraft.

Today's German war communique reported that two seaplanes on patrol duty yesterday over the Kattegat, the narrow strait between Denmark and Sweden, sighted a British submarine on the surface.

Approaches Cautiously.

Taking this to be a signal of surrender, the seaplane landed and cautiously approached the vessel, its machine guns ready for action.

"Three or four men were on deck by this time," the officer said. "I beckoned to one of them to jump into the water and swim to the plane. He hesitated, but finally buckled on a life belt and plunged into the cold water.

"I pulled him aboard and saw he was the commander. He told me the submarine had struck a mine and that a number of men were wounded, but that he did not believe any of them were dead.

Towed to Port as Prize.

"The submarine was damaged and could not submerge," the captive said. "His teeth were chattering with cold, so we gave him something to wrap himself in. Then we stowed him away in the tail of the plane."

Meanwhile two other seaplanes came along and landed and the plane with the captured commander aboard flew back to its base. Two patrol vessels were summoned and they towed the submarine to a German port as a prize.

The Germans claim the captured submarine was the 24th the British have lost in the Norwegian campaign. Including those the British navy lost before the Scandinavian campaign started, England, the Germans assert, now has lost about half of the submarine fleet she possessed at the beginning of the war.

Stumbles Over a Black Cat and Breaks Both Her Arms

Mrs. Anna Baufford, 43 years old, never had any patience with superstitious persons who believed that black cats mean bad luck. Mrs. Baufford herself owns a black cat. Yesterday she stumbled and fell down the basement stairs of her home at 6411 Justine street. She suffered fractures of both arms. Mrs. Baufford had tripped over the black cat, which was sleeping on the basement stairway.

HINTS PRESIDENTIAL PARDON IS IN OFFING FOR EXPLORER COOK

New York, May 6 (AP).—The possibility that presidential clemency might be granted to Frederick A. Cook arose today while he lay in a coma in a hospital at Port Chester, N. Y. Cook apparently was very near the end of a life which for 30 years had been spent in bitterness because of the world's rejection of his sensational claim that he discovered the north pole.

An appeal for a pardon from a mail fraud conviction in a Texas oil promotion scheme on which the old physician-explorer had served a third of a 14 year term before being paroled in 1930 was sent by a friend, Ralph von Ahlefeldt, to President Roosevelt.

The President, returning by train late in the day from Hyde Park to Washington, remarked that his rule in such cases was that anybody paroled must wait at least four years before an application for a pardon would be considered. There was no elaboration to indicate more clearly that the decision will be favorable to Cook.

REVEALS HITLER PLEDGE TO STAY OUT OF SWEDEN

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, May 6 (AP). —The Swedish foreign office tonight announced that King Gustav V. had redefined Sweden's position of continued neutrality in a letter to Adolf Hitler late in April and that the German Fuehrer had replied with assurances that Germany respected Swedish neutrality.

The announcement confirmed in specific form a report today by DNB, German official news agency, that Hitler and Gustav had agreed on the mutual "future political attitude" of the two nations.

The king's message emphasized anew Sweden's firm intention of maintaining her neutrality "in all directions," the official Swedish news agency said.

British Unemployment at Lowest Point in 20 Years

LONDON, May 6 (AP).—The ministry of labor and national service said today the number of unemployed fell 148,578 between March 11 and April 15. The 972,695 total registered April 15 was the lowest since 1920, when unemployment insurance began.

Berlin Court Sentences 2 Czechs to Jail as Traitors

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, May 6.—Czech newspapers arriving here today disclosed that two Czechs have been sentenced to long terms of imprisonment by the People's court in Berlin for "printing and circulating pamphlets of treasonable character."

Napoleon, Says Science, Really Had Something

Atlantic City, N. J., May 6 [Special].—Napoleon Bonaparte suffered from a nervous itch which was aggravated by his high tension and dynamic personality, Dr. Reuben Friedman of Philadelphia, Pa., told the American Association of the History of Medicine today.

Dr. Friedman said his new diagnosis, the first of its kind ever recorded for the French emperor, might add to the belief that Napoleon's classic pose—one hand in his vest and the other behind his back—was assumed merely to permit him to scratch.

Tradition Says: Scabies.

Dr. Friedman's diagnosis is contrary to the tradition that Napoleon had scabies, which has been accepted by many members of the medical profession and biographers for more than a century. Scabies is a disease of the skin caused by an animal parasite called itch-mite, which forms burrows under the skin.

Dr. Friedman, who is assistant professor of dermatology at Temple university and an authority on scabies, has prepared a lengthy paper on Napoleon's case. It will be published in June.

"Napoleon contracted his itching skin disease at Toulon in 1793," Dr. Friedman said. "Corvisart, who became his physician in 1802, brought him relief by psycho-therapeutic means, tho it occurred at intervals later, and even at St. Helena.

Unrecognized Until 1884.

"But dermititis herpetiformis, from which he suffered, was not even recognized at that time. It was first discovered and named in 1884 by the late Louis Duhring, professor of skin diseases at the University of Pennsylvania."

Dentistry was first practiced as far back as 3000 B. C., Dr. Bernard W. Weinberger of New York said, and during the years from 1000 B. C. to 400 A. D. there were workers skilful enough to make both fixed and removable bridges.

President Is Considering a Cruise on Great Lakes

Washington, D. C., May 6 [Special]. —President Roosevelt today disclosed that he is considering a summer cruise on the Great Lakes. He said that on his way home from his transcontinental tour to be made while the Republican national convention is in session in June, he may stop at Isle Royale park in Lake Superior, and that if he does visit the park he will make a lake cruise. Isle Royale is a part of Keweenah county, Michigan, and is located just inside the international boundary, 30 miles south of Fort William, Ont.

RECORDS BARE DEALS, BIRTHS AND ONE DEATH

Women in 3 States on Accounts.

BY ROBERT CROMIE.

Authorities digging thru a vast pile of records seized Sunday from Mrs. Mae Smith and her daughter, Mary, said the ramifications of an alleged baby farm operated by the couple at 2415 Winnemac avenue extended into three states, involved 1,922 women, and the payment of untold thousands of dollars during the last seven years.

Of the hundreds of leads which the records offered, investigators were especially interested in the following notation, dated Sept. 9, 1939:

"Helped O., a colored girl.
"O. died Sept. 11.
"Buried 13th. 5.00."

All Our Records Are Here!

This, authorities said, might help to explain Mary Smith's cry of anguish when raiders seized her, with her mother, two other persons, and a 14 month old baby Sunday afternoon in a trailer camp near Waukegan:

"My God! And all our records are here!"

The mass of documents included the names of women residents of Chicago, north shore towns, Wisconsin, and Indiana. In many cases the full name, address, and telephone numbers were given, with what authorities said apparently was a notation of payment for services rendered.

The figures ranged from 5 to 350 [apparently dollars] and in many cases a division of the sum was indicated. For example, in the case of a woman listed as "Mae's pat" [investigators said "pat" might mean "patient"], there was the figure 350. This was broken down as follows: 50-[?], 100-M, 150-O, 50-Me. In many cases, also there were such phrases as "two and one-half months," "four months," or "second time," or "married."

Letter from Girl Found.

The following letter to Miss Mary Smith, 2415 Winnemac avenue, from a Wisconsin girl, also was found:

"I understand you were down to see me Tuesday. I guess mother told you how serious I really was. The doctor is on the verge of giving me a transfusion. I have to stay in the hospital longer than the usual patient and in bed for a week after I get home.

"You understand I have a big bill to pay because the job was not finished. You'll probably hear from Geo. My doctor has been trying to find out who did the work on me. I haven't said anything yet. I think you'd better straighten yourself out. I haven't the strength to write any more."

It was signed with name and address and dated May 19, 1939.

Another letter from a man in Wisconsin to Miss Smith at her office address, 236 North Clark street, said he had been told of her by "a mutual friend." The letter told of a girl "in trouble," and asked whether she could come to Chicago within two or three days to see Miss Smith. The writer asked what "it" would cost and said the matter would be kept "very confidential." The letter was written last August.

Need of Attorney Told.

A letter indicating that the Smiths knew they faced trouble also was discovered during the raid. It apparently had been written by Mrs. Smith. It said:

"Dear Velma:

"I'm trusting some one will take this to Chicago to mail it. So far we, Mary, Dudley [the baby], and I are okay. We are waiting for Schill [Charles Schillinger, a real estate man was found with the Smiths] to get in touch with a good attorney.

"I think it's terrible the lies the newspapers have been printing about us. They haven't a damn thing on us, but we have to have a good attorney to fight for us.

"Believe me, kid, we are finding out who our friends are. I'll tell you something when I see you. Don't let any one know you hear from us."

The letter was not signed.

Lists of "Good" Physicians.

Also included in the voluminous data seized were lists of various physicians and drug stores, with notations of "good" or "no good" after each, copies of birth certificates, letters from prospective foster parents, prospective mothers, and from persons whose business was so cautiously stated as to make the meaning unclear to the investigators.

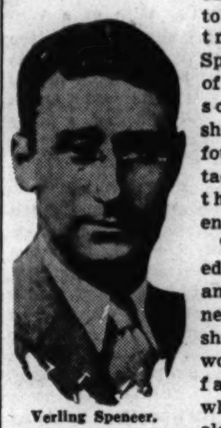
Teacher Kills 4 Officials, Then Shoots Himself

South Pasadena, Cal., May 6 [Special].—Enraged because the board of education refused to renew his contract, Verlin Spencer, principal of a junior high school, today shot and killed four school attachés, including the superintendent of schools.



Verling Spencer.
[A. P. Wirephoto.]

Then he wounded two others and, when cornered by police, shot himself. The wound may prove fatal. Spencer, who is 38 years old and is an expert marksman, suffered from a persecution complex. He frequently had quarreled with other faculty members and had accused them of gossiping about him.

After killing the three school officials at a secret session of the board, Spencer fled. In his flight he shot the woman secretary of the superintendent of schools in the chest.

Flees to His Own School.

Running from the building he leaped into his automobile and sped three blocks to his school. There he met a printing instructor and slew him. He also shot a woman junior high school teacher in the hands and abdomen. She probably is mortally wounded.

At this juncture police armed with shotguns cornered Spencer and he shot himself in the neck. In Spencer's clothing police found what appeared to be a will, which read as follows:

"I, Verlin Spencer, being of sound mind . . . this is my last will and testament and leave all my property to my wife [Polly]. This will will be null and void if she spends more than $200 for funeral expenses."

Here Is a List of Dead.

The dead:

GEORGE C. BUSH, 60, superintendent of city schools.

V. V. VANDERLIP, printing instructor.

The wounded:

RUTH BARNETT STURGEON, junior high school teacher.

DOROTHEA TALBERT, secretary to Supt. Bush.

Threatened to Get Them All.

The shooting occurred a few moments before the hundreds of students attending the institution were released for the day.

As Spencer, after blasting to the floor every other person in the room, dashed out of the building yelling, "I'll get them all," he charged thru pupils leaving their classrooms.

Elmer J. Erickson, vice principal of Spencer's school and dean of boys, was late arriving at the meeting, which probably saved his life.

Dashes Past Vice Principal.

Erickson was ascending the steps on his way to the conference when Spencer, revolver in hand, rushed wildly past him. Erickson immediately gave the alarm and Spencer was followed to his school, where he killed Vanderlip and wounded Mrs. Sturgeon.

About a year ago Spencer suffered a nervous breakdown, climaxed by a bitter scene in Bush's office. The superintendent suggested that he take a month's leave of absence and he did so.

It was about this time that Spencer apparently developed his persecution complex because he voiced the belief that the faculty was against him.

SLUSH QUERIES STIR STORM AT NUDELMAN QUIZ

Suggest Using 2 Pct. Fund for Pensions.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., May 6.—Finance Director Samuel L. Nudelman, as the first witness in a legislative investigation of state finances and scandals, was asked tonight whether the 2 per cent slush fund might not be used for old age pensions rather than for political purposes.

Clinton Searle.

Nudelman, head of Gov. Henry Horner's sick bed regency, was testifying before a committee of seven representatives created last week by the Illinois house to inquire into uses and misuses of public funds. The committee is headed by Representative Clinton Searle [R., Rock Island].

The question regarding the use of slush funds to pay old age pensions was asked by Representative Schaeffer O'Neill of Alton, a Stelle Democrat. It precipitated a roar of protests from Horner-Nash-Kelly Democrats. Nudelman was unruffled.

Perry Shouts Objection.

Representative Samuel Perry [D., Glen Ellyn] rose from a spectator's chair in the crowded committee room and shouted he would object to such inquiries unless the Republican campaign fund also was investigated.

"If you're going after the Democrats," Perry yelled, "you should also look into utilities' donations to the Green-Brooks campaign."

The chairman, Representative Searle, gaveled him to his seat as out of order. Representative W. O. Edwards [D., Danville], the only Horner-Nash-Kelly friend on the committee of four Republicans and three Democrats, renewed the protests.

"Your questions are improper," Edwards said to O'Neill, "and are merely for the purpose of furnishing campaign material for some one."

Leads Up to His Question.

O'Neill approached the hot subject gradually.

"Could we eliminate your anticipation of a $5,000,000 deficit," he asked Nudelman, "by cutting all pay rolls 2 per cent?"

"If you wanted to do that," the finance director replied, "it's certainly within the power of the legislature."

"Could we divert this 2 per cent now going into political channels," O'Neill continued, "so it could go for old age assistance? Could you furnish us with a list of your 2 per cent political collections?"

It was at this point that Perry and Edwards did their speech-making. When they had finished, Nudelman answered his questioners by saying he [meaning himself personally] didn't collect any political assessment from the pay checks of state employés. He is one of eight high Horner appointees who are defendants in a suit for accounting of the slush funds, pending in the Sangamon county circuit court here.

Reads Financial Summary.

Director Nudelman opened the hearing by reading a 13 page, triple spaced statement, which included a summary of appropriations passed by the general assembly last year, totaling $474,320,679 for the biennium closing July 1, 1941.

Nudelman declared in the statement that the administration anticipates a deficit in its general revenue fund by the end of the biennium and submitted what he called an interim budget on estimated revenue and liabilities up to June 30, 1941.

Figures in this compilation gave the net balance in the general revenue fund as of April 1, 1940, as $4,162,715, and estimated revenue up to June 30, 1941, at $143,827,715.

The statement disclosed that Nudelman is anticipating that sales tax revenue will produce $112,500,000 for the 15 months beginning last month, or at the rate of about $7,500,000 a month. Collections during the preceding 15 months totaled $103,904,895, so it was apparent the director was anticipating even better sales tax returns during the coming period.

Nudelman said unexpended portions of appropriations made by the legislature last year totaled $122,561,284 as of April 1, but he added the prediction that these would be insufficient to cover old age assistance, relief, and general state purposes.

The director estimated that deficiency appropriations of 24 million dollars for relief and 10½ millions for old age pensions would be required, plus an additional 2½ millions to pay for the anticipated increase in pensions, or a total of 37 million dollars.

This, Nudelman estimated, would produce a projected gross deficit on June 30, 1941, of $15,733,569. Nudelman predicted, however, that a saving of 10 million dollars can be made from appropriations other than those for pensions and relief during the next 15 months, which would cut the projected net deficit to $5,733,569.

Based on Expected Rise.

"The estimate of revenues I present to you," Nudelman said, "is based on a continuation of the upward trend which has been experienced in retailers occupation [sales] tax collections. Whether this upward trend will continue or whether there will be a business recession before July 1, 1941, which will reverse the trend, is purely a matter of conjecture.

"On the expenditure side of the interim budget I have estimated that at least 10 million dollars in general revenue fund appropriations will be saved and remain unspent at the end of the biennium. I believe that departments of the state government will be able to save at least this amount out of the appropriations available to them as a result of vigorous efforts which have been and are being made to hold expenditures to the minimum consistent with performance of vital services."

Nudelman was given until 3 p. m. tomorrow to produce a breakdown of suggested economies aggregating 10 million dollars.

Battle on Adjournment.

Tomorrow, with the senate and house convening after a week-end recess, a battle is expected to be resumed with the Horner-Nash-Kelly cohorts seeking an early end to this special session. The Republicans are aided by Stelle Democrats in wanting to give the investigation committee a chance to progress before the sine die adjournment.

SON PERSECUTED AT CORNELL U., DILLING CHARGES

Ithaca, N. Y., May 6 [Special].—Albert W. Dilling, Chicago lawyer, charged today that his son, Kirk, a sophomore at Cornell university, who was recently disciplined by a faculty committee for causing disturbances in a dormitory, was being persecuted because the young man and his mother are active in fighting communism. The student's mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Dilling of 545 Essex road, Kenilworth, is the author of "The Red Network."

Young Dilling and another student were placed on probation for blowing fuses in Founders' hall, filling a ceiling light with water, and lighting a sulphur candle which caused discomfort to other residents. Dilling, however, charged in a letter to Prof. George E. Peabody, chairman of the faculty committee, that action against his son was taken after Kirk had defended his mother at a campus meeting which was addressed by Robert Minor, former editor of the Daily Worker, communist newspaper.

Dilling accused Prof. Peabody and a majority of the faculty committee of being under the influence of communists.

NEW DEAL HOLDS BUSINESS BACK, ASSERTS STRAWN

The New Deal's hypocrisy in its dealings with business and the public was blamed yesterday for the slowness of business recovery in the United States by Silas H. Strawn, senior partner of the Chicago law firm of Winston, Strawn and Shaw, and C. D. Whipple, president of Hibbard, Spencer, Bartlett & Co. They spoke before the University of Michigan alumni club luncheon at the University club.

"Business confidence would be restored and prosperity would return if the New Deal would be frank about its intentions, instead of pulling a rabbit out of the hat every few days," Whipple said.

Strawn called the Tennessee Valley Authority the "biggest fraud ever perpetrated on the American public."

"The record of the ast seven years is a melancholy record of experimentation, carried out by men who, for the most part, never have demonstrated success in anything they undertook," he said.

ROOSEVELT GETS A HUNCH; SPEEDS BACK TO CAPITAL

Washington, D. C., May 6 [Special].—President Roosevelt followed a hunch today and sped from his Hyde Park, N. Y., home to Washington seven hours ahead of schedule because he had a feeling something is going to happen in Europe soon.

Aboard his private car on the return trip the President said nothing had caused him to change his plans, except his feeling of uneasiness over the European situation.

When he stays away from the White House for a day or two, he said, he finds himself beginning to develop a case of nerves and wondering what is going to break in the next hour on the European front.

a Chicago address given. It included what apparently was the record of a birth ["delivered, 2/19/38, 9 a. m., girl, 7-8¼"] and under the same date the woman had signed papers giving consent to adoption.

Records kept by the women show that one name, for example, "Frances Taylor," might be used many times in recording births. The real name of the mother is given in their own records, with the notation "Frances Taylor" written after it, apparently as a reminder to use the latter on the birth certificate.

A letter from the wife of a Wisconsin electrical contractor, written in 1938, expressed regret that she had received a letter from Mary Smith "a day late." It went on to say that they had adopted a baby boy in Milwaukee and found the Smith letter on their return.

Deny Any Illegal Acts.

The Smiths, seized thru the detective work of Policewoman Mary Powers, who enlisted the aid of Acting Sheriff Walter Atkinson and Deputy Stanley Christian of Lake county, have admitted to state's attorney's men that they had planned to leave Sunday night for Arizona. Both, however, deny having committed any illegal acts.

The state department of registration and education was trying to trace the connection between the two women and the names of Dr. Arno Meyer, dead since 1932, and Dr. Louise M. Hovenden, whose whereabouts are unknown. The telephone book lists both physicians as having offices at 236 North Clark street and gives the same telephone number for both. Dr. Hovenden's residence is given as the Winnemac avenue address.

A. J. Meadel, chief inspector for the department, said Miss Smith had been warned in 1937 against using Dr. Meyer's name. He said she had it removed from the office door, phone book, and building directory then, but later apparently had reinserted it in the phone book. At that time, Meadel said, Miss Smith told him she was merely closing out Dr. Meyer's estate. The state department, however, had received complaints that she had been treating patients.

Name Taken from Door.

Mary Smith said yesterday that she had subleased part of the Clark street office to Dr. Hovenden, and that she, herself, was in business as a public stenographer. Managers of the office building refused to discuss either Dr. Meyer, Dr. Hovenden, or Miss Smith, but it was learned that Dr. Hovenden's name was scratched from the door only yesterday morning.

American Medical association records show that Dr. Hovenden was graduated in 1909 from the National Medical university, and received her license to practice in 1909. The only other entry for her was one stating that in 1911 she had endorsed what A. M. A. spokesmen said was a fake cancer cure.

Warrants for the arrest of the two women were issued last Thursday, charging kidnaping and operation of a maternity home without a license. Police had been searching for them since the week before, when an unwed mother, Ethel De Patie, 24 years old, 10346 Oakley avenue, complained that they refused to surrender her daughter, Carol Ann, born April 12, except on payment of $150.

Women Seen at Home.

Neighbors living near the Winnemac avenue home said they often had seen women in the back yard or on the back porch of the Smith home.

They said also that policemen appeared at the home one day last summer and that as they entered the front door several women carrying infants were seen running out the back door. Neighbors said the Smiths had lived there about eight years.

Dr. George Gaal, with offices at 2500 Montrose avenue, said last night that he had been called to the Winnemac avenue home on two occasions to take charge of maternity cases there. One of these, he said, was a girl, 16, who was having violent convulsions. He sent immediately for an ambulance, but before it arrived the baby was born. The mother and child both survived. This was last September.

Miss Smith subsequently paid hospital and doctor bills for one case totaling $165, he said, and doctor bills for another. The second girl, he said, was brought to his office last April 8.

Dr. Gaal said he considered Miss Smith's actions unusual. She explained, he said, that she "provided a home for the girls while they were having their babies, and later saw to it that the child was legally adopted."

Authorities have released Schillinger, the real estate man, who gave his address as 6460 Newland avenue, and Mrs. Hazel Rockwell of Toledo, O. Both were with the Smiths in the trailer. Police are seeking the identity of the baby, who the Smiths said was the son of a niece of Mrs. Smith.

Mary Smith only once has shown a sign of emotion since her arrest. She wept yesterday when told that her dog, Brownie, had been taken to the pound.

SMASH NEW DEAL MOVE TO PROLONG RULE BY BUREAUS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 6.—Efforts of the Roosevelt administration to sidetrack the Walter-Logan bill, which is intended to prevent usurpation of authority by federal administrative agencies, were repudiated today by a unanimous senate judiciary committee.

President Roosevelt's "Dear Alben" Barkley of Kentucky, majority leader of the senate, made a personal appeal to the judiciary committee to delay action on the bill—which passed the house by a 3 to 1 vote—pending a report by a special committee appointed by former Attorney General Homer S. Cummings to study it. Such a delay would mean no action at this session of congress.

Prospect for Passage Grows.

The response of the judiciary committee was to vote unanimously for action at this session, thus greatly improving the bill's prospect of passage. Chairman Henry F. Ashurst [D., Ariz.] said the committee was unanimous in the opinion that "this responsibility should be met and not dodged."

"The committee is quite militant," he said. "We are going forward manfully. If one doesn't like the bill, he will have the privilege of voting against it."

The senate last year passed without objection—but later reconsidered and restored to the calendar—a bill almost identical with the measure recently passed by the house.

The judiciary committee met today to decide what to do with the house bill. It was decided to proceed with the house measure instead of the senate bill, in an effort to avoid a conference.

Minor Revision Planned.

Chairman Ashurst appointed a subcommittee headed by Senator Carl A. Hatch [D., N. M.] to consider minor changes in phraseology and report back to the full committee on Wednesday, when the house bill probably will be reported. Proponents of the measure then intend to demand immediate action by the senate.

Senator Hatch said the suggested changes in verbiage are non-controversial and will not alter in any respect the effect of the legislation. Some members of the committee suggested the changes in language, he said, for the purpose of silencing complaints of New Dealers that the bill is badly drafted. He expressed the opinion that the house will accept the proposed changes without demanding a conference.

Barkley Talks of Veto.

Barkley has threatened to urge the President to veto the bill in the event of its passage. The New Dealers in congress and officials of the New Deal administrative agencies have exerted tremendous pressure in an effort to defeat the legislation.

The bill is intended to halt what the late Senator Marvel M. Logan [D., Ky.], one of its authors, called "the drift toward totalitarianism" in government by commissions, boards, administrators, and authorities which make rules and regulations with the force of law and act as complainant, prosecutor, judge and jury. It would place the rules and regulations of these agencies, as well as their decisions and orders, under strict judicial supervision.

Senate Sends Harbors Bill to President; Veto Hinted

Washington, D. C., May 6 (AP).—The senate approved and sent to the White House today a $110,035,450 rivers and harbors bill which, according to word on Capitol hill, may be vetoed by President Roosevelt.

PRESIDENT GIVES BELATED BACKING TO CLEAN VOTING

Washington, D. C., May 6 [Special].—Previously lukewarm toward pigeonholed amendments to the Hatch "clean politics" act, President Roosevelt tonight expressed the hope they will be brought before congress and passed.

The Hatch act bars federal employés from political activity. The amendments would extend the prohibition to state employés who get any part of their pay from federal funds, limit individual political campaign contributions to $5,000, and limit expenditures of national campaign committees to 3 million dollars for each campaign.

The amendments were tabled by the house judiciary committee last Wednesday by a secret vote of 14 to 10, altho Representative John J. Dempsey [D., N. M.] later said 14 members of the committee told him they voted against tabling the proposals.

The committee will meet again tomorrow. Several members tonight said they will move for reconsideration in an attempt to get the amendments approved and sent to the house. Dempsey has 113 signatures on a petition to take the amendments from the committee and needs 105 more to force the amendments to the floor.

PRELATES READ LAST RITES FOR BISHOP STEWART

Conduct Funeral Service in Evanston.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

George Craig Stewart, late bishop of the Episcopal diocese of Chicago, was buried yesterday from St. Luke's procathedral, Evanston. The church, which the bishop had built, was crowded with religious, educational, and civic leaders.

As a score of bishops moved down the aisle at the end of the long ecclesiastical procession, Bishop Irving Peake Johnson of Colorado began the Episcopal burial office. The procathedral choir under the direction of Dr. Herbert Hyde, responded with Bishop Stewart's favorite processional hymn, "Ten Thousand Times Ten Thousand, in Sparkling Garments White."

Sing Bishop's Own Hymn.

For many members of the congregation, the climax of the service occurred in the requiem eucharist when "The Bishop's Hymn" was sung. Both verses and melody of the hymn were written by Bishop Stewart for the 75th anniversary of the Church of the Redeemer, Elgin, and dedicated to that parish.

The Rt. Rev. Dr. Edwin J. Randall, suffragan bishop of the Chicago diocese, offered the requiem eucharist. He was assisted by the Very Rev. Gerald G. Moore, dean of the procathedral, and the Venerable Norman B. Quigg, archdeacon of Chicago. Bishop Frank A. McElwain, bishop of Minnesota, read the burial office lesson. Other bishops taking part included the Rt. Revs. Stephen E. Keeler, coadjutor of Minnesota and Winfred H. Ziegler of Wyoming.

The absolution of the body was performed by Bishop Campbell Gray of the Northern Indiana diocese. He also offered commendatory prayers over the coffin. Attended by his torchbearers, Bishop Gray passed twice around the coffin, covered with a pall and on which the dead bishop's pastoral staff, chasuble, and miter reposed.

Bishops of Other Faiths Attend.

The Rt. Rev. Leon Grochowski, bishop of the Polish National Catholic church; the Rt. Rev. Bishop Leonty of the Russian Orthodox church, and the Rev. Leonce Arabian of the Armenian Apostolic church, and representatives of the Rt. Rev. Bishop Callistos of the Greek Orthodox church, rober in colorful vestments, attended the ceremonies.

John and Robert Stewart of Detroit, Mich., half brothers of the bishop, accompanied Mrs. Stewart and her two sons, John Clyde and George Craig Jr., both of Evanston, to the service.

Mayor Kelly of Chicago and Mayor Henry D. Penfield of Evanston attended. Northwestern university, of which Bishop Stewart had been a trustee, was represented by Dr. Walter Dill Scott, former president, and Dr. Franklyn Bliss Snyder, president.

The body of Bishop Stewart was placed in a vault in Rosehill cemetery until it is buried in the procathedral where the services were held.

ENGINEERS SEE STEAM HARNESSED IN TURBINE AND PRODUCING POWER

Delegates to the Edison Electric institute meeting in the Edgewater beach hotel last night peered into a model of a steam turbine and saw something they had written and talked about for years: the action of the glowing red "heart" of the turbine.

Under the direction of F. T. Hague, engineer in charge of the experiments for the Westinghouse Electric company, the engineers were able to witness how steam under terrific heat and pressure is harnessed to supply power for industry. On a ground glass screen, waves of light zigzagged as a result of the whirring of turbine blades at the rate of 60 revolutions a second, duplicating actual operations in a steam turbine.

The model is fashioned after a giant turbine being used in experimental work, according to Hague, in the Schuylkill, Pa., plant of the Philadelphia Electric company. Thru various experiments, he said, the engineers hope to study little known properties and behaviors of metals when subjected to high pressures and temperatures.

Search Pressed in Theft of Gems from Painter

Police reported last night they have found no trace of the thief who stole a hatbox containing jewelry and clothing from Baroness Violet Beatrice Wenner, a portrait painter. The baroness returned from an eastern trip last Saturday to her studio at 619 North Michigan avenue. The hatbox was taken from within the vestibule while the rest of her luggare was being carried upstairs.

FREE PRESS FOE IS GOVERNMENT, GREEN WARNING

G. O. P. Candidate Points to Gags in Europe.

Springfield, Ill., May 6 [Special].—A warning that the American press must guard against "the enemy from within" if it is to avoid the doom of becoming a parrotlike instrument for the party in power was sounded tonight by Dwight H. Green, Republican nominee for governor, in an address before representatives of 60 Illinois newspapers.

Green and his Democratic opponent in the November election, Harry B. Hershey, spoke before a meeting of directors of the Illinois Daily Newspaper Markets, an organization pooling national advertising among its members.

Green dwelt at length on the perils that would beset the nation should freedom of the press be curbed while Hershey devoted most of his address to telling what he would do to enhance the happiness and prosperity of the people of Illinois should he be elected governor.

Green supported his warning by saying that in those countries in which freedom of the press has been lost, it was in every case the national government which succeeded in reducing the press to a subservient, pushbutton medium of expression for the masters of the people.

Press Shackled by Government.

"It was a German government which took away freedom of the press from the German people," he said. "It was the Italian government that tore freedom of the press away from its own people. A Spanish government took away a free press from its people, and an Austrian government did the same.

"It was the present Russian government that destroyed freedom of the press and speech within bounds where the rights of the workingman are supposed to be preëminent.

"The same principle of danger lurks everywhere. The enemy from within is always mightier than the enemy from without. We don't have to worry about other nations absconding with our freedom. We don't have to worry about alien military leaders entering Illinois, walking up to your editorial rooms, and ordering you to do as you are told. There is no such fantastic danger.

"We must worry about a possible enemy from within who may some day despotically walk into your editorial sanctum and tell you: 'You can't print that; you must print this.' And me must continue to guard this freedom of the press with our lives."

Attacks by New Deal.

Green said that twice within the last few years the New Deal had made undercover attacks upon the integrity of the press, and that one of these attacks—pressed by the highest paid propaganda organization that the nation has ever had—is continuing.

"Freedom of the press can be violated," he said, "if the government chooses to attack advertising or if it attempts to dominate the news columns. Congressman Bruce Barton recently brought to light the danger of an appropriation bill for the purpose of inquiring into 'the methods and cost of distribution.'

"According to Congressman Barton, this was nothing short of an effort to give the federal government access to newspaper coffers. As he explained it, there are men in the Federal Trade commission and department of agriculture who want to destroy national advertising in order to destroy the freedom of the American press.

"These New Dealers, according to him, believe that an inquiry into the methods and costs of distribution would eventually lead to an investigation of national advertising considered as a cause of increased cost to the consumer. On such a ground they would then seek to destroy the independence of the press in accepting national advertising."

Federal Propaganda Machine.

Turning to the New Deal's vast propaganda machine, Green said that it had grown steadily despite the fact that a federal law of 1913 forbids the use of public funds for propaganda without specific appropriation.

"There has been no specific appropriation for publicity as required by the act," he said, "but lately it has been pointed out that there are 1,700 employés on the public pay roll at a cost of $5,000,000 annually who are engaged in various types of publicity work. These publicity men are permitted to do their work under the guise of being experts or information specialists.

"I mention these things only to show that we are still not free from government attempts to control newspaper liberties. Publicity that is being thrown into newspaper offices in batches and piles must be guarded against."

Press Defends Itself.

Green said that despite such threats, the press of the nation had vigilantly and successfully defended its liberties. He described himself as "a grateful citizen who, for pennies, can buy a newspaper on the corner and read the truth and nothing but the truth, uncolored and unbiased," but recalled the words of William Cullen Bryant:

"The press is a mill that grinds all that is put into its hopper. Fill the hopper with poisoned grain and it will grind it to meal, but there is death in the bread."

In estimating the press as an instrument to preserve and defend liberty and the national well-being, Green reviewed a list of the outstanding achievements of the press thru its history, which was drawn up by Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE.

Accomplishments of Free Press.

Among these accomplishments were the defeat of Boss Tweed's corrupt ring in New York, disclosures of municipal looting in San Francisco by the Ruef-Schmitz gang, destruction of the Ku Klux Klan, Newton D. Baker's successful defense of a reporter who had been barred from court by a Cleveland judge, the martyrdom of Don R. Mellett in Canton, O.; exposure and routing of the "Ohio gang," defeat of the Minnesota gag law, and the exposure of Mayor James J. Walker of New York City.

"No phrase has been tested more in current history thruout the world than 'freedom of the press,'" Green said. "In other countries journalism seems doomed to a parrotlike cry of the political party in power. Here in the United States it is still a pleasure and a privilege to feel that one is still faced by an independent profession.

"On no other business does the responsibility of public service so urgently fall. Give America a frank opinion of what the heart of America wants and we need not worry about the future."

Hershey's Views on Press.

Hershey in giving his views on the press said:

"Never before has it been so necessary that the American public be accurately informed of happenings in this nation and thruout the world, for the future of democracy depends upon our ability to analyze objectively, reason calmly, and judge accurately.

"In this turbulent period of world affairs, when the once independent nations disappear overnight, the newspaper must be the sentry which keeps us advised of every move in every direction."

Believes in Economy.

Turning to politics, Hershey gave a brief résumé of his program if he were elected governor. He said his sole object would be the happiness and security of all citizens.

"Illinois must continue to operate its state government on a pay-as-you-go basis," Hershey said. "I believe in practical economy—that is, keeping the cost of government at a minimum, yet giving to the people every essential service which a commonwealth should render to its citizens.

"Government must be responsive to the needs of its people and courageous enough to accept responsibility for their welfare. The balancing of our human budget is fully as important as the balancing of our fiscal budget. There is no antidote for the pangs of hunger; neither promise nor patriotism can take the place of food and clothing and shelter.

"We must sift the dream from the fact — the impossible promise from the practical achievement. It is deliberate demagogery and morally dishonest to promise, for example, impossible increases in old age assistance and other forms of government aid—and at the same time verbally advocate the elimination of vital sources of revenue."

Becomes Mother

GERALDINE FITZGERALD.

New York, May 6 [Special].—Geraldine Fitzgerald, Irish actress, recently starred in "A Child Is Born," gave birth to a nine pound son in the medical center's Harkness pavilion. The actress' husband, Edward Lindsay-Hogg of Dublin, was present to welcome the new arrival. Miss Fitzgerald is probably best known for her portrayal of a rôle in support of Bette Davis in "Dark Victory."

Six Leaders Paint Future Far More Rosy than Past

New York, May 6 [Special].—Six leaders of American industry and thought tonight told more than 400 picked students from 80 colleges and universities that present and future generations may look forward with certainty to greater opportunities than those enjoyed by past generations in the United States. Industrial progress thru research and technological advances will go far in providing these opportunities, the speakers asserted.

This composite picture of hope and chance for achievement was presented at a dinner and "Forum of Youth and Industry" at which the General Motors corporation was host at its exhibit on the New York World's Fair grounds. Pursuing its theme, "The Opportunity for Youth in Building the World of Tomorrow," the dinner program re-emphasized the American tradition of equal opportunity.

Knudsen Lauds Education

It touched upon the saga of the American melting pot, into which the talents of Europe have been poured to produce a progressive United States. William S. Knudsen, Danish immigrant boy who has risen to the General Motors presidency, told his young listeners that they who come out of college "certainly know more—have more teaching—than I had, for instance, when I came over here. To me you all are new models coming along. The rest of us are in the used car class."

Unspoken, but written in the list of names of guests, was a testimonial to the fact that many American leaders are not necessarily of English or Nordic descent. Half a dozen of the General Motors hosts fell in this group. So did some of the faculty members who accompanied their students. That the crop of coming American leaders in industry may include even more persons of central, southern, or eastern European descent was indicated in the list of students chosen to attend the dinner.

Among more than a score of these were such names as Rivkin, Mroczkowski, Lobsenz, Checkovich, Bove, Teofanov, Giordano, Boychuck, Collazo, Adessa, Dilatush, Bonsack, Di Bartolo, and Fodor.

Johnson Advises Job Hunters.

Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, answering a question as to whether being a star athlete or gaining a Phi Beta Kappa key thru scholarship is more important in getting a job, added this opportune comment:

"Any employer who hasn't any more sense than to look at either is not worth working for. Leave your sweaters home and stop fiddling with your keys when you look for a job."

Gen. Johnson took part in the forum. Answering student questions with him were Charles Kettering, General Motors vice president, and two college presidents, Dr. Karl M. Compton of Massachusetts Institute of Technology and Dr. Ernest M. Hopkins of Dartmouth.

The students were guests of Alfred P. Sloan Jr., chairman of General Motors. He invited each to submit beforehand one or two questions uppermost in their minds. The most pertinent of the 600-odd questions submitted were put to the "board of experts."

G-M as Trail Blazer.

This was said to be the first attempt by any large business organization to focus comprehensive consideration upon the much-discussed youth problem.

Among things the students wanted to know were whether government or private enterprise would solve the riddle of want amid plenty, whether there is any substitute for the "profit motive" as an incentive to industrial progress, and—in lighter vein—whether it still is possible to get ahead faster, jumping rungs in the ladder, "by marrying the boss' daughter."

Clifton Fadiman, master of ceremonies, remarked at this juncture that "the first rung on some ladders is more attractive than the daughters of some bosses." Kettering said the rung on which the jumper landed might break.

WEDDING STORY JUST A GAG, SAYS ARLINE JUDGE

New York, May 6 (AP).—Arline Judge, movie actress, and James McKinley Bryant each denied tonight that they were married in Kentucky yesterday. They said the reported wedding grew out of a "gag."

"Of course I'm not married to Mr. Bryant," Miss Judge said.

Bryant, associated with a hotel here, said "the trouble" started while he and Miss Judge were visiting at the River club in Louisville Saturday night.

"There were a lot of 'little boys' there, about 19 or 20 years old, and to get rid of them I said 'Miss Judge and I are getting married tomorrow,'" Bryant said. "How could I marry her when I'm still married to Mickey Flynn?"

Miss Judge was divorced recently from Daniel R. Topping, New York society figure.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Atlantic City, N. J., May 6.—Persistent reports that George Scalise, ex-convict pander and former head of the Building Service Employés International union, has arrived in Atlantic City and is pulling strings behind the scenes rocked the convention of the organization today.

Reliable sources said Scalise and his men had established secret headquarters at another hotel on the Boardwalk, not far from the Ritz Carlton, where the convention is being held. It was said a number of union officials had been summoned to this hideout and given their orders. Scalise was international president until his recent indictment on an extortion charge forced him to step down.

The Scalise strategy, it was reported, is to retain a vicarious hold on the union and couple this with a plea of guilty to the New York indictments in an effort to avoid a long prison sentence.

Union leaders, however, professed ignorance of his whereabouts. William L. McFetridge of Chicago, the first vice president, who is slated to step into the post of president, said he had "no knowledge" of Scalise being in town.

Scalise Report to Be Read.

McFetridge announced that Scalise's report on his "stewardship" of union funds during his three year term as president will be read to the convention tomorrow. According to charges made by State's Attorney Thomas Courtney in Chicago, where the international headquarters are located, the ex-boss of 70,000 scrubwomen, janitors, porters and chambermaids took a million dollars from the treasury, much of which is unaccounted for.

Scalise's report to the union, in the hands of the executive board tonight, was couched in general terms. He assailed "poison pen" writers for bringing about his troubles and reiterated his oft-repeated defense for his Mann act conviction by declaring it was a youthful offense and that he had gone straight ever since.

The report was accompanied by a formal statement of resignation, wherein Scalise declared he had stepped down because he wanted to be free to vindicate himself and the union. The convention is expected to adopt the report, lift the order suspending Scalise, and then accept his resignation.

Today's session of the convention was brief, devoted primarily to setting up committees. McFetridge, who presided, did not mention Scalise's name nor the charges against him.

Delegates Under Subpena.

It was learned here tonight that eight of the ten delegates from the international's largest local, No. 32B of New York, have subpenas in their pockets calling for their appearance before the grand jury in Manhattan upon their return home. The office of District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey, who obtained the indictment against Scalise, is demanding they come in and tell their stories.

Local 32B is headed by James J. Bambrick and comprises 16,500 janitors, porters, loft superintendents, and elevator operators. This was the union which staged the paralyzing elevator strike in New York City in 1936. Among those drawing up the peace terms were Bambrick, Scalise, and Mayor Fiorello La Guardia.

Issuance of the subpenas showed Dewey's office is widening its investigation into extortion and racketeering in the New York City building unions. The decision to inquire into Bambrick's union was prompted, it was said, by stories told to the grand jury by the brothers Louis and Isadore Schwartz, officials of the local now under indictment on extortion charges. It is believed one or both will be witnesses against Scalise.

Leaves McFetridge Clear Field.

Late this afternoon Bambrick formally withdrew from the race for international president and announced his delegates will be thrown to McFetridge, thereby making the Chicagoan's election a virtual certainty. Local 32B has a voting strength of 65 out of the 300 votes which will be cast later this week.

Dewey's inquiry, coupled with the fact that some of the New York building service union leaders have past records as unsavory as Scalise's own, is believed to have been a compelling motive behind Bambrick's withdrawal. The McFetridge crowd also promised to let him name two of the international vice presidents.

The only other avowed candidate is Charles Hardy of San Francisco, president of the Office Building Janitors' local. It was learned the McFetridge camp offered inducements to Hardy to step out of the race.

Hardy and Scalise have been uncompromising enemies. Scalise was attempting to muscle into control of the west coast unions, with their lucrative treasuries, and last fall suspended Hardy from his job as fourth vice president of the international.

Truce with Hardy.

As a part of the McFetridge election deal, Hardy's suspension will be lifted and the charges dropped, it was said.

There is no action pending against Thomas J. Burke, head of the Theatrical and Office Building Janitors of Chicago. Burke, one of the international vice presidents, has been a constant traveling companion of Scalise. Burke is supporting McFetridge for president.

It was rumored that Matt Taylor, head of the Chicago Elevator Operators and Starters' union, local No. 66, had made a statement here to federal bureau of investigation agents during the last two days about the struggle he had with Scalise over control of his union, with its rich treasury. Federal agents are reported to be investigating Scalise's income tax.

Louis Schiavone, a reputed Capone hoodlum, was killed in Chicago's west side at the time Scalise was muscling his way into the Taylor organization. A copy of an audit of Taylor's books was found in Sciavone's pockets. Government agents are interested in the union's fiscal affairs, as they affected Scalise, rather than the murder, which comes under the jurisdiction of the state's attorney of Cook county.

4 UNION OFFICERS FREED BY U. S. IN ANTITRUST CASE

Washington, D. C., May 6 (AP).—The government's first criminal case against a labor union under the anti-trust laws, ended in Federal District court today in a directed verdict of not guilty for four union officials.

Justice F. Dickinson Letts, after hearing the justice department present its case against the officers of the A. F. of L.'s teamsters union local, directed the jury to return a verdict of not guilty. The directed verdict was asked by the defense.

Letts said his action was based on a finding the prosecution had failed to establish criminal intent on the part of the union and its officers to violate the anti-trust laws which prohibit unlawful combinations and conspiracies in restraint of trade. The teamsters local was indicted by a federal grand jury early last fall on charges of having restrained public and private building construction in the District of Columbia.

ARTHUR SULLIVAN IS SUPPORTED FOR STATE CHAIRMAN

Arthur A. Sullivan, attorney for the Cook county Democratic central committee and legal adviser to County Treasurer John Toman, is the choice of the Nash-Kelly metropolitan organization for chairman of the Democratic state central committee, it was learned yesterday.

The state group will meet in Springfield tomorrow to organize for the biennium. Arthur Sullivan, who is a member of J. Frank Lyman's 48th ward Democratic organization, will succeed Committeeman James J. Sullivan of the 8th ward, who was elected interim chairman of the state committee after Harry B. Hershey of Taylorville, ex-chairman, was chosen last February as the candidate for governor. Joseph E. Knight of Dow, it is believed, will be reelected secretary of the committee. James Sullivan, it is understood, declined to seek reëlection in order to devote himself to ward activities in the fall campaign.

Downstate candidates for chairmen are said to include John J. Hallihan of East St. Louis, state director of registration and education; Kenneth Elmore, Quincy; Everett Smith, Lincoln; Charles V. O'Hern, Peoria, and A. M. [Doc] Thompson, Harrisburg.

Two Bandits Slug Janitor in Attempt to Rob Ballroom

Two bandits attempted a robbery yesterday in the Merry Garden ballroom, 3136 Sheffield avenue. They held up John Snalzer Jr., the janitor, and demanded that he open the office safe. They beat him when he protested he could not do so and left without loot.

Gubbins' Election Suit in 36th Ward Dismissed

The suit of Joseph P. Gubbins to contest the election of Eden T. Brekke as Republican 36th ward committeeman in the April 9 primary was dismissed by agreement yesterday before County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki. Gubbins failed to gain substantially in a recount, which left the incumbent 46 votes ahead. The only contest remaining is one brought by Richard Donnellan against Robert W. Dunn, who was shown to have been reëlected Republican 44th ward committeeman by five votes.

U. S. WILL SEARCH CITY FOOD TRADE FOR MONOPOLIES

An inquiry into every phase of the food business is next on the program of the antitrust division of the United States attorney general's office, it was learned yesterday. The investigation will be conducted in Chicago and New York by federal grand juries. One thousand witnesses are expected to be subpenaed to appear here.

The government will charge, it was reported, that food prices are too high because of alleged monopolistic practices in the industry.

Thurman W. Arnold, chief of the antitrust division of the attorney general's office, was in Chicago yesterday conferring with Leo F. Tierney, special assistant attorney general in charge of antitrust prosecutions in this area. Arnold would say only that they made plans for another major antimonopoly investigation.

Arnold said 1,500 persons and organizations are under indictment as the result of antitrust inquiries thus far. Of the defendants, 1,180 are connected with the building trades.

Couple Makes Third Vain Bid for Marriage License

New York, May 6 [Special].—Twice denied a marriage license in Virginia on Saturday, Joyce Matthews, an actress, 20 years old, and Gonzalo Gomez, 41, son of a former president of Venezuela, had no better success here today. When they sought a license they were told to come back tomorrow and bring along a certificate of divorce which Gomez could not produce today.

SEN. SCHWELLENBACH CONFIRMED AS JUDGE OF FEDERAL COURT

Washington, D. C., May 6 (AP).—The senate today unanimously confirmed President Roosevelt's nomination of Senator Lewis O. Schwellenbach [D., Wash.] to be federal judge in the eastern district of Washington state. The chamber ordered that President Roosevelt be advised immediately of its action. This course made it possible for Schwellenbach to take his oath at once.

Sen. Schwellenbach.

Schwellenbach, in a statement, said that he will remain in the senate until the end of the present session. He said his personal desire was to go to Spokane at once, as he appreciates the need of a district judge in eastern Washington. He said there are a number of problems of vital importance to the state which must be cared for here during the next month, however, and added that a new man would have difficulty in handling them.

RADCLIFFE WINS IN MARYLAND'S SENATE PRIMARY

Nice Leads in G.O.P. Race; Dewey Out in Front.

Baltimore, Md., May 6 (AP).—Democratic National Committeeman Howard Bruce tonight conceded renomination of Senator George L. Radcliffe in Maryland's Democratic senatorial primary and pledged his support in Radcliffe's bid for reëlection in November.

"It is apparent from the returns up to now that Senator Radcliffe has been renominated," Bruce's statement said. "And I have wired him my congratulations and assurances of support in November."

Returns from 974 of 1,309 polling places, including Baltimore, gave Bruce 75,672 and Radcliffe 139,281. In the Republican senatorial primary 499 polling places gave former Gov. Harry W. Nice 27,891 and William F. Broening 21,224.

G. O. P. Senate Race in Doubt.

Due to delays thruout the state in tabulation of Republican votes, the Republican senatorial race is far from settled. Although Nice led in the popular vote, he was assured of only 49 of the 149 convention votes—including Baltimore districts with seven votes each.

Thomas E. Dewey, unopposed in the Republican presidential preference primary, polled 32,289 votes when returns from 731 of the 1,309 polling places were tabulated. From the same polling places 4,389 voted for uninstructed delegates. The vote assures Dewey Maryland's 16 delegates to the national convention.

Nomination in Maryland state-wide contests requires a candidate to obtain a majority of the 149 votes in the state convention. Convention votes are distributed among the 23 counties and six Baltimore city districts, and the candidate with the most popular votes in a county or district automatically wins the convention votes.

Senator Radcliffe swept all six Baltimore city districts, which have seven convention votes each, and was leading in 15 of the 23 counties. On the basis of convention votes Radcliffe was assured of at least 89 of the 149 total—14 more than required for nomination in the state convention.

Five Primaries Today.

Voters in Indiana, California, Florida, Alamaba, and South Dakota will go to the polls today to record their party choices for candidates in the general elections in November. Campaigns have been relatively quiet and a light vote is expected except in California, where Roosevelt and Garner forces are fighting for the state's 44 delegates to the Democratic national convention.

Seven Republican and five Democratic congressmen seek renomination in Indiana. One Democrat and five Republicans have the blessing of the Townsend pension planners, who are trying to defeat Republicans Charles A. Halleck and George W. Gillie. Nominees for senator, governor, and state offices will be picked at state conventions.

Gov. C. L. Olson heads the California delegate slate pledged for Roosevelt. Another ticket is pledged for Vice President Garner, the only avowed candidate; a third ticket is unpledged and a ham and egg ticket will be for any one who is for pensions.

11 U. S. Senate Candidates.

In Florida, Gov. Fred P. Cone and four others are seeking the senate seat of Charles O. Andrews, who hopes to be returned to office. Eleven candidates seek the governorship Cone is giving up. Two slates of third term and one slate of antithird term Democratic delegates are in the field.

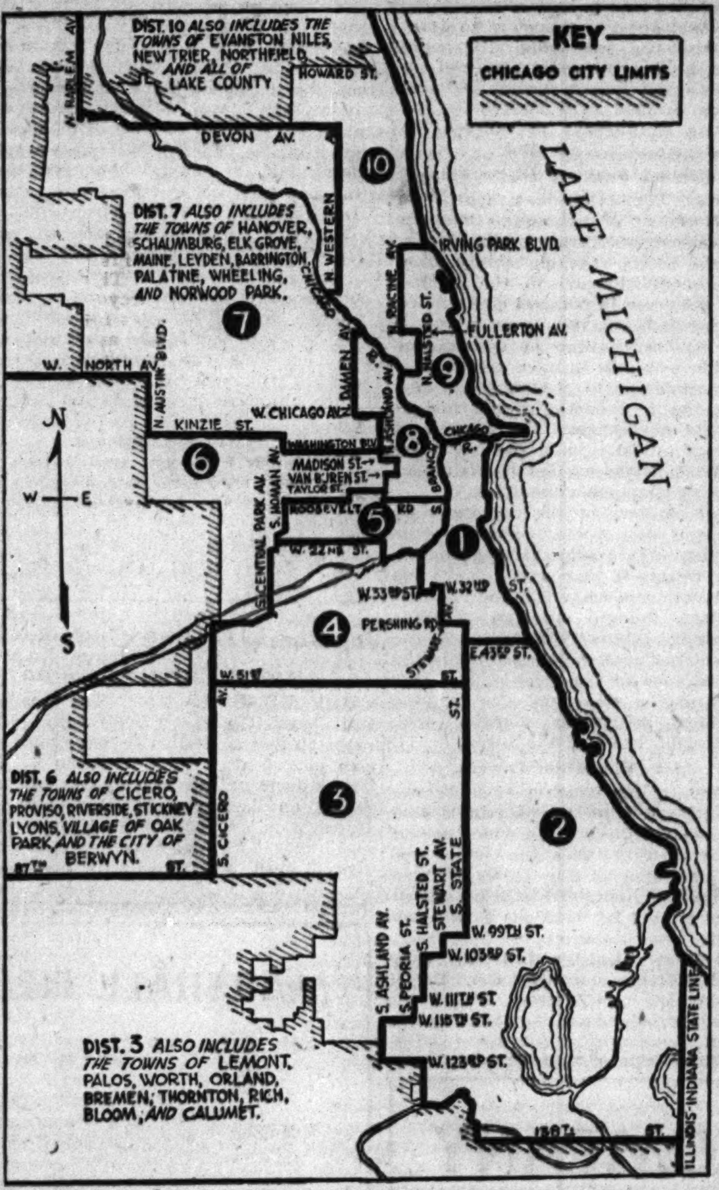
Speaker William B. Bankhead of the house of representatives is unopposed for renomination in Alabama and 22 candidates for delegates to the Democratic convention have indorsed him as the favorite son candidate for the presidency. Five other congressmen have opposition. State and county candidates also will be nominated.

The only state-wide contest in South Dakota is for governor. Harlan Bushfield, Republican seeking renomination, is opposed by A. N. Graff, former Sioux Falls mayor. The Democratic nomination is sought by Lewis W. Bicknell, an attorney, and A. O. Steensland, former HOLC state manager. Congressional candidates are unopposed.

Idaho Instructs for Dewey.

Lewiston, Idaho, May 6 (AP).—The Idaho delegation to the Republican national convention was instructed today to cast the state's eight votes for the nomination of Thomas E. Dewey for the presidency. The vote of the state convention was 133 to 68. Only once before in Idaho's 50 years of statehood—in 1936 when the late William E. Borah was a candidate for the presidential nomination—has a Republican delegation gone instructed to a Republican national convention.

Where Dewey Drew Heavy Vote



Thomas E. Dewey polled 85 per cent of all the Republican votes cast in the presidential preference primary in the first 10 congressional districts of Illinois.

DEWEY'S VICTORY DWARFS TOTALS OF PARTY MATES

Runs Far Ahead of Other Winners.

BY PARKE BROWN.

In the Illinois presidential preference primary, Thomas E. Dewey received more than 85 per cent of all the Republican votes cast in the first 10 congressional districts. The 20 national convention delegates elected averaged 42.6 per cent of the Republican vote cast in their districts. The 10 congressional nominees averaged 37.3 per cent of the party vote in their districts.

These districts cover all Cook county and, in addition, the 10th includes Lake county. District totals for Dewey and for state candidates are not available, as they are for downstate districts. In the case of the latter, district boundaries follow county lines. In Cook county the situation is difficult because city and ward lines have been changed many times since the congressional districts were set up by the legislature in 1901.

Votes Are Compared.

Under these conditions, the best comparison of Dewey's strength with that of local candidates is based on his strength as a whole in the area under analysis with the votes recorded for the candidates within the congressional districts—candidates for delegates and congressman.

Dewey's vote in Cook county totaled 377,574 or 85.72 per cent of the entire Republican vote. In Lake county he received 26,263 votes, or 82.23 per cent of the total vote of the county. His average for the combination of Cook and Lake counties was 85.06 per cent.

In comparison with this record of better than 85 per cent, the following percentages were made by the winning candidates for delegates to the G.O.P. national convention at Philadelphia on June 24, two delegates to each district:

Dist.	Total vote.	Delegate.	Vote.	Pct.
1.	19,232	George Hellmann.	6,534	33.9

10.	107,828	J. S. Kemper......	50,625	46.9
		A. D. Lasker......	48,996	45.4

In Lake county Kemper received 14,416 votes, and Lasker, 12,025, which are included in their totals above. The total Republican vote in Lake was 31,925. Dewey's vote there totaled 26,253.

The comparison between Dewey's 85 percentage and the scores of the district nominees for congressman is provided by this table:

Dist.	Total vote.	Delegate.	Vote.	Pct.
1.	19,232	W. E. King.........	9,680	50.3
2.	75,860	P. H. Moynihan...	20,291	20.8

REVEAL 3 WAY TIEUP OF NLRB, C.I.O. AND REDS

Secret Midnight Parley Is Described by Witness.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 6.—A midnight conference between Harry Bridges, alien leader of the west coast seamen's union, and Edwin S. Smith, a member of the National Labor Relations board, was described today to the Dies committee investigating un-American activities.

At the same time the Smith committee inquiring into the labor board's administration of the Wagner act heard evidence indicating the sympathies of a field examiner for the Congress of Industrial Organizations, headed by John L. Lewis.

The two investigations disclosed a tieup between the communist party, the C. I. O., and the labor board.

Boasts of Power Over NLBR.

Bridges, saved from deportation recently by Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins when she exonerated him of charges that he is a communist, was represented as boasting:

"I can get pretty near just what I want out of the labor board."

This testimony came from Peter J. Innes Jr., of Bridgeport, Conn., a national maritime union official who broke with the union in 1939. He declared that Bridges definitely is a communist and that he had attended at least 10 "fraction meetings" of the communist party with Bridges.

The secret meeting of Bridges and Board Member Smith occurred in Baltimore on Dec. 18, 1936, Innes testified. Edwin Smith last week testified before the Smith committee that he had met Bridges only once or twice.

Introduces Aids to Bridges.

Bridges had addressed a seaman's rally in Baltimore when Edwin Smith appeared, shook hands with Bridges and introduced two companions as his assistants, Innes testified.

Bridges then introduced Smith to Innes by name, saying he had an appointment with Smith, Innes testified. Asked if he was sure that the man was Edwin Smith, Innes declared he was positive. He recognized Smith from pictures he had seen, he said, and had seen his picture many times since.

"Bridges tried to duck me, but I couldn't be ducked," Innes told Chairman Martin Dies [D., Tex.]. "I insisted on accompanying him. Bridges, Smith, and the two assistants drove to a Baltimore office building, went to an upper floor together, and entered an office. When Bridges came out 15 minutes later he said: 'I think I have arranged for elections on the Atlantic coast.'"

Takes Orders from Red.

"Did Bridges ever express a particular friendship for any government official?" asked Representative J. Parnell Thomas [R., N. J.].

"Not by name," Innes replied. "He said, however, that he could get pretty near what he wanted out of the labor board."

Bridges takes orders from Tommy Ray, a communist party leader in charge of marine labor in this country, Innes testified. He said there is an international hookup between maritime unions here and abroad.

"On one occasion, when the S. S. Washington sailed with a crew unfavorable to the maritime union, the longshoremen's organization in France was notified and refused to unload the cargo," Innes said. "The ship then tried to unload at Hamburg, Germany, but longshoremen there also refused to handle the cargo. The Washington was forced to return to New York with its cargo intact."

NLRB Aid Defends Convict.

The Smith committee received evidence that the actions of Herbert J. Vogt, a field examiner for the labor board, had been called to the attention of J. Edgar Hoover, director of the federal bureau of investigation.

Vogt was said to have been traveling in Iowa, making speeches in behalf of a pardon for Archie Carter, former publisher of a labor union newspaper in Dubuque, Ia., who is serving a five year sentence in the Iowa state penitentiary at Fort Madison for an unnatural sex offense. This information was furnished to the federal agents and Hoover turned it over to J. Warren Madden, chairman of the labor board "for whatever action you care to take."

The labor board's files disclosed that Madden ordered an investigation. Vogt denied the charge, giving tion.

The board eventually reported that Vogt had not behaved improperly, but suggested his transfer out of the Iowa region.

HALF BACK RED GRANGE MAY BE ASKED TO RUN FOR U. OF I. TRUSTEE

Springfield, Ill., May 6 (AP). — The name of Harold [Red] Grange, former University of Illinois football star, was injected today into speculation over Republican nominees for the state university board of trustees. Three trustees will be chosen in the November election.

Reports that state Republican leaders may ask Grange to be a candidate circulated here among alumni and members of the legislature. Recently Democratic leaders disclosed there was a strong possibility that Gov. Henry Horner would be nominated for university trustee. The major parties select nominees for trustees in their state conventions.

Grange, one of Illinois' all time gridiron greats, now is vice president and assistant coach of the Chicago Bears, professional football team.

GRANGE IS WILLING.

Harold Grange said last night he knew nothing of a reported campaign to nominate him for trustee of the U. of I., but added: "I believe that if I were nominated I would make the race. I have always liked the university and would like to be connected with it in some way."

RICKETTS PRIZE AT U. OF C. GOES TO PATHOLOGIST

Dr. Harold R. Reames, now a pathologist at Washington university, St. Louis, was awarded the annual Howard Taylor Ricketts prize by the University of Chicago for his research on the Midway campus on a local virus infection of the upper respiratory tract. The prize honors Dr. Ricketts, university bacteriologist, who died in 1910, a martyr to the typhus germ he discovered. Dr. Reames' research was done at the Midway during his graduate work.

FIRST STORY OF NORWAY BEHIND GERMAN LINES

Tribune Writer Describes Tour of War Front.

caught the British column in a narrow pass and bombed and machine gunned them thoroly. Abandoning their equipment and guns the British fled toward the harbor. Their staff in Dombas left in such a hurry that some of the officers had no time to dress.

Squadrons of German bombers continued to harass the fleeing battalions. There were reported to have been eight British battalions [approximately 6,000 men] landed at Andalsnes. Bombs began to hit the transports. The wrecks are still visible in the harbor, but the fjord is deep and the Germans said they have no idea how many British ships were sunk.

On the Namsos front the rout was more complete. The Germans surprised the British at Steinkjer, 50 miles north of Trondheim. Two destroyers transported the troops. One landed troops just below the town, the other 20 miles farther up the fjord. Both landing parties met at Steinkjer and the remnant of a British battalion surrendered.

Planes Create a Panic.

The British resistance, both in the skirmish at Steinkjer and later at Namsos, was said to be surprisingly weak. The battalion, prisoners said, was composed half of territorials [National Guard troops] and half of regulars. The territorials broke first, then the surrender of the British regulars followed quickly, after a few salvos of guns from the destroyers and a fierce German attack, it was said.

At Namsos the German airplanes created a panic. There were reported to have been 10,000 British and 10,000 French troops landed at Namsos. There were also 8,000 Norwegian troops there. These were attacked by a force of 7,000 Germans and routed.

The airplanes, the Germans said, sank ship after ship of the British fleet in the harbor. Rather than go aboard many British soldiers fled into the mountains.

Some ships secreted in inlets escaped, the Germans believe.

The British expeditionary force, according to reassuring broadcasts I heard over the British radio, was delayed in its departure for Norway by the need of equipping the soldiers for fighting in the arctic cold of Norway. When the troops arrived in Norway they were equipped warmly enough for a conquest of the north pole. Soldiers whom the Germans captured wore two suits of heavy woolen underclothing. Over this they wore a heavy woolen uniform jacket. On top of this came a sleeveless leather tunic which came below the waist and then on this a heavily padded duck coat. Carrying gas masks and kit, they had little strength left to carry many grenades or ammunition.

They encountered spring weather in Norway—temperatures ranging from 60 to 70 degrees Fahrenheit during the day and just below the freezing point at night. Overclothed and overladen with equipment, they were completely exhausted when they encountered the Germans.

Road Strewn with Spoils.

Along the road from Verma into the Andalsnes fjord, one can see shattered and abandoned British equipment. One huge chest when opened disclosed an entire set of knives and meat choppers, enough to equip a fair sized slaughter house.

Another trunk was burdened with cooking equipment such as one finds in the kitchen of a first class hotel.

In traveling by car from Sweden to Trondheim, I saw German patrols and scattered small groups of guards and little groups of Austrian soldiers stationed at crossroads and bridges. They were surrounded by friendly, larger groups of Norwegians, men and women, boys and girls, who were all naively curious about the invaders and who were laughing and joking as we drove up to talk with them.

Flags at Half Staff.

The only evidence of sorrow was that approximately one farm out of every 20 we passed in the valleys had the Norwegian flag at half staff. Farmers I questioned said it was because of a radio broadcast which had said King Haakon had crossed the Norwegian frontier to seek a refuge in Sweden.

[British and Norwegian sources have asserted that King Haakon still is in Norway, but his whereabouts remains undisclosed.]

The only Norwegians I found who seemed ashamed were the boys who had been mobilized and had served a few days with their disorganized army. They were glad to be demobilized and en route home.

The older Norwegians were indignant about the occupation of Norway, but those under 25 years of age didn't seem to care.

I also have not met a single German who has spoken either disparagingly or with animus about the Norwegians. They all said they were in Norway to fight the British and French, not Norwegians.

My liaison officer was a German staff surgeon and we made an all day motor trip over the roads south of Trondheim. High on a mountain pass we found a famous German sapper regiment at work repairing four bridges which Norwegian soldiers had blown up two days before.

Most of Country Unhurt.

Altho a few small towns have been badly damaged by both German and British war activities, by far the greater part of Norway is untouched by the war. Altho I saw big craters caused by bombs, some fairly near buildings, it appeared that in the valleys along the route of march, the German bombers dropped only a few bombs to scare the inhabitants.

In the narrow roads between snow covered mountains, there was no evidence of an attempt to blast out cliffs and roll down timber to block the roads.

During three days of traveling several hundreds of miles over roads and routes which had been contested, I saw only two fresh graves. They were at Storen, below Trondheim. They were the graves of two German soldiers, a Corporal Preuss and a Private Wolf, who had been killed by machine gun fire there on April 27.

CHAMBERLAIN'S RULE AT STAKE IN COMMONS TODAY

Premier to Defend British Setback in Norway.

BY JOSEPH CERUTTI.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 6.—On the eve of a two day debate in the house of commons on the British government's general conduct of the war and the failure of the British and French expeditionary force to drive German troops out of Norway, speculation about Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's political future was intensified tonight.

Political observers expressed the belief that the government will escape defeat, but will face a rising tide of parliamentary criticism. It was suggested that Chamberlain may have to take the initiative and force a showdown by demanding a vote of confidence in himself and his policy.

Delay Parliamentary Tactics.

So far neither of the opposition Labor and Liberal parties nor the so-called rebels in Chamberlain's Conservative party have introduced a motion of censure against the government. It was stated that decisions on parliamentary tactics were being deferred until the effects of Chamberlain's speech at the opening of tomorrow's debate can be gauged.

The prime minister was expected to give a detailed account of the Norwegian campaign and review the war situation on the other fronts. However, it was said he will leave technical explanations of naval and military activities to Winston Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, and Oliver Stanley, the war minister.

Under this arrangement it will be Churchill's task to answer critics who have displayed a tendency to force the issue on why admiralty politicians in London countermanded orders to the British naval forces to attack German held Trondheim and decided to attempt to capture the Norwegian port from land.

Cabinet Shakeup Discussed.

Altho Chamberlain was reported to be confident of his ability to steer his government thru a parliamentary debate safely, the possibility of a subsequent shakeup in the cabinet was discussed in political circles.

Lord Salisbury, acting on behalf of the All-Party group of government critics, was said to have presented a memorandum to Chamberlain demanding a sweeping reconstruction of the government, the ousting of several ministers, and the formation of a small war cabinet consisting of men without departmental jobs.

The authors of the memorandum asserted that reconstruction is imperative. They said that if Chamberlain rejects it they will demand his resignation to make way for Viscount Halifax, foreign minister, as prime minister. The activities of the would-be cabinet makers has resulted in the appearance in the press of two lists of possible ministers, one naming Halifax as prime minister with Churchill heading the other.

May Get Wider Powers.

One change which seemed certain to emerge from the debate is that Churchill will be given wider powers to control Britain's war policy and as chairman of the chiefs of staff committee henceforth will be sole interpreter of its decisions to the cabinet.

Foreign Minister Halvdan Koht and Defense Minister Col. Birger Ljungberg of Norway called on Chamberlain tonight to confer on the war.

British-French Army Returns from Norway 'with Tails Up'

LONDON, May 7, Tuesday (AP).—Battle worn British and French troops, just landed in a northern British port from Norway, were praised early today by Gen. Sir Edmund Ironside, chief of the imperial general staff, for having "come back with your tails up."

Don't think you were driven out of Norway," Ironside told the soldiers. "You were ordered out of Norway, and the great thing is that your discipline brought you out.

"When you talk to your people tell them how well you fought—that you have come back with your tails up—and that you will be ready again to show the same courage as you did then.

Called Match for Germans.

"Remember this—you beat those people when they came at you—you, with none of the implements that they had.

"I think that each one of you will have it in his heart that man for man and under proper conditions you are a match for the Germans.

"You were an advance guard, and we had thought that we would be able to get to you the guns and aviation which make it possible to fight such a machine as you were opposed to.

"But, as you know, very soon the race went against us.

"You will hear afterwards probably how our planes came across and landed and brought down a great many of these bombarding planes above you."

French Land on Sunday.

It was disclosed that transports of French troops already had landed at a Scottish port Sunday.

A French major said he saw no German soldiers during 10 days in Norway, but that the town where his men landed had suffered severely from German bombers, even tho it was not an important military objective.

"We were disappointed that we had to leave Norway without having a crack at the Germans," he said, "but we had the satisfaction of seeing at least one German bomber brought down by our anti-aircraft. We saw no sign of the German fleet, not even a submarine, but there were plenty of British warships about."

A war office message cited the stand taken by British and French troops south of Dombas, Norway, and their withdrawal before a superior German force as operations worthy of the highest army traditions.

Jap Bombs Damage Catholic Mission Church in China

HONGKONG, May 6 (AP).—The Central News [Chinese official] agency reported that an Italian Catholic mission church was badly damaged by bombs during a Japanese air raid yesterday on Kwanghua, northwestern Hupeh province. The agency said several hundred Chinese houses were destroyed by fires started by the bombing.

NAZI PARACHUTE ARMY LAUNCHES DRIVE TO NARVIK

100 Planes Carry Troops to Key Town of Mo.

BULLETIN.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, May 7, Tuesday (AP) (by Radio).—A Norwegian broadcast early today said that the Norwegian commander in chief, Otto Ruge, still was in Norway, having been taken to a northern port by a British warship.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, May 6 (AP).—The German air force took far northern Norway as its objective today as the Germans, apparently determined to complete their occupation of the country, hammered vigorously at the British, French, and Norwegian allies' remaining footholds.

Reports reaching here tonight said German troops had been dropped by parachute from scores of planes to cut off any new allied landings from the sea in the craggy, snowy wilderness into which the main Norwegian war scene is shifting.

The first necessity, before Germany can stretch her hold to such extreme northern points as Hammerfest and Kirkenes, is to reënforce her troops at Narvik, the iron ore port, beleaguered by allied forces in the surrounding country.

See 100 Transport Planes.

The flow northward of heavy transport planes, reported carrying both men and supplies, indicates this already has begun altho on land at least one German column was said still to be obstructed below Trondheim. At least 100 German transport planes were seen winging northward.

The newspaper Aftonbladet said die-hard Norwegians, trying to hold off the Germans from the narrow Norwegian "handle" along the northern Atlantic coast, had reported a victory today over a Nazi force of 3,000 men in the Gau valley, east of Storen and south of Trondheim.

A German parachute patrol landed near Mo, about 150 miles north of Namsos and midway between Namsos and Narvik, reports here said.

Mo is the town on the inlet north of Mosjoen where the British who withdrew from their debarkation point at Namsos were expected in some quarters to attempt a new landing to halt the Germans' northward progress.

Key for Any Attack.

With Mo in its possession, military observers said, the Nazi army—even with few men—would be in a good position to block the allies and facilitate a German land offensive toward Narvik despite exceedingly rough, snow-choked trails.

Beyond Mo, terminus of a well constructed road, the unusually difficult country can be penetrated only along a deep valley road which is blocked by exposure to sea attack below Narvik and curves eastward into remote mountains, fjords, and forests above Narvik.

Rumors persisted that some of the withdrawn allied forces had landed again in Norway south of Narvik but confirmation of any new allied debarkations still was lacking tonight.

With indications that the Germans intend, if possible, to push their occupation to the northernmost limits of Norway, the question of Scandinavian economy for the duration of the war has come into the foreground.

If such a German move should succeed, Sweden would lose whatever hopes she may now have of possible unhampered trade routes to the west by way of Petsamo, Finland, and Arctic waters.

All Scandinavia Involved.

Even now all of Scandinavia and Finland have been drawn into the economic orbit of Germany and soviet Russia either by force or circumstance.

The German drive to oust the allies from the Narvik area, besides being designed to gain complete control of Swedish iron ore shipments, also appears aimed at forestalling any possible allied move to hinder such shipments thru the Gulf of Bothnia.

Continuation of allied action against German ships moving to Norway across the Skagerrak was reported by naval circles in Stockholm. It was said new allied mines had been laid in the area west of Goteborg, Sweden. Belief was expressed that new mines caused the sinking of a Swedish fishing vessel and an unidentified German ship today, and probably were laid by submarine.

NAZI DRIVE HAS 3 GOALS

BERLIN, May 6 (AP).—A German overland expedition driving northward thru Norway under the joint direction of Hitler strategy and expert army planning today was reported at the outskirts of Mo, the halfway point along its 300 mile route from Namsos to Narvik.

The drive had the triple objective of:

1. Relieving the German garrison in the arctic iron ore port of Narvik from attacking British, French and Norwegian forces.

2. Mopping up, en route, the allied detachments which, left behind in last week's embarkation at Namsos, also were believed to be trying to reach Narvik.

3. Establishing a powerful air base at Bodo, only 110 miles air line from Narvik, for the hard-hitting "Stukas" ["Sturlkampfbombers" or "dive battle bombers"].

Hitler's Reasons for Drive.

Hitler's decision to order the overland march, surprising to many officials who already had conceded eventual capture of the town by the allies, was said to come from two principal reasons:

FIRST—The fact that the German position in Narvik was made especially difficult because the ore shipping port's air field was not in Nazi hands.

SECOND—The British patrol of sea lanes leading to Narvik which, for the last two weeks, had made it appear inevitable that the German garrison either would have to surrender or retreat into Sweden and there be interned.

Soon after it was announced that Hitler had ordered the overland drive thru the wilds of northern Norway, military experts said the most immediate of the three Nazi goals would be to establish the air base at Bodo.

Easy for Round Trip Raids.

From this site the "Stukas" would be able to make round trips to Narvik in an hour, to blast at the British and French positions and harass the allied sea forces which now are attempting to crowd the Germans out of this vital terminus of the rail line running east to the rich Swedish ore mines.

German troops already are reported to be within perhaps half a dozen miles of Mo, northern end of the rail line coming up from central and southern Norway and of the improved highway.

Ahead of the advancing German forces, scouting planes reported they have located the French and British units which are moving north in the same direction. Contact between the two forces was expected hourly.

The more optimistic military observers here feel it may not be necessary for the German columns to attempt the advance from Bodo to Narvik if establishment of the air base at Bodo makes it possible for the bombers to render full time assistance to the Narvik garrison.

Allies Pour in Reënforcements.

In addition to the strategic value, the region of Mo and Bodo is the center of heavy timberland with many lumber mills. From the harbor at Mo, a 13 mile railway line leads inland to iron mines belonging to a British company.

Around Narvik itself, meanwhile, the allies were reported to be pouring in a constant stream of reënforcements.

French Alpine chasseurs [Blue Devils] already have been landed at Tyss fjord, south of the ore port, and other British and French forces have been moving in to lines north of the town by way of Harstad and Tromsoe.

It also is know to the German army that the British recently brought heavy cannon there to bolster their positions, and it is reported here that, with Norwegian troops having joined the British and French.

Destroyers Sunk by German Bombs

ADMIT SINKING OF 3 DESTROYERS BY NAZI AIRMEN

British, French and Poles Each Lose Warship.

LONDON, May 6 (AP).—Germany's aerial power in Norway has sent three allied destroyers to the bottom of the ocean within the last week, it was announced today. The French and British admiralties admitted the sinking of two and the Polish naval staff in London announced it had lost the third.

P. L. Vian, captain of British destroyer. [A. P. Wirephoto.]

All three destroyers were sunk as they fought off German airmen while the war vessels were protecting troopships leaving Norway. It was reported the troop transports themselves escaped unscathed.

Destroyers Listed.

The destroyed vessels:

BISON — French destroyer, 2,406 tons, sunk during a German air attack May 3 off Norway. Most of her crew, which normally would be 209 men, was saved. The vessel was completed in 1930.

GROM—Polish destroyer, 2,144 tons, hit by a bomb with one officer and 65 men believed lost. The Grom was completed in 1937 by a British shipyard and had been coöperating with the British in Norwegian operations. She carried a crew of about 200. The Poles announced they had accepted an offer by the British government to replace the Grom by a destroyer now being built.

AFRIDI — British destroyer, 1,870 tons, struck by bombs while leaving Namsos, Norway. The Afridi normally carried 219 men, and there was no word as to how many men were saved, if any. The craft was completed in May, 1938, at a cost of $1,800,000.

Cossack's Skipper in Command.

The Afridi was commanded by Capt. P. L. Vian, who previously commanded the destroyer Cossack when that warship invaded a Norwegian fjord Feb. 17 and rescued British captives from the German prison ship Altmark. The Cossack was reported by the Germans to have been hit and set afire by shells in the second naval battle of Narvik April 13.

The British admiralty also announced that three British trawlers, the Penn, Hercules, and Leonara, each carrying nine men, were overdue and had been given up as lost.

The air ministry announced that two Sunderland flying boats had been damaged by German machinegun fire while anchored off Norway yesterday.

GERMANS CLAIM THEY TAPPED WIRES AND HEARD BALKAN PLOT

BERLIN, May 7, Tuesday (AP).—The German press asserted today that plans for British-French military action in the Balkans this month had been disclosed by interception of a telephone conversation between French Premier Pierre Reynaud and British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain.

Under large headlines the Berlin Zwoelfuhrblatt carried excerpts from the alleged conversation in which Reynaud was quoted as saying that Gen. Maxime Weygand, commander in the near east, had promised to be ready for "ordered action" by May 15.

[How the alleged conversation, which was said to have occurred April 30, was intercepted was not disclosed.]

The paper said Reynaud advised Chamberlain that he should not take the May 15 date too literally. Chamberlain was quoted as replying, in an obviously depressed tone, "That the preparations down there seem to be taking more time than are necessary."

Reynaud was said to have answered that there were "many difficulties to be overcome," especially in connection with the Turks, "who are daily making higher demands."

French Inner War Cabinet, President Lebrun Confer

FRENCH SHATTER THIRD GERMAN ATTACK IN 3 DAYS

PARIS, May 6 (AP).—A new German thrust on the western front crumpled before a counterattack by advance French units during fighting for the third successive night in the Saar sector, the British-French high command announced today.

Military spokesmen said about 300 Nazis attacked after sharp exchanges of artillery fire. The attackers did not penetrate between the French outposts as they did the night before, the spokesmen said, and were forced to withdraw after suffering losses. It was admitted the French also suffered casualties.

The high command's communique tonight said: "Nothing of importance to report. Some artillery fire in lower Alsace."

ITALIAN ARMY MASSES ALONG JUGO-SLAV LINE

Mussolini, Prince Confer on War Problems.

ROME, May 6 (AP).—Premier Mussolini conferred with Crown Prince Umberto today on military problems as heightened tension was reported between Italy and Jugo-Slavia. The crown prince is commander of half of the Italian army.

Authoritative quarters said "precautionary measures" along the Jugo Slav frontier were the result of "French-British intrigues."

A dispatch from Ljubljana, Jugo Slavia, said military quarters estimated Italy now has more than 300,000 men massed north of Fiume in the border region.

Apprehension was widespread among Italians but there was nothing to indicate any belligerent intention. Political circles said Jugo Slavia's alarm at reports of Italian troop concentrations were "needless."

Report Border Incidents.

No authoritative comment was available on reports of two Jugo Slav-Italian frontier incidents, in which an Italian soldier was reported killed and an Italian observation plane shot down. Both were said to have occurred last week.

Virginio Gayda, editor of Il Giornale d'Italia who usually is the mouthpiece for Premier Mussolini, accused the French particularly of creating "the spectre of an Italian menace" in the Balkans.

The Italian feeling generally was summed up by Il Popolo Di Roma which said that, if the British and French naval concentration in the Mediterranean was intended as intimidation toward Italy, "the allies have committed a psychological and political error."

Call 70,000 for Training.

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, May 6.—Jugo-Slavia's military class of 1919 has been called up for training. Approximately 70,000 men were affected by the order. They will serve for 18 months. The 1918 class, now ending its service, will not be dismissed, and it was expected that a total of 550,000 men may soon be under arms.

Balkan Capitals Uneasy.

BUDAPEST, Hungary, May 6 (AP).—Uneasiness prevailed in all Balkan capitals tonight.

Rumania mobilized her entire military and civilian defense organization for complete air raid exercises, and reports reached here that 300,000 Italian troops were massed near the Jugo-Slav border north of Fiume.

Reports of incidents along the Italian-Jugo-Slav border also were received from Ljubljana, Jugo-Slavia. It was said one Italian soldier was killed and three wounded when Fascist patrols tried to disarm a Jugo-Slav sergeant on his own territory.

Hold Italians Responsible.

A mixed commission was reported to have placed responsibility for the attack on the Italians, who said they thought they were on Italian ground.

In another incident, at Bakar, near Fiume, Jugo-Slavs shot down an Italian plane. They declared the pilot, who was killed, had been photographing Jugo-Slav defense works.

Italy also has been reported moving several thousand "laborers" into Albania, on the southern frontier of Jugo-Slavia, to build roads and other public works.

Watch Balkan Moves.

Other developments today in the Balkans included:

1. King Boris of Bulgaria reviewed large units of his army in Sofia.
2. Brig. Gen. Josef Tippelskirch, described as chief of the German military intelligence service who toured Denmark and Norway just before the Nazis launched their Scandinavian blitzkrieg, ended a tour of the Balkans. In Bucharest and Sofia he conferred with German military attachés and diplomats, as well as with Rumanian and Bulgarian military authorities.
3. Russia denied that she has massed six or eight motorized divisions on the Hungarian frontier.
4. Hungarian Premier Count Paul Teleki and Foreign Minister Count Stephan Csaky returned to Budapest after inspecting the Lispe oil fields in southwestern Hungary near the Jugo-Slav frontier which are being exploited by the Standard Oil company of New Jersey.

Italian Navy Gets Second New 35,000 Ton Battleship

GENOA, Italy, May 6 (AP).—The 35,000 ton battleship Littoria was turned over to the Italian navy today at the conclusion of her test period. Her sister ship, the Vittorio Veneto, has been put into active service, it was announced last week, as the first of Italy's four new 35,000 ton dreadnaughts.

FREED IN THEFT OF CANNED SOUP.

A plea that he had not eaten all day when he stole five cans of soup from a grocery diisplay won freedom yesterday for William Fagan, 17 years old, of 1418 Grand avenue, in the court of Judge Joseph J. Drucker.

Tension Grows in Balkans

Captions indicate important developments in the Balkans yesterday as observers watched Italy and speculated on the possibility of Mussolini joining the war on the side of Hitler.

British Bolster Fleet in Egypt; Ready to Meet Italian Attack

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt, May 6 (AP).—Newly arrived reinforcements for the French and British battlefleets anchored in Alexandria harbor tonight as British war planes stood with bomb racks loaded for a quick takeoff.

"We are ready to meet Italy on land, sea, and air should she decide to fight," said British official circles as this display of naval and air might spread itself out to defend, in any emergency, the vital Suez canal.

"The test has already started," these sources said of the question whether Italy might decide to fight, hinting the answer was expected within the next week.

British Defiant.

"In fact, the allies' attitude is defiant because it is tantamount to a reply, not to a diplomatic note but rather to a naval demonstration of great significance," they said.

"The allies are fully prepared for any emergency in the fields in which hostilities may take place with Italy, and in event of war being declared, which we still doubt, we are absolutely certain of the final issue of such a conflict."

The "naval demonstration" mentioned, went unexplained. However, observers recalled reports that the Italians recently have concentrated naval forces, as well as land and air troops in the Dodecanese islands, in the Aegean sea, between the Turkish and Greek coasts.

The new squadron of cruisers and auxiliaries arrived today to join battleships, cruisers, destroyers, submarines, and torpedo boats already here. Extraordinary defense precautions also were being taken by the Egyptians, allies of the British by treaty.

The Egyptian coastal defense artillery was just completing a practice cannonade as the last units of the war fleet moved into the harbor.

The Suez canal, Britain's lifeline to her far eastern empire, and the supply line to near eastern forces should Italy block the Mediterranean, was being swept continuously to make sure no mines were planted there.

Soldiers Jam Alexandria.

Governmental orders canceled ordinary visas, and persons entering or leaving the country now must get special permission. All civilians were called upon to declare any fire arms, explosives, or poison gas in their possession. Egypt has a large Italian colony.

Alexandrians casually read newspaper announcements of the first complete antiairraid blackout in Egypt's history, which will last for a week, starting tomorrow.

FREEDOM PERIL IN WAR CITED BY LA FOLLETTE

Philip F. La Follette, former governor of Wisconsin, warned last night that it would mean the end of democracy if the United States were to embark on another war. La Follette spoke before 300 faculty members and students at the annual University of Chicago law school dinner in International house.

A program aimed at preserving present society by solving internal economic problems was urged by La Follette as the proper course rather than that of crossing the sea to go to war.

"No nation is wealthy enough to maintain 20 per cent of its people indefinitely on government subsidy," he said. "We have had 11 years of depression. It no longer can be dismissed as temporary."

FIGURES BRITISH LOST 48 PLANES AND NAZIS 138

LONDON, May 6 (AP).—Reuters, British news agency, today estimated that Great Britain had lost 48 aircraft on all fronts in the last four weeks and Germany 138 "for certain" in the same period.

Reuters' estimate said that in addition 97 German planes were "probably completely destroyed or put out of action for some time."

Reuters' said its figures were based on air ministry and admiralty announcements, authoritative reports in the Norwegian and neutral press, and British news agency and newspaper dispatches.

RUMANIA CLAMPS CENSORSHIP ON NEWS FOR WORLD

Will Pass on All Stories of 'Delicate' Nature.

BY SAM BREWER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUCHAREST, Rumania, May 6.—Propaganda Minister Constantine Giuresco tonight warned foreign correspondents that Rumania has adopted the "postmortem" type of censorship used in Italy. They must submit all "delicate" stories before sending them.

Giuresco called the foreign newspaper men together to the ministry of propaganda and informed them they would be held responsible for whatever their newspapers published under a Bucharest date line.

Writers Face Penalties.

If their newspapers publish items on subjects the Rumanian government considers delicate, and the items have not been approved by the propaganda ministry, Giuresco said, the correspondents will be subject to penalties provided by Rumanian law. These include imprisonment and, for foreigners, expulsion. When in doubt the correspondents must submit their stories. If the ministry denies the facts, they must accept the denial.

When correspondents at the meeting said there had been denials in the past of stories later proved true, Giuresco asserted the Rumanian government never denies stories for reasons of policy.

"Nothing to Hide."

"We do not deny facts for reasons of policy," he said. "We have nothing to hide."

Giuresco said correspondents must decide for themselves what news should be approved before it is sent and, if their home offices refuse to coöperate, should remind them that the man on the spot will be held responsible.

In the present state of Europe, he explained, certain stories could be dangerous for Rumania "and for you." He spoke particularly of stories concerning plots and mass expulsions of foreigners.

WE WANT TO WIN THE PEACE IN THIS WAR, GERMAN YOUTH TOLD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, May 6.—"Germany wants to win not only the war, but also the peace," Germany's minister of education, Bernhard Rust, told the youth of Germany in a radio address today. He warned them that they must study assiduously because at the end of the war "the valuable forces of the occident which hail from a culture that is more than 1,000 years old—not only in Germany — must have new leaders. The German youth must understand this and be prepared for its future duties."

Bernhard Rust.

Glorifying the fighting spirit, Rust said, "when there is not an outer enemy, the most dangerous enemy of the people is their own heedlessness and improvidence."

To those who would want to rest on their laurels, Rust addressed the admonition. "God made the world into a labor and battle ground. Whoever is too weak to face squarely the laws for this battle of life is counted out, as in a boxing ring. All the wealth of this world is like a sporting trophy, the strong will win it and the weak lose it."

FIND NAZI WOMAN SPY PLOTTED TO KILL HITLER FOE

PARIS, May 6.—Carmen Mory, woman spy under death sentence here, was involved with two German accomplices named Erler and Peters in an attempt to assassinate Max Braun, former anti-Nazi leader in the Saar, authorities disclosed tonight.

Braun, after the Saar plebiscite, in which he worked against Adolf Hitler, fled to France. Carmen Mory, Peters, and Erler arrived in Paris later to get information on the news sources of a Paris publication called News from Germany and to assassinate Braun, its director, authorities said.

Peters and Erler, the police added, tried to gain the confidence of Braun, who eluded them. Carmen Mory installed a microphone in a room next to Braun's offices, but failed to get the desired information. Finally Peters and Erler planned to attack Braun in the street. Armed with revolvers they were preparing to shoot him when the French police made the arrest.

The facts about Double Action for your Advertising!

HOW MANY PEOPLE?

WHAT KIND OF PEOPLE?

HOW INTENTLY DO THEY READ?

Here are the facts, boiled down for busy readers

IT'S easy to claim "double action." But it's something else to deliver it. That's why we'd like to point out that it takes a combination of three factors to do the job. It's a matter of:

How many people—
What kind of people—
How much they're interested.

So let's put the glass on these three propositions:

How many people?

Dr. Daniel Starch, noted research authority, after a year's readership check on The American Weekly, found that more than 14,600,000 men and women read it regularly.

It reaches twice as many families as any other magazine in cities of over 1,500,000 population—in cities of 100,000 to 1,500,000—in cities of 25,000 to 100,000. And it goes to more families than any other magazine in cities and towns of 2,500 to 25,000.

What's more, The American Weekly is read by more women than read any women's magazine . . . and by more men than read the next two weekly magazines combined.

What kind of people?

More than half of the 6,050,000* non-relief families throughout the country with incomes of more than $2,000, read The American Weekly—almost twice the number reached by any other magazine. There are also 19,000,000* families with incomes of less than $2,000, and of this group 3½ million read The American Weekly—more than twice the number reached by any other magazine.

Make no mistake, that second group has real purchasing power, too. For proof, look at the fact that 12,000,000 families own electric refrigerators or that more than 8,000,000 automobiles were bought new in the last three years. Both figures far exceed the six million total of people with incomes of more than $2,000.

Are they interested?

In his survey Dr. Starch showed that in 95.6% of all homes where The American Weekly was found, this magazine was read by one or more adults—read from cover to cover, with an intensity unequaled in the publication field.

That intensity is no accident. The American Weekly has an editorial formula that brackets all the basic elements of human interest, deals with real facts about real people—their loves and hates, fears and ambitions—history, archeology, religion, science, invention, medicine, love and romance.

It's a fact!

And considering that The American Weekly provides a color page twice as big as any other magazine at a cost less than ⅓ cent per family reached, this fact stands out:

When The American Weekly talks double action, it's talking circulation, market coverage, readership and page-size—not one, but all of these factors—and that makes its claim a fact!

AMERICAN PLANE POLICY CALLED AID TO EMPIRES

Senators Are Unable to Learn Facts.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 6. — Members of senate committees concerned with the national defense program declared today that there are indications of a major scandal in the Roosevelt administration's policy of subordinating the aircraft requirements of the American army and navy to the desires of Great Britain and France.

Official statements regarding military aircraft production have been so contradictory and so confusing that it has been impossible thus far to piece together a clear picture of what is going on. Some members of the senate military appropriations subcommittee were shocked, therefore, when Maj. Gen. Henry H. Arnold, chief of the air corps, testified that the army has only 2,700 planes, of which all but 52 are obsolete. The 52 planes which are said to be up to date in every respect, in the light of recent lessons in the European war, are bombers.

Total Production 6,000 Planes.

Furthermore, Gen. Arnold told the committee that American aircraft factories would produce and deliver, by June 30, 1941, only 6,000 planes for the army, the navy, and European purchasers. Of this number, he said, the army would receive 2,800, of which 1,900 would be first line combat planes and the others trainers and miscellaneous planes.

The 1,900 combat planes will incorporate all the improved devices resulting from lessons in the European war, such as armor protection for pilots and gunners, heavy caliber guns and self sealing gas tanks.

Senators were astonished by Gen. Arnold's testimony because, on Jan. 12, 1939, President Roosevelt asked congress to authorize an expansion of the air corps by 3,000 planes on the ground of a grave emergency. Changing world conditions, he said, had made it imperative to take "immediate steps for the protection of our liberties." The President repeated the warning in his earlier annual message that "we must have armed forces and defenses strong enough to ward off sudden attack against strategic positions and key facilities essential to insure sustained resistance and ultimate victory."

Congress Votes the Money.

Responding to the President's demand, congress increased the authorized strength of the air corps to 6,000 planes and since that time has appropriated the money to bring it up to 5,500 planes by June 30, 1941.

On the basis of Gen. Arnold's testimony today, however, the army will have—two and one half years after President Roosevelt's emergency message—only 1,900 first line combat planes.

Gen. Arnold's testimony, however, added further confusion to the aircraft procurement situation. About two weeks ago, before the senate naval affairs committee, he testified that the army had contracted for 3,803 planes. This does not necessarily conflict with his testimony that only 2,800 will be delivered by July 1, 1941.

But before the naval affairs committee, he said the air corps expansion program was scheduled for completion by June 30, 1941. At the same time, he testified that by June 30, 1941, the army would have 3,337 planes in operation, of which 1,965 would be combat planes. With 2,700 already on hand, this would leave only 637 to be delivered by July 1, 1941, as contrasted with the statement two weeks ago that 3,803 had been ordered and Gen. Arnold's testimony that 2,800 would be deliever by June 30, 1941.

Disagrees with Woodring.

Gen. Arnold's testimony that only 6,000 planes will be delivered by the American factories to the army, the navy and to foreign purchasers by June 30, 1941, also appeared to refute previous testimony by Secretary of War Harry H. Woodring, Assistant Secretary of War Louis Johnson, and Rear Admiral John H. Towers, chief of the navy bureau of aeronautics.

Defending the administration's program of releasing the latest and most secret types of aircraft to Great Britain and France, Woodring and Johnson repeatedly have declared in speeches and in testimony before congressional committees that the present productive capacity of American factories is 17,000 planes and 13,000 motors a year. They have estimated the annual rate of production at the end of this year at between 30,000 and 40,000 planes.

Before the senate naval affairs committee two weeks ago, Admiral Towers declared that a total of around 2,900 planes had been shipped to all foreign countries since the outbreak of the European war and that 100 went to France before the war started. He said the European countries had 4,000 planes on order.

Discrepancy on Delivery.

Before the same committee, Gen. Arnold agreed with Admiral Towers as to the number of European planes on order, but declared that a total of only 770 had been delivered to Great Britain and France. Since the great bulk of foreign orders go to Britain and France, there was a vast discrepancy between his figures and those given by Admiral Towers.

Besides estimating that only 6,000 American military planes will be delivered to all purchasers by June 30, 1941, Gen. Arnold gave some figures to the senate naval affairs committee on actual production which tend to deflate the estimates made by Woodring and Johnson.

The actual production of American plants in March, 1940, according to Gen. Arnold's figures, was 80 planes for the American army, 23 for the American navy, and 193 for foreign purchasers. The estimated production for July, 1940, according to Gen. Arnold's figures, is 227 for the American army, 55 for the American navy, and 290 for foreign purchasers.

No "Emergency" Planes Delivered.

Of the airplanes ordered early in 1939 under President Roosevelt's "emergency" expansion program, not one has been delivered to the army air corps. Some 600 ordered by the army would have been delivered by now, but they were released for sale to Great Britain and France.

Furthermore, there is no assurance in any of the official testimony that the army will take delivery of 1,900 combat planes by June 30, 1941. Testifying before the senate military affairs committee on a resolution by Senator Robert M. La Follette [P., Wis.] to investigate the aircraft release policy, Secretary Woodring explained that the army had ordered 524 Curtiss P-40 pursuit planes when the European war broke out and that 324 of these were released for sale to France on the assurance of the company that the army would receive an improved type.

However, Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff, testified before the military affairs committee that the army may not take all the 324 improved Curtiss planes. It is probable, "in fact almost certain," he said, "that of those 324—by the time the manufacturer gets half or three-quarters of the way thru with that order, there may come still another better plane."

Empires Get Benefit.

Out of all this confusing testimony, according to senators on the national defense committees, only one thing is clear: American aircraft production is being stimulated by the placing and replacing of army and navy orders for the purpose of filling the needs of Great Britain and France.

On the basis of the record, according to some senators, the conclusion is inescapable that President Roosevelt had the requirements of Great Britain and France in mind when he demanded the so-called emergency air corps expansion authorization in January, 1939.

Mothers' Styles

Mother's day hair styles for mothers from 20 to 60 years old were displayed last night at a meeting of the Chicago and Illinois Hairdressers' association at the Hotel Sherman.

Mrs. Ann Baum, 6731 Jeffery avenue, modeled the style suggested for mothers of 60. White hair, the experts said, should always be shaped more closely to the head. Mrs. Baum's coiffure featured the use of more waves and fewer curls, with the part on the right side and the crown smooth.

Mrs. Lorraine Lauterbach, 1239 South 48th court, Cicero, modeled the style for young mothers. Her hair was brought back from the face on both sides. Pin curls on top of the forehead were brushed into a loose, modified pompadour effect.

AIR BLITZKRIEG PERILS DEFENSE IN WAR GAMES

Planes Swoop Down for Surprise Attack.

Alexandria, La., May 6 (AP).—Acting boldly to command the air and destroy communications, the air force of an invading Red army swept down from Barksdale field at Shreveport today to "bomb" the Mississippi river bridge at Vicksburg and attack pursuit planes of a Blue force concentrated at McComb, Miss.

Meanwhile, scout planes drove eastward on reconnaissance flights. They sought to spot defending Blue motorized forces rushing to halt an invasion from the southwest in the first phase of extensive war games involving 70,000 regular army troops.

The Red air forces jumped off ahead of schedule. As a result [in accordance with war department plans] they caught the Blue army napping, and the Blues theoretically were in a precarious position tonight.

Blues on the March.

The plot for the war games assumes that the Sabine river between Louisiana and Texas is the common boundary of two nations, the Blues [east] and the Reds [west]. The Blue army, represented by 40,000 troops, is moving from Fort Benning, Ga., to meet an expected invasion by the Red army, represented by 30,000 soldiers.

Defense against the modern blitzkrieg tactics of motorized and mechanized troops supported by planes will feature the war games, which will extend thru May 25.

Blue forces were on the march all thru Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, and Louisiana.

There is nothing theoretical about the marching, which will bring the completely motorized and mechanized forces, including infantry and tanks, more than 700 miles in four to five days. Stonewall Jackson's confederate foot soldiers, famous for their forced marches, once set a record of 52 miles in a day, but in no such numbers or with such equipment as Uncle Sam is using in the thrust across Dixie at a rate of more than 150 miles per day.

More than 9,000 American Legionnaires and civilian observers had been hastily enlisted by the Blue government to watch for planes thruout the area.

Warns Planes to Fly High!

Birmingham, Ala., May 6 (AP).—Col. William Pritchard, directing Alabama's aircraft warning service during the army war games, fears some north Alabama observers may become too enthusiastic when hostile aircraft are spotted. The colonel quoted from a letter from a Lawrence county observer: "We got this thing set up so thin turkey buzzards couldn't get across this county without getting bombarded with buckshot. Better tell the enemy bombers to keep their altitude, else some of our old rugged individualists out there in Black Warrior national forest will bring 'em to earth with a squirrel rifle."

Fear Corporal Drowned.

Georgetown, Miss., May 6 (AP).—Preparations for the army's huge war maneuvers in Texas and Louisiana may have claimed the life of Corp. Walter France, 25 years old, one of 11 men who parachuted Saturday from a damaged transport plane into Pearl river swamp here. Corp. France, of St. Louis, Mo., and 10 companions bailed out of the C-33 transport bearing troops from Selfridge Field, Mich., after the plane had wrecked its undercarriage while trying to land at McComb, Miss.

TRAPPER IS ARRESTED.

Iron River, Mich., May 6 [Special].—Three uniformed conservation officers waited 24 hours for Alex Wagner, 40, to return at dawn to his home where he had concealed 24 beaver, muskrat, and otter hides. They seized the hides. Wagner paid $60 fine and costs after pleading guilty.

Seek Blood Donor to Save Streptococcus Victim

Blood donors were sought yesterday for Mrs. Anna Mae Carr, 22 years old, of Highland, Ind., who is in St. Margaret's hospital in Hammond suffering from subacute endocarditis caused by a streptococcus viridans infection. Dr. J. L. Van Drunen of Lansing, Ill., said that only persons who have recovered from the ailment will be suitable for a blood transfusion.

FALSE TEETH That Loosen Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wabbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Holds false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Dear Sir:

I have just completed an analysis of advertising costs and results which I think you will find interesting.

During 1939, we sold 68 properties which amounted to $415,000.00 in gross sales. Forty-two of these sales, totaling $241,000.00, were directly traceable to Tribune want ads.

We spent $416.10 in other media with meagre results.

As noted in the table, our Tribune advertising cost is about one-half of 1% - by far the lowest of any sales method we use.

Sales Traceable to	Total Sales	No. of Properties	Cost of Sales	Cost per Property	Percentage Cost
Personal Solicitation	$24,000	4	$1,200.00	$300.00	5%
Good-will	131,500	18	2,976.00	165.00	2¼%
Signs on Bldgs.	15,100	3	150.00	50.00	1%
Other Media	3,000	1	416.10	416.10	13.87%
Tribune Ads	241,400	42	1,394.60	33.20	57/100 of 1%
Totals	$415,000	68	$6,136.70	$90.24(Avg.)	1½%(Avg.)

I am sincere when I tell you it is my belief that it would be difficult for us to stay in business if it were not for a good newspaper like the Chicago Tribune.

Yours very truly,

STUDY OF YEAR'S OPERATIONS SHOWS SUPERIORITY OF WANT ADVERTISING AS A BUSINESS-GETTER FOR REALTORS

ROYL G. KNIGHT

Every real estate man determined to make 1940 a more profitable year will find the way marked out for him in the accompanying letter. Every dealer in used cars, household furniture, musical instruments and other widely sold commodities can find in it a success formula which he can supply with equal effect in his own field.

When you make want advertising in the Tribune the mainstay of your promotion, you concentrate your sales efforts in the one medium which will sell property not only at by far the lowest of any of the known means of selling real estate, but also in sufficient volume to increase sales and build profits.

You will note from the letter above that while there are methods which produce sales at a low cost per sale, these methods are incapable of producing in sufficient volume to enable the operator to stay in business.

Mr. Knight's experience proves that other forms of advertising not only cost more but are far less productive than Tribune want ads. Tribune want advertising is the one medium which produces a satisfactory volume and at the same time does so at a cost which is lower than that of any other known means.

Every day of the week, the Tribune has more than 1,000,000 circulation. Right in Chicago and suburbs, the Tribune, every day of the week, sells more than 800,000 copies. This is from 335,000 to 500,000 more copies than are sold in metropolitan Chicago by other Chicago newspapers.

Every day of the week, people in all walks of life turn to the Tribune want ad section, attracted by the volume and variety of offers they find there. Presenting more want advertising than all other Chicago newspapers combined, it is the recognized market place in which many generations of Chicagoans have been accustomed to buy, lease and trade.

If you want more sales, ask a Tribune representative to help you plan a consistant schedule of advertising in the Tribune want ad section. Call SUPerior 0100—today.

DOUGHBOY'S NEW WEAPON BLASTED AFTER FIRE TEST

Rifle Association Holds Garand Is Inaccurate.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 6.—The National Rifle association today reported the results of tests disclosing serious fundamental defects of the Garand semiautomatic shoulder rifle with which the American army now is being equipped. The defects, according to the association, establish the grave inadequacy of the weapon for battle use.

Gen. M. A. Reckord.

Gen. M. A. Reckord, head of the association, a private organization, said that "in view of the defects revealed in these tests" he and his associates would press for investigation and improvement on the newly adopted arm to insure the American soldier having the most efficient military rifle that can be manufactured. The investigation would extend to the war department's rejection of the rival Johnson semiautomatic rifle.

Charges Weapon Is Inaccurate.

The rifle association stated that exhaustive tests had disclosed "amazing inaccuracies in the army's much-publicized semiautomatic shoulder rifle, the Garand, even at the mid-combat ranges of 300 yards." The maximum inaccuracy at this range was said to have been five feet.

War department officials declined to comment on the rifle association's tests beyond repeating testimony before congressional committees that the Garand rifle was selected because it is the best combat weapon so far devised.

Army officers have admitted the inaccuracy of the Garand at ranges exceeding 600 yards, but pronounced it inherently as accurate as the Springfield rifle, which the Garand was chosen to supplant. The rifle association reported that its tests have demolished this contention.

Barrel Warps, Critics Hold.

"The tests demonstrated how the doughboy with his rifle perfectly sighted and aimed at the target 300 yards away may well be hitting five feet under his aim, or when, attempting to hit his target near the ground at 300 yards, the impact might be far short of his mark and the shot dissipated in the terrain from 50 to 200 yards in front of him," the association asserted.

"The heating up of the lighter barrel, reduced in size to cut down on weight, and its warping as a result of this heat when used in any prolonged firing to provide that 'fire power' so often referred to, is offered as the explanation for this inaccuracy," said the rifle association.

"The tests, which included firing at a relatively slow rate, about one shot a minute, or 272 shots in an elapsed time of four hours, showed this heating, in addition to the more serious charge in sighting, to the extent of charring the wood surrounding the poorly ventilated barrel which serves as part of the hand guard.

Barrel Is Redesigned.

"When fired at the rate of some 40 shots per minute, of which the rifle is admittedly capable, heating results just that much more rapidly with its correspondingly rapid buckling and inaccuracy. Then, as the barrel is allowed to cool off, it may again come back to its original point of aim."

The house military affairs committee last March investigated reports that it had been necessary to redesign the barrel of the Garand after 28,000 rifles had been turned out. Maj. Gen. C. M. Wesson, chief of ordnance, testified that the redesigning was of a minor character to strengthen the front end of the weapon for bayonet support. He said such improvements contantly were being made in all weapons.

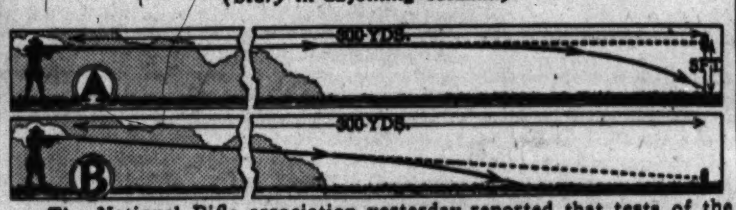
The army now has 40,000 Garands in use and the Springfield arsenal is turning them out at the rate of 200 a day. The Winchester Arms company is yet to start on its contract for 65,000. Funds so far appropriated will provide a total of 170,000 of the new rifles. The war department goal is 241,000 by June, 1942.

Mexico Puts Temporary Ban on Spanish Refugees

MEXICO CITY, May 6.—Political agitation against the admission of more Spanish refugees has resulted in a government order banning further immigration temporarily. It was said 2,000 refugees who were ready to embark from France have been returned to concentration camps.

Reveal Garand Rifle Test Results

(Story in adjoining column.)



The National Rifle association yesterday reported that tests of the army's new Garand rifle show that when aimed at a target 300 yards away the bullet "may well be hitting five feet under the target," as in diagram A. In the diagrams the aim is indicated by broken line and the flight of the bullet by solid line. The report added that when the rifle was aimed at a target near the ground at 300 yards the shot may be dissipated in terrain from "50 to 200 yards" in front of rifle, as shown in B.

BRITAIN TO HALVE BUTTER RATION AND CUT SUGAR

Feels Effect of Nazis' Drive in Scandinavia.

BY JOSEPH CERUTTI.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 6.—Economic effects of the war on Britain were intensified by Germany's invasion of Denmark and Norway. Loss of the Scandinavian markets is becoming daily more apparent in renewed efforts of the government controlers to cut domestic consumption and official forecasts of greater sacrifices and privations.

Britons were told today that:

1. The butter ration shortly will be cut 50 per cent.
2. Less sugar will be released for domestic use.
3. The food ministry is considering the introduction of a standard type of bread for the wartime.
4. The government control of light alloys needed for aircraft manufacture is being tightened.

Butter Ration Now Eight Ounces.

The prospective changes in the rationing scheme were announced by Lord Woolton, the food minister. A Briton now is allowed eight ounces of butter a week. A ration of four ounces was ordered at the start of the war but this was doubled on March 25. At the present controled price, 1 shilling 7 pence [about 26 cents] a pound, many workers find butter beyond the reach of their purses.

Woolton did not specify when the new restrictions will take effect nor the extent to which the sugar ration, now 12 ounces a week a person, will be cut. He indicated, however, that the changes are likely to be enforced soon. Defending the decision, he said his job is to make sure that Britain has "something in the cupboard for the dark days that might come."

Debate Bread Problem.

The food ministry is seeking to reconcile conflicting interests, Woolton indicated, before introducing a standard whole wheat bread as in the world war. There is a shortage of animal feeding stuffs and the government must decide whether the gain from using whole wheat instead of the kernel only in bread would counterbalance the loss to animals.

Concern is expressed in industrial circles over the shortage of certain essential war materials. Sir Alfred Herbert, controler of machines and tools in the world war, recently warned that the situation likely would get worse and demanded that Britain follow Germany's lead and produce substitutes.

It was announced tonight that the air ministry has taken over control of light alloys and set up a committee under Brig. Gen. H. A. Jones to regulate their manufacture and distribution.

R. J. BISCHOFF, WHO ADMITTED 4½ MILLION FRAUD, SEIZED AGAIN

Davenport, Ia., May 6 [Special].—Raymond J. Bishoff, who 18 years ago admitted having defrauded Chicagoans of 4½ million dollars, was arrested here today on a charge of passing a worthless check for $12. It was the second such charge in five years. He was arrested in Chicago in February, 1935, on worthless check charges.

Bischoff, a native of Davenport, was 23 years old when he went to Chicago shortly after the world war and induced several thousand persons, mostly Lithuanians in the stockyards district, to turn their savings over to him for investment. When investors failed to get big profits they complained and he was arrested for fraud. This earned for him the name of "Chicago Ponzi."

Bischoff was arrested in 1922 and jumped bond. He was caught two years later in California and returned to Illinois for trial. A jury convicted him in Chicago in April, 1925, and he was sentenced to prison for 1 to 10 years. The Illinois Supreme court reversed the conviction and he never was tried again. After Bischoff's arrest his available assets were seized and turned over to a trustee. Investors received about five cents for every dollar they had given him.

ACCUSED OF MOLESTING GIRL.

CARDINAL TELLS OF NAZI BLOW AT POLAND'S CHURCH

VATICAN CITY, May 6 (AP).—German persecution of Polish Catholics was charged again today by the Polish embassy to the Vatican in a purported summary of a report to Pope Pius XII. by Cardinal August Hlond, primate of Poland.

The embassy's statement alleged Germany was trying to eradicate Catholicism in the Nazi-held parts of Poland and attempting to destroy the Polish people, particularly the leading classes, by deportation, shooting, and financial ruin.

[Informed sources in Berlin have declared that church activities in areas recently occupied by Germany, particularly in the regions of Poland under German control, continue without interruption and are little affected by political developments.]

39 Priests Reported Killed.

The Polish embassy's statement said German speaking families from the Italian Tyrol were being sent to Poland in a plan to Germanize it.

The embassy quoted Cardinal Hlond as reporting the death of 39 priests in six dioceses by shooting or torture in prison.

In Chelmo diocese, it said, he reported the cathedral had been converted into a garage, the bishop's palace into a hotel, and its chapel into a ballroom.

Many Deported or Jailed.

All but 20 of 650 priests have been deported or imprisoned, nine have been shot, and two have died in prison, the embassy added, alleging that most churches have been reported closed, "Catholic life almost entirely extinguished" and Catholic societies disbanded.

The embassy said the cardinal reported that half the priests of Lodz diocese were deported or imprisoned. Ten, including a bishop, were alleged to have been tortured in a concentration camp. The embassy mentioned other dioceses where, it said, the cardinal reported similar conditions. This was the second of such reports to be issued.

BLUE EYES WIN BLOSSOM CROWN AND A $50 BET

The Skeptic Was Queen's Own Brother.

BY IRENE STEYSKAL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Benton Harbor, Mich., May 6 [Special].—Joan Payne, a blue eyed, curly haired miss from Three Rivers tonight was chosen queen of southwestern Michigan's 18th annual blossom festival.

She won out over 21 rivals. Attractive as Miss Payne admittedly is, the judges had no easy task in arriving at a verdict. As one judge explained it, "They were all so pretty!" Not until the 12th ballot was the winner decided upon.

Each Contestant Cheered.

The 22 contestants, each representing a community in the spring blossom area, appeared before the judges and an enthusiastic audience in the Liberty theater here. Each was supported by a lusty cheering section in the audience.

At 11 p. m. the judges went into a huddle. Among them was Miss Patricia Donnelly of Detroit, chosen Miss America at Atlantic City last year. They reduced the field of contestants to three, then required four final ballots to eliminate two of these and select the winner—Miss Payne.

Miss Payne is 18 years old, 5 feet 4 inches tall, and weighs 109 pounds. She is a high school senior. She is the fifth of nine children of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Payne. She was born in Oak Park, Chicago suburb. Her victory, she said jubilantly, was doubly welcome because a brother had bet her $50 she would not be chosen queen.

Her Maids of Honor.

Close competition was given to Miss Payne by Miss Esther Klann, 19 years old, of St. Joseph, and Miss Dorothy Marian Sturtevant, also 19, of Muskegon. Miss Klann was voted No. 2 and Miss Sturtevant No. 3 on the judges' scorecard. Both are taller and heavier than Miss Payne. They will serve as Miss Payne's maids of honor.

Tomorrow night in Filstrup field Miss Payne will be formally crowned. There will be a parade of 400 school children and other colorful spectacles. Miss Payne will reign as queen thruout the festival, which will wind up with a big parade on Saturday.

SHIP INVOLVED IN SUB MYSTERY RUNS AGROUND

HALIFAX, N. S., May 6 (AP).—Fishermen today reported that only the bow of the 3,683 ton British freighter Craig remained above water after she went aground on Flint ledge, 25 miles east of Halifax harbor, in a pea-soup fog Saturday night. The fishermen said the Craig's crew was safe on Egg Island, and that one man was injured.

Arrow locates where ship is aground.

The Craig last month was the center of a mysterious scare when, approximately 800 miles out of New York, she radioed "Sub coming close." An hour later a Canadian radio station, without further explanation, announced: "Distress all cleared up."

MEAN THIEF PUTS SCOTTISH CLAN IN DIRE DILEMMA

MacDuff clan No. 16 of the Scotch fraternal organization of that name, appeared to be in dire straits last night. Some mean thief broke into the automobile of a member at 71st street and Wentworth avenue and stole 16 plaids, 18 nickel plated shoulder brooches, and 16 Glengarry bonnets.

The articles were to be worn at a clan competition in Detroit on Saturday. Clan No. 16 won't be able to compete unless the articles are recovered—or new ones are purchased. New ones would cost $275.

IN A TRADE IT'S THE MONEY DIFFERENCE THAT COUNTS

GET THIS ITEMIZED INVOICE WHEN YOU BUY AND

- ✓ Know what you're paying;
- ✓ Know what you're getting;
- ✓ See the value in the car;
- ✓ See all items in the price.

MOST people who buy automobiles these days have an old car to trade in. And many of them think they get the best "deal" when they buy where they get the biggest allowance for that car.

But as you can easily see, what really matters in a trade is the money difference between the old-car allowance and the new-car delivered price.

For the new-car delivered price may be "packed"—an extra amount may be slipped in to provide for a bigger allowance on the old car.

You think you get a better deal—but you may find you are actually paying out more money in the end.

It's easy to see the money difference you pay when you buy from a General Motors dealer.

Big price charts on our walls and "plainview" price tags on our cars show all items in our delivered prices—the charge for the car itself, the charge for transportation, based on rail rates, our charge for extra equipment or accessories you elect to buy.

In addition, we give you an itemized invoice when you buy. This provides the same detailed information, and further shows how much we allow for your old car, and clearly states the money difference to be paid.

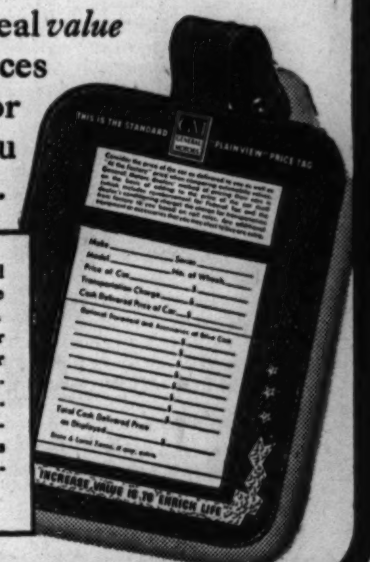
They all help you buy on real value instead of used-car allowances alone. Come in and see for yourself how they help you get the most for your money.

This is the standard price tag used by General Motors dealers to show what makes up the prices of new cars delivered to customers. "PRICE OF CAR" means the price we charge for the car itself, including reimbursement for Federal Tax and conditioning—"TRANSPORTATION CHARGE" means a charge for transportation from factory to you, based on rail rates—"OPTIONAL EQUIPMENT AND ACCESSORIES" means the charge for any extra equipment or accessories you elect to buy.



BEFORE YOU BUY, BE SURE THE FINANCE CHARGES SATISFY YOU

This is a BLUE RIBBON Country

Count your blessings.

This is the best place on earth!

Your ballot is louder than the thunder of dictators, isn't it? . . . You can have all the butter you want on your toast, can't you? . . . And listen to whatever you like on your radio?

You've never been hit in the teeth with the butt of a musket, have you, and kicked into the gutter, just because someone didn't happen to like the color of your skin, or the texture of your hair, or the shape of your cheek bones?

You haven't heard of anybody starving in concentration camps over here, have you?

You aren't afraid to discuss the state of the nation over the backyard fence with your next door neighbor, are you?

Your street still rings with the laughter of children, doesn't it?

Your flower-beds haven't been dug up to make bomb-proofs, have they? Or black cloth put over your windows—or sand bags piled on your front porch—there's been no blackout in America, has there?

Your God is still mightier than your Government, isn't He?

In short—you're still your own man! Chin up, and face to the wind!

Let us hold fast to our faith in America; and never forget that this is

New York, May 6. — Bundles for Britain, kits for Canada, packs for pollus—the ladies are industriously knitting up and down Park avenue and other fashionable thorofares in New York City for the boys over there.

These groups form an important flanking movement in the "get America into the war" propaganda drive. The direct frontal attack, meanwhile, is being carried on by British lecturers and writers, reinforced by Americans who are urging that this country take more drastic steps to help out the cause of the empires.

Hands Across Sea.

A hookup with international society is most helpful in carrying out the "hands across the sea" campaign on American shores. Thus it is that two famous expatriates, the duchess of Windsor and Lady Mendl, are prime movers in Les Colis de Trianon-Versailles.

This organization furnishes kits of clothes, tobacco, candy, and toilet goods for French pollus. In the United States it is headed by Mrs. Harrison Williams, recently acclaimed by Parisian dressmakers as one of the best garbed women in the world, and assisted by Mrs. Ector Munn and Mrs. Anthony Cassatt, New York society women.

Bundles for Britain fund has as its honorary representative in England none other than Mrs. Winston Churchill, wife of the first lord of the admiralty. The marquess of Lothian, British ambassador to the United States, graced a recent dinner of the organization with his presence and made a speech.

13,000 Articles of Clothing.

President of Bundles is Mrs. Wales Latham, a mainstay of the younger social set in the city. According to an announcement last week by Mrs. Latham, more than 13,000 articles of clothing have already been collected in this country for the use of British seamen patroling the North sea.

Lady Willoughby Carey of London arrived in New York a few days ago and frankly announced she was here to collect $50,000 for the Brtish Service Musical Instrument fund.

Members and guests of the American Friends of France, headed by Anne Morgan, sister of J. P. Morgan, the financier, attended an auction and punch bowl party here on Wednesday afternoon. Prizes were awarded to contributors to the fund for war relief work among the French civilian population.

Mrs. Seton Porter, wife of the president of the National Distillers Products corporation, is the founder and guiding genius of Le Paquet au Front, which is sending kits to poilus in the Maginot line. The Foyer Defense Contre Avion recently held a cabaret party for the benefit of men of the antiaircraft posts guarding Paris, Les Amities Feminines de la France had a tea for the benefit of civilian war victims and the Lafayette fund is busy sending kits to French soldiers.

Volunteer Ambulance Corps.

The American Volunteer Ambulance corps, Inc., has 20 ambulances and drivers at the western front and is seeking additional funds and volunteers.

A dinner-dance in aid of Kits for Canada, an organization raising money for Canadian relief, recently was staged. An Anzac war relief fund has just been organized in New York and will be affiliated with the British War Relief society here thru which gifts are sent to the Australian-New Zealand military forces abroad.

Numerous groups are seeking funds for British and French children. Among these organizations which are appealing for American dollars and sympathy are the following:

Foster Parents' Plan for War Children, American Auxiliary Hospital in Mougins, Preventorium Lafayette, L'Aide Lafayette, International Committee for the Aid of the Children of France, the Aid for the Wives and Children of French Aviators, and Huntingdon Evacuated Children's fund.

The English Speaking union, a leading pro-British organization in the United States, has been sponsoring a plan for the transportation of evacuated English children to this country.

A new judge, Harold P. O'Connell, appeared in Safety court yesterday. And so did Stanley de Korwen Young, 27 years old, heir to the mercantile fortune of Otto Young, Chicago pioneer.

Judge O'Connell took the place of Judge Frank M. Padden, who last week declared forfeit the $200 bond of the son of Count Joseph de Korwen of Austria and Mrs. Ruth Young when he failed to appear three times to answer a charge of driving while intoxicated. Attorney Lawrence Dowd said Young had been in New York and asked for a continuance. The judge reset the case for May 21 despite objections.

John S. Meagher, 46, of 1904 West 51st street, was sentenced to 10 days in the Bridewell and his driving privileges suspended for 30 days on a charge of driving while intoxicated. Police said they saw his car weaving in traffic at 84th street and South Chicago avenue Sunday.

COUNTY GIVES UP ITS FIGHT FOR TAX PREJUDGING LAW

Cook county yesterday abandoned its effort to prove the 1939 tax preadjudication law valid. Marshall V. Kearney, assistant state's attorney who defended the law before the Illinois Supreme court, said the county will not ask a rehearing of the case in which the court on April 17 held the law invalid. A petition for a rehearing would be useless, he said, since the court opinion was 6 to 1.

The preadjudication law provided that protests against tax levies by the county's six major governments should be ruled upon by the Circuit court before tax bills were issued. Reductions ordered by the court would be allowed for all taxpayers.

With the 1939 law knocked out, objections will not be heard until tax bills are issued, and only the taxpayers who have filed protests will share the reductions.

Phoenix and Posen Sued for 10 Year Water Bills

The city of Harvey yesterday filed suit in circuit court against the villages of Phoenix and Posen, which buy their water from Harvey, for their ten year old bills. Phoenix owes $37,869 and Posen $10,896.

DRIVER KILLED AS HIS CAR AND TRUCK COLLIDE

Francis McCarthy of Delavan, Wis., a liquor salesman, was injured fatally yesterday when his automobile collided with an excavating truck on Rand road, a mile south of Wauconda. He was hurled 30 feet and died two hours later in Condell Memorial hospital in Libertyville.

Charles Dazlin of Wauconda, driver of the truck, was uninjured. He told State Highway Policeman Anthony Seisser that McCarthy must have fallen asleep at the wheel. McCarthy was 28 years old.

Albert E. Vollman, 30, of 374 Silver street, Elgin, died Sunday night in St. Joseph's hospital of injuries suffered early in the day when he was struck by an automobile in route 20, east of Elgin. The driver was Irving Scheen of Bartlett.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 291 persons had been killed in auto accidents in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 223 were killed in Chicago, where 7,209 were injured in traffic accidents during the same period.

The city council's committee on traffic yesterday directed a subcommittee under Ald. Arthur G. Lindell [9th] to study pedestrian control measures in use in other large cities. Ald. MR. ROOSEVELT'S DEMARCHE.

French and British commentators found significance in what they called Mr. Roosevelt's intervention in the Mediterranean situation last week. Americans haven't been informed. They do not know what Ambassador William Phillips was instructed to say to Premier Mussolini and his foreign minister, Count Ciano. At the same time there were conversations in Washington with the Italian ambassador. The intimations were that Mr. Roosevelt in diplomatic secrecy was again exerting American influence in some fashion in Europe's affairs. People here were left to guess what it was all about and could surmise that Italy's government was having suggested to it the many disadvantages of going to war.

French commentators referred to Mr. Roosevelt's Mediterranean action as his démarche, a word which some of our diplomats may be pleased to incorporate in their vocabularies. It gets a great play all thru the ominous diplomatic procedures preceding each of the succession of events involving Austria, Czecho-Slovakia, and Poland. American foreign policy, when it is safe, doesn't need the word, but the White House, which is ambitious to adopt the practices, may be glad to accept the phraseology.

The French and British, naturally, make the most of each of Mr. Roosevelt's appearances on the foreign scene. Intervention of any kind is intervention, and each in British and French hopes means a closer association of the United States with their stake in events. Mr. Roosevelt times his approaches to the European situation with a sense of political opportunism. With the nominating season rapidly advancing the country might as well be prepared for some spectacular stroke calculated to draw world attention again to Washington, D. C. and the occupant of the White House, who would like to be more certain that he cannot refuse a third term.

American public opinion may be beguiled into thinking that these maneuvers around the margin of the European war are useful and helpful. Quiet reflection would convince any one that they cannot be. The time when the good offices of a neutral country could be offered reasonably is nowhere in sight. Hitler and his Nazis, probably overimpressed by their several sensational successes, are jubilant. It is no doubt more a political exuberance for propaganda effect both at home and abroad than a state of mind sustained by German military opinion. The German military men know the history of Britain's wars too well to be unduly impressed by the failures which first attend British military effort. The Nazi exclamation that now the road is clear to an invasion of England was not an echo of military thought.

Peace is apparently remote in Europe's prospects and unless the American peacemakers have information which is nowhere else disclosed all the efforts directed from Washington are merely approaches to the war, disguised as approaches to a peace. This approach is particularly dangerous because its ostensible purpose is one of humanity and of service to stricken peoples. America thus far has been protected against the incidents so frequently affecting a neutral position. Our state department has been required to write protests only to the British, and these complaints regarding the treatment of American mails and commerce have been pro forma rather than purposive.

The dangerous incidents which accumulated in the other world war are missing and the belligerents seem determined to give America no just cause for hostility. The British know that the prevailing American sympathy for them will permit them to enforce regulations, even if technically violative of some American rights. The Germans seem to have learned something from their experiences in 1917-'18. If these dispositions continue, American neutrality should be easy to preserve. No cause is presented for American intervention of any kind, but our government continues to explore dangerous ground, arousing hopes on one side that the full measure of assistance will be forthcoming when all the overtures from Washington have been flatly rejected.

When a procedure takes logical steps to a logical conclusion, the assumption must be that the purpose finally achieved was the purpose in mind in the beginning. If that formula is applied to the course of American diplomacy abroad now, the conclusion would be that these are all preparatory measures leading to the participation of America in the war in Europe.

A NEED FOR BEAUTY.

Mr. Jens Jensen, whose love of beauty and whose skill in finding it in nature gave color and form to Chicago parks and gardens a generation ago, believes country schools and schoolyards should be islands of beauty and brightness that would inspire the countryside to a higher standard. He sees evidence of a world need for a more personal application of the paint brush and hoe handle. He is depressed by unneeded drabness.

There is so much soundness in a suggestion this master of natural beauty made after a recent drive from his retreat in Door county, Wisconsin, that we pass along for wider circulation parts of a private letter he wrote.

Mr. Jensen half a lifetime ago was superintendent of Chicago's small parks. He is president of the society of Friends of Our Native Landscape. It was the absence of signs of care about the country schoolhouses that depressed him during his drive.

"Is there no hope for lovely fitting buildings and beautiful schoolyards?" he wrote. "Who is at fault?

"In these days of confusion, of strife and intolerance it is well to think about this. If half the theories taught in the classroom were thrown in the ash can and more instruction given about the soil to which we belong and from which all growth comes, the rural folks would be wiser and the result would be beautiful farms, fields, and first of all beautiful schools. The result would be a more happy and contented people."

The artistic eye of the landscape gardener was pleased because many homes showed signs of better surroundings, a little fresh paint, a garden; things neatly raked. "I presume it is where mother is boss," he wrote. "What an improvement it makes not only to the farm but to the whole countryside. Perhaps our farmers are learning that if the farm is not a place to make money, it is a place to make a good home."

The observations were aroused by the rural countryside, but the absence of individual attempt to produce beauty and charm is as apparent everywhere.

These are days of confusion, of strife and intolerance. There are world conditions that the individual can do little to relieve. A paint brush or a hoe handle or a rake will contribute to ease a sense of frustration and the results will pay a manifold reward.

FIFTH COLUMN TACTICS.

The fifth or New Deal column in Washington has prevented any amendment of the wage-hour law at this session of congress.

The law was hastily enacted in the first place. Reasoned suggestions have been made for amending it. The aim was not to destroy the law but to make it more workable and less onerous to administer.

The doctrinaires of the New Deal resolved to prevent any alteration of their law. The tactics adopted were typical. The bill was loaded with confusing and conflicting amendments to the point where many who favored the principle of minimum wages and maximum hours and wanted the law improved found themselves obliged to vote against the amendments and many of those who wanted to kill the law voted for the amendments.

The house was bewildered and in consequence the law remains on the books unchanged. The doctrinaires have their victory. Mr. Roosevelt may have made it the sweeter for them by his denunciation of the house for fumbling. The New Dealers, having created the confusion, now seek to blame it on the congressmen. That is also good fifth column strategy, for it may serve to weaken the faith of the people in representative government.

APHRODITE SCORES AGAIN.

Miss Lutie Stearns, who was among Wisconsin's leaders in the fight for woman suffrage a generation ago, is inclined to doubt whether the victory was worth the trouble. She had expected woman's influence would profoundly alter the character of American politics. "I firmly believed," she said the other day, "that women would vote only for those candidates who would do the most for humanity. Instead, they inherit their politics from their fathers. They rush into politics without knowing a plank in a political platform from a planked whitefish, and they spend their time playing bridge instead of preparing themselves to vote intelligently."

One of the great advantages of maintaining a skeptical attitude toward political reforms is the avoidance of just such disappointments as Miss Stearns has experienced. She might have spared herself much if she had reminded herself before and during the battle that Athene, the Radcliffe cum laude, tho an admirable girl with a most active and alert intellect, was nevertheless somewhat limited in other directions. On the other hand, Aphrodite never got past the sixth grade—in school—but she won the golden apple and the title of Miss Pagan Goddess. Her sarong, had she worn one, would still be treasured. Her measurements are standard. Gentlemen for much the most part preferred Aphrodite. The sentiment was reciprocated.

Some day when we have more time we hope to get around to telling Miss Stearns about the Trojan war. It was quite a long war in which Athene's brain work and Hera's capacity for sustained indignation finally triumphed over the wayward charm of Aphrodite, the home girl, but when it was all over Aphrodite still retained her hold on men's imaginations and women conducted themselves accordingly.

The struggle for woman suffrage was something like that. Middle aged gentlemen may recall the parade of young Athenes and mature Heras in the rain on Michigan avenue. It was magnificent and it was a war, but when the battle was won things remained pretty much as they had always been.

Aphrodite was interested in private rather than public affairs. She almost never read the bulletins of the council on foreign relations and it is by no means certain that she was even on the mailing list. She gave only the slightest attention to the problems of corporate monopoly and local transportation. She left those things to Athene, but somehow managed to outmaneuver her.

Any one who had this history firmly in mind could not have been astonished to learn that the woman suffrage which Athene brought in was promptly swiped by Aphrodite.

Editorial of the Day

COMPLETE ANSWER.

[Tulsa, Okla., Tribune.]

In one short sentence Mr. Dewey, the aggressive candidate for the Republican nomination, answered all the political questions that can be raised this November. When interviewed by a group of interrogating newspaper correspondents one writer for a newspaper committed to the New Deal asked Mr. Dewey, "Do you think taxes can be reduced and still hope to balance the national budget?" The young chap who put the question stated it with the delighted assurance that he had put a poser.

Smilingly, Mr. Dewey replied, "Certainly, that can be done just as soon as the American people again believe that they can govern themselves."

And that's all there is to it. The New Deal master has taught, and to an alarming extent has convinced, the unthinking American voters that they can no longer govern themselves, that they must put themselves in the hands of some all wise administrator who will benevolently run their government for them.

SAD FATE OF A HORSE PLAYER.

[In the style of Damon Runyon.]

Now, horses are no more to me than huge, coarse animals with hard feet that cops use to push you around with; and I know a lot of guys who get the hat passed for them when they haul off and die, just because they like horses and put up their potatoes on them, whatever the odds. So I always say, "Horses are not my racket, and besides, they wake me up before daylight, pulling milk wagons."

But last Friday a guy in the office comes around and says, "How about taking a chance on a Kentucky Derby pool just for the hell of it, like the other boys and girls?" I say, "How much?" and he says, "Half a bob," and I say, "For that much, this once I am a horse player."

So he shoves an envelope full of slips of paper under my nose, and I say, "Come on, you Bimelech," and make my draw. Sure enough, Bimelech comes right into my mitt, and the guy says, "Why, you lucky stiff." He would give me the pot right then and there, but he wants to sell the rest of the tickets, so he goes around the shop, and the guys and dolls draw out names like Dit and Gallahadion and Sirocco, putting up their half bobs, and yelling at me because their money is practically going into my pocket. They ask me what I will do with my winnings, which may run to as much as 10 bobs, and they got sored up because I show no signs of throwing a party on the spot.

Comes Derby Day, and I feel not so good, what with trying to cure a cold the way everybody tells you, so I turn on the radio at 5:45, hoping to feel better after I hear the news that I win the pool. While the horses are at the post trying to jump the gun, I say to myself:

"Now if I am picking them because of the names I like, maybe I should put something on that Roman, who sounds like a good soldier; but this Gallahadion has the most stylish name of all, and at 35 to 1 I should risk a few potatoes on him—that is, if I am a horse player."

Well, you know what happens then, and I tell it only to prove that horses are unreliable animals, and any one who likes them is not right in the head. Furthermore, Bimelech is a name even a horse should be ashamed of.

TO A VIKING GALLEY.

(A relic of the Columbian Exposition of 1893, to be seen in Lincoln park.)

Protected from the sun and storms, you rest
Beneath a rain-tight roof while strollers stare,
Incredulous that any one would dare
To span the seas in such a craft. Some jest
About your homeland's present plight; the rest,
In grievous silence, seem to be aware
Of unmanned oars, the empty hull, the bare
Interrogations that your lines suggest.

How sail we Vikings of today? What seas
Do we explore and what is it we seek?
Or do we sail at all, but cowed and weak,
Confine our hulls to dust, our oars to ease?
Are we, engulfed in guidance, really lost

Newcomer.

Originator of the Rebel Yell?

My opinion is that the rebel yell [May 1] was a development of the famous war cry of the Sevier scouts of 1776-'96, an invention of the Tennessee frontiersman, John Sevier. Chucky Jack, as he was known along the border, figured out that if the Indians thought their yelps and howls scared the enemy, they must themselves be susceptible to scaring.

He was the possessor of a magnificent pair of lungs and a voice that could be heard for incredible distances. His war cry is described as a long, ululating, reverberating cry that shook the very souls of the hearers. Many an instance is told in Tennessee border tradition. It almost scared the stolid Scotch who comprised the greater part of the British defenders at Kings Mountain.

Chucky Jack kept the border safe from Indian attacks for many years. He led his scouts into dozens of battles with Indians and lost only one man in all those years, according to the inscription on his monument in Knoxville. And, according to the old tales, "it was his yell that done it!"

PHLEBITIS OR INFLAMMATION OF A VEIN.

WHENEVER a blood vessel becomes obstructed—from any cause—the circulation may suffer. If a clot forms in a conduit supplying nutriment to the tissues, gangrene may follow. The cells are starved to the point of extinction.

As we know, the return of used blood to the heart takes place via the veins and—fortunately for most of us—there are two sets: those beneath the skin, and the deeper structures which lie between the muscles. If the current is slow because of inactivity—particularly if the body has lost a goodly amount of water—the solid material [fibrin] may separate from the plasma [fluid part], attach itself to the walls, and constitute a dam.

Now, the word "phlebitis" means inflammation of a vein and—in many instances—infection may roam from some nearby locality to one of these tubes, injuring the inner wall. Its caliber is thereby reduced and the stream within is retarded. Thus it is that a complete blockage of the backward flow may take place—with pain, tenderness, and swelling.

The reason that exercise is advocated for every one is for the purpose of assisting venous blood to reach the cardiac organ. Every movement of the muscles may be likened to the stroke of a pump. The more energetic we are—within reason—the quicker will be the current. We often find coagulated areas in overstretched and dilated vessels [varicose veins] because great quantities of stagnant blood collected in the surrounding tissues will have difficulty in traveling along a tortuous channel. Meandering creeks are rarely rapid. Thus it is that when the rate is impeded actual clotting may occur. After a surgical operation the physician may urge the patient to change his position often and indulge in more rapid breathing from time to time—all in an effort to aid circulation and prevent the formation of a plug.

But a simple stoppage is very different from one that is infected—wherein the whole mass is permeated with bacteria. Here, any portion breaking away may carry germ laden fragments to the heart or the lungs, sometimes lodging in the latter organs. In such an event abscesses may be sown far and wide, with a dangerous illness in prospect. As a rule, however, the septic [infected] substance is usually anchored rather firmly to the interior of the vessel. If pus is produced it will be local, probably in a location where drainage is possible, with prompt improvement.

But should symptoms such as pain, puffing, and signs of inflammation appear, the first rules are to elevate the leg [or the part involved], enforce rest, and shun massage. Rubbing is just the wrong thing, as it may dislodge a particle and spread trouble to other and more inaccessible regions. Quiet should be observed at least as long as temperature remains and for two or three weeks thereafter. Only then may gentle exercise be begun.

Heat is always helpful. Electric lamps attached to a cradlelike device may be applied for short periods—not exceeding 15 minutes—and the treatment intervals need not be frequent. One each hour may be the maximum. Care must be taken not to burn the patient and the lamp should be 16 or 18 inches away from the skin.

Occasionally a surgeon can locate a clot and remove it in toto, but this procedure is rarely attempted until all indications of infection have disappeared. Operations of this sort are spectacular and—now and then—life saving.

After recovery, some edema [swelling] may remain. This will increase the longer one is on his feet and will be relieved with rest. It may be a year or more before a leg, for example, will regain its normal size subsequent to one of these attacks.

All in all we may look upon phlebitis as an annoying malady—for which bed rest will be demanded. Expert care is required and the physician's instructions must be carried out to the letter.

T. B. AT HOME.

R. L. writes: I am taking care of my wife at home. She is suffering from an active case of tuberculosis. We have no children. Is there any danger of visitors carrying the disease to some one else? Also, how long does the germ live when exposed to the air?

REPLY.

Little danger in visitors "carrying" the organisms but any one who comes into contact with the patient is exposed. Tubercle bacilli can live but a short time [a few minutes] in direct sunlight. They may survive in ordinary daylight for a week or more if moisture is present.

Sterile nursing precautions should be employed always.

THE HEN OR THE EGG?

J. D. writes: Is high blood pressure the result of arteriosclerosis or vice versa?

REPLY.

This reminds me of the ending in Frank Stockton's "The Lady or the Tiger." If one has high blood pressure the arteries certainly become sclerosed. If there is an appreciable amount of arteriosclerosis there is certain to be high blood pressure. Take your choice.

INCREASED WHITE CELLS.

C. H. J. writes: A blood count discloses 15,000 white cells. What does this mean?

REPLY.

AIR BOMBS AND WARSHIPS.

Berwyn, Ill., May 3.—Those impressive pictures of the sinking of the old battleship Virginia by air bombs in this morning's TRIBUNE look as if the navy were just so much floating scrapiron, don't they? However, when all the facts are known, those pictures are not nearly so impressive. Let's get the record straight.

The bombing tests on the Virginia and New Jersey were purposely held under the most favorable possible conditions for the bombers. The ships were anchored, visibility excellent, and the planes were allowed to take their time about bombing. In some cases planes circled above the targets for 45 minutes and an hour before dropping their bombs. The ships themselves were worn out and obsolete, had no watertight subdivision, and had been designed and laid down before the Wrights made their first flight.

The idea was to determine, from the time taken to sink these ancient hulks, whether or not planes would stand a chance of putting a modern surface fleet out of action. The answer was plain to see, and it didn't favor the planes!

The Virginia was not sunk by one 1,100 pound bomb, but by eleven. Fourteen were dropped from 3,000 feet [not 10,000, as stated in THE TRIBUNE], of which one hit and ten fell close by. Those ten misses unquestionably played a large part in sinking the ship, as they cracked open the underwater hull. The amount of damage to the superstructure done by the one hit was very impressive, and would undoubtedly have put the ship out of action; it probably would not have sunk her, however, without the damage done by those which fell close to the hull.

The New Jersey did not sink until four separate attacks had been made on her. The first three, consisting of 20 600 pound bombs from 10,000 feet, seven 2,000 pound bombs from the same height, and 14 1,100 pound bombs [same as sank the Virginia] from 3,000 feet, produced only a slight list, altho three 600 pound bombs hit the ship, and one 2,000 pound bomb dropped right alongside. The ship was finally sunk by three 1,100 pound bombs from 3,000 feet, one of which landed right alongside, and another of which was a direct hit.

It was perfectly apparent from these tests that while isolated units might be damaged and even sunk, the planes of the day could not hope to stop a surface fleet equipped with antiaircraft guns and fully prepared to offset any damage inflicted.

What about the situation today? The recent statement by Secretary of the Navy Edison has told nothing the navy has not known for years. It has long been recognized that most of our heavy ships, built before aircraft became a serious factor in naval war, were not properly protected against air attack, and that new vessels should have some extensive changes in design to meet changed conditions. It has also been recognized that the personnel manning antiaircraft batteries and other exposed equipment in our present ships were inadequately protected against harassing attacks by aircraft; in some cases extremely so. It is to such matters that the secretary referred in his statement about changing designs.

The "death knell" has been sounded for the large naval vessel by the proponents of the torpedo boat, the destroyer, and the submarine in turn. Every time the ship has had to be altered to meet the challenge of the new weapon. But it has met it successfully! I predict that the airplane will soon fall into its proper position as a potent, but by no means omnipotent, weapon, leaving the battleship, as always, the backbone of the fleet. GEORGE F. DALE,
Member United States Naval Institute.

STRATEGY OF THE ALLIES.

Chicago, May 3.—In your editorial, "The British in Norway," is contrasted Hitler's strength with British muddling. To me it appears that the allies have adopted a new style of warfare and therefore they are misunderstood. The strategy of the allies is to harass the enemy, with a minimum of effort, and force him to break out in convulsions which may bring him glory but no peace nor bread. If the reports of Sigrid Schultz are reliable, it is clear that with every conquest the Germans get hungrier.

The allies are troubled not so much with the war as with the aftermath of the war; not so much with a conquering enemy as with a collapsed hungry Germany without means of making a living. The allies are struggling for economic stability of the world rather than for empty glory. They could easily invade neutral countries, as Spain or Belgium. But that is not their game or anybody's gain. J. L.

BOTH SPELLINGS CORRECT.

Chicago, May 3.—In Tuesday's TRIBUNE Mrs. Lindner asked if "Trondhjem" is not the correct spelling. Your headline writer said "Trondheim" is right.

Both are right. While "Trondheim" is the spelling approved by the United States geographic board, in Norway "Trondhjem" is used. "Heim" is the Germanic, "hjem" the Norwegian form of "home." Harold S. Kemp of Harvard tells that "Trondhjem" [or Trondheim] is the ancient capital, or "thronehome" of Norway—that the kings still go there from Oslo for their coronations.

CLEAN UP.

Evanston, Ill., April 29.—I see that the pupils of Flower Tech have staged a stunning cleanup parade. Fine. Here's a good starter for this campaign: Let each one refrain from tossing his gum wrappings on the sidewalk. That one item would help noticeably. E. R. Z.

FROM A SAILBOAT ADDICT.

Chicago, May 1.—Many people are frightened away from the most thrilling and healthful of water sports by the distorted accounts giver in newspapers of sailboat accidents. Your correspondent is one of those fellows who sails in all kinds of weather, yet your statement that I "capsized" four times last year is not strictly true. I was given aid by the coast guard several times last year; twice my rudder broke, once a halyard parted, and once I was dismasted. In each case I was afloat and upright when help arrived. The boat has capsized only twice in its career, excepting those times when we were able to right it and continue sailing. As the boat is in almost constant use, the wonder is that so little trouble has been had. Yesterday we had too much weight in the boat and it was impossible to stay afloat. JOHN DAVIS.

BUTCHER SHOP VISIBILITY.

Chicago, April 30.—Why is it that butchers now practically all have 5 to 6 feet high cases in front of their meats? A person is barely able to peek thru the ham or bacon piled on top of that to see if he is getting what he selected. I have found after reaching home on two or three occasions that my parcel was a chop or a perch short.

Is this not illegal? Why can't we see that what we buy is what we get?

A READER.

PERIL IN AIR GUNS.

Chicago, May 2.—I wish you would rid Chicago of toy guns. They are shooting any time and place. Yesterday at Clark and Wilson avenue there was the usual gang fight and I was startled at a gun noise aimed at a boy across the street. I said, "Don't shoot at people." "O, he ain't a person, he's a kid." Then: "Mind your own business," and pulled off at me with a crack.

We are not safe on Wilson avenue because of guns and bicycles. A. G.

MAKING A WILL.

Chicago, May 3 [Legal Friend of the People].—1. I want to make my will and [2] can it be done before I am all out of debt, as I still have a mortgage with H. O. L. C. of $1,500. A. M. S.

1. While the statute does not require the employment of an attorney, we consider such employment advisable. If you try to economize by dispensing with expert help, you are likely to make mistakes which will cost much more than an attorney would have charged to see that the job was done right in the first place. In addition, an attorney might have valuable suggestions as to the wisdom of your testamentary plan.

If, despite the above, you wish to try to handle the matter for yourself, you should obtain a printed form from a stationer and see that it is executed in strict accordance with the attestation clause which precedes the space for signature of witnesses. The services of a notary are not necessary, and it is not safe to assume that a notary will be a competent adviser.

2. Yes.

ADMINISTRATOR'S FEE.

Chicago, May 3 [Legal Friend of the People].—Will you please advise me on the following thru your corner in the daily TRIBUNE: Where there is no will and all members of a family are willing that the eldest take control of all interests of the deceased [stocks and postal savings account] [1] is it necessary for this to go thru probate? What does the new probate law say regarding this matter?

2. What is a reasonable fee for an attorney to file if attorney is necessary in a case of this kind? A. B. C.

1. Not on the bare facts stated. The necessity would depend on the nature of the assets, whether they can be reduced to possession without court proceedings, etc.

2. The Illinois statute fixes the administrator's fee at not over 6% of the personal property. In our opinion the attorney's fee ought to come out of this, but opinions differ on this point. In general, his fee should depend on the extent and quality of his services, subject to the limits above suggested.

TODAY IN HISTORY

May 7, 1915

The Lusitania torpedoed without warning by a German submarine and sent to the bottom off the southeast coast of Ireland with a loss of 1,198 lives. The giant Cunarder was bound from New York to London, and went down at 2 p. m., 18 minutes after the torpedo struck. The death list included 124 Americans. The submarine was the U-20, commanded by Capt. Schwieger. The Germans later claimed that the identity of the ship was not known until after the torpedo struck.

George L. Quilici, Democratic candidate for a Municipal court vacancy in the June 3 election, was found yesterday after two weeks of attempts to reach him for questioning about plans to save $225,000 in election costs.

George L. Quilici. [Moffett Photo.]

Quilici was attired in a tan suit and a tan hat, the brim turned down, when he entered his office at 160 North La Salle street. Daily and nightly during the last fortnight his home and office reported him out of town or in court.

"I'm entitled to privacy," said Quilici.

Elder Proposes Economy Plan.

The first economy plan was proposed by his Republican rival, Edgar B. Elder. Under this plan one candidate would withdraw—which one to be decided by a vote of the full membership of the Chicago Bar association. The law provides that where there is no contest, not all of the precinct polling places need be opened.

Quilici would not talk about this.

The second plan is to open only 650 polling places instead of 3,648, even tho there is a contest. This course was decided upon by the board of election commissioners last week. Quilici said he regarded the action as "settling the matter."

Illegal, Board Chairman Admits.

But yesterday Harry Lipsky, chairman of the board, admitted that the board action is not in accordance with law. Nevertheless the board is determined to go ahead with the plan and has ordered printing done on that basis. If either candidate interferes with the plan by means of court action, the blame for spending the additional money will fall on him, he said.

"There is no question but that voting by areas where there is a contest is illegal," Elder commented. "Any taxpayer could contest the election and have it nullified. Here again is evidence that we have government by men instead of by law."

Elder said he will make his first campaign speech Thursday night in the 43d ward.

COURT REFUSES NEW HEARING TO POLL OFFICIALS

The Appellate court yesterday denied a rehearing to five election officials of the 35th precinct of the 24th ward. The defendants were convicted by Judge Edmund K. Jarecki in County court Dec. 15, 1938, on contempt charges arising from irregularities in the primary of April 12, 1938. The judge sentenced all to jail.

On Oct. 25, 1939, the Appellate court found the sentences excessive and ordered a new trial. The defendants then asked the Appellate court to rehear the case. Had the Appellate court done so, legal authorities say, the case might have ended without a second trial. The date of the new trial has not yet been set.

The defendants, and their addresses at the time of their conviction, are: Henry Levin, 1509 South Lawndale avenue; Mrs. Lillian Rothstein, 1511 South Lawndale avenue; Mrs. Minnie Hirsch, 1511 South Millard avenue; Mrs. Bertha Schallman, 1444 South Ridgeway avenue, and Joseph Rosenfield, 3617 15th street.

CONVICTED COP IS FREED AFTER MAKING THREAT

John Howe Jr., suspended state highway policeman who was convicted Thursday of an armed robbery 10 years ago, was released from jail yesterday after apologizing for making threats against Wilbert F. Crowley, first assistant district attorney.

Howe told Crowley he had been drinking when he went to the Criminal Courts building Saturday and said his mother was ill and that he would "get" Crowley if she died. Crowley agreed yesterday to Howe's release on the latter's promise to do no more drinking pending hearing May 14 before Judge John F. Bolton in Criminal court on his motion for a new trial. The ex-policeman faces a sentence of one year to life if this appeal is denied.

The old robbery charge on which Howe once was committed to a hospital for the insane was reinstated after his indictment in connection with a jury bribing scandal.

TELLS OF HUGE RACKET PAYOFF TO PROSECUTOR

Witness Accuses Aid of Detroit Official.

Detroit, Mich., May 6 [Special].—Samuel W. Block, a racketeer, testified today that he had collected $50,000 from numbers game operators and paid it over to Harry Colburn, chief investigator for Prosecutor Duncan C. McCrea, less 10 per cent commission for himself.

The testimony was given at the examination of McCrea, Colburn, former Mayor Richard W. Reading, and 128 others on a charge of conspiracy to graft. Eighty-nine of the defendants are Detroit policemen.

Block made it clear that the $50,000 was in addition to $270,000 he has previously testified he collected for Colburn from brothels and handbooks. The previous testimony was given in examination of McCrea, Colburn, and more than 30 others, on an indictment in which Reading is not involved.

Precinct Inspector's Testimony

On Saturday Raymond W. Boettcher, a former precinct inspector, testified that he paid $18,000 to Reading from funds he collected from numbers game operators and $7,200 to Fred W. Frahm, former superintendent of police under Reading, who was mayor from Jan. 1, 1938, to Jan. 1, 1940. Frahm also is a defendant.

Block testified that he received the money paid to Colburn from Everett I. Watson, Negro policy games operator, who was recently returned from Chicago on a grand jury subpena. Watson surrendered voluntarily after resisting extradition for a time, and subsequently was ordered jailed for refusing to answer questions put to him by the grand jury. He appealed.

The indictment under which Reading and the others are being examined is the third handed down by Judge Homer Ferguson, who for eight months conducted a one-man grand jury investigation into gambling and graft in the Detroit area. McCrea and Colburn are defendants under all three indictments, all of which allege conspiracy to graft, and Sheriff Thomas C. Wilcox is defendant on the second.

Ouster Demanded.

Wilcox and McCrea also are defendants on ouster proceedings instituted by Ferguson, and the ouster hearing against Wilcox is already in progress before Probate Judge John Hollander of Kalamazoo. Wilcox has yet to present his defense. He returned Saturday from Texas, where he claimed that illness prevented his appearance at the opening of the hearing a week ago. The hearing will be resumed Thursday after a recess.

Neither Reading nor Frahm have testified, but both in statements denied the charges of Boettcher.

Pan, the New York Zoo's Giant Panda, Dies at 2

New York, May 6 [Special].—Pan, a male giant panda, one of two specimens the New York Zöological park acquired from the West China Union university a year ago, died today. Pandora, his female companion, survives. Pan had been in poor health ever since his arrival. He was about 2 years old.

MRS. HELEN LUNDY.

"Flee your in-laws as you would the plague," Judge Rudolph Desort cautioned yesterday, "if you can't get along with them. In-laws should be prohibited by law from living with newly weds unless the arrangement is congenial."

With that he granted a divorce to Mrs. Helen Lundy, 29 years old, of 7240 Wabash avenue. She testified that she and her husband, Philip, lived with his parents at 8432 Carpenter street until the in-laws told her to leave.

Her attorney, Norman Becker, obtained court permission to reserve the question of alimony and support for the two children, Philip Jr., 3, and Joan, 5, until papers can be served on Lundy.

7 WOMEN PICKED FOR JURY TO TRY FORMER SHERIFF

Urbana, Ill., May 6 [Special].—A jury of seven women, one of them colored, and five men was selected today to hear evidence in the bribery trial of former Sheriff Clarence W. Roth of Champaign county.

After opening statements by both sides Judge Charles Y. Miller adjourned court until tomorrow morning, when the state will present its case.

Roth is charged with accepting bribes while he was sheriff from operators of punchboards and other gambling devices. He was acquitted on a bribery charge on Jan. 11 by a Circuit court jury.

John Maier and Harold McGuire, originally named co-defendants in two bribery indictments against the former sheriff, have been given immunity so that they may testify against him.

Beaty, will continue investigations on mammals, birds, reptiles, and invertebrates which have been in progress for several years. Dr. H. K. CHARGES UNION AGENT DIRECTED UTILITY BLASTS

Aid in Dynamite Attack Takes Stand.

Plymouth, Ind., May 6 [Special].—Parrish Freeman of Joliet, Ill., an ex-convict and confessed participant in the dynamiting of power lines and property of the Indiana and Michigan Electrical company, today named John A. Marks of Michigan City, Ind., as the director of the destruction.

Marks, who is 36 years old, is business agent of a local union of the International Brotherhood of Electric Workers, an American Federation of Labor affiliate. He is on trial in the Circuit court here before Judge John W. Kitch on a change of venue from St. Joseph county. He, Freeman, Frank Lung of South Bend, Ind., and Leland Yak of Kalamazoo, Mich., were indicted there on charges of conspiracy to commit a felony.

A motion by the state to dismiss the charge against Freeman was granted late today by Judge Kitch.

"Marks told me," Freeman testified, "that he was planning to use explosives of some kind to do quite a bit of damage to Indiana and Michigan company property and to disrupt service in an attempt to make the company drop its appeal from a labor board decision.

Ordered to Dissolve Union.

"Marks said we would have to do something very soon because the power company had cut its rates and was making him look bad with utilities which were unionized."

The appeal which Freeman said Marks wanted dropped concerned a National Labor Relations board order that the company dissolve an independent union to which 800 of its 1,000 employés belonged. The union had been organized in 1937 by employés who said they wanted protection against the A. F. of L. and the Congress of Industrial Organizations. Marks had filed a complaint and the labor board order had been issued a year later.

Identifies Dynamite Holders.

"Last Sept. 1," Freeman continued under questioning by Prosecutor James Keating, "Marks, my cousin, Earl Freeman, and I met in an inn east of South Bend. Then we went to a place called Million Dollar corner and Marks pointed out three high tension poles and said: 'That's the place I want blown sky high.'

Floyd O. Jellison, counsel for Marks, sought to prevent Freeman's testimony from being heard on the grounds that Freeman is insane. Judge Kitch questioned the witness at length and overruled the motion.

Later in the session Freeman identified dynamite containers, fuses, and a saw which he said he, Lung, and Yak used in various dynamitings of electric company property.

Freeman still was on the stand when court was adjourned until Wednesday because of the Indiana primary election tomorrow.

U. S. JURY ACQUITS CONGRESSMAN ON JOB SALE CHARGE

Gainesville, Ga., May 6 [Special].—Congressman B. Frank Whelchel and H. Grady Jones, a Georgia county political leader, were acquitted today by a federal jury of charges they The verdict was returned after 14½ hours' deliberation.

A few seconds after his acquittal Whelchel shook hands with the jury and said: "I expected to be acquitted because I had faith in the fairness of the people of Georgia."

Representative Whelchel's counsel admitted the congressman received $2,700 from persons later appointed to office, but contended such funds were "legitimate, free will campaign contributions."

ARMED MADMEN KIDNAP 2; FLEE; FREE HOSTAGES

Dodge City, Kas., May 6 (AP).—Four insane patients, armed with knives, escaped today from the ward for criminally insane at the Larned, Kas., state hospital, taking two attendants with them as hostages. The attendants, Bill Barnes, supervisor, and Jack Rush, were released unharmed south of Ashland, about 80 miles to the southwest.

W. S. Glenn, another attendant, describing how the escape took place, said Willis Grisco, a Negro, appeared to be leader of the quartet. Grisco, originally sentenced to the state penitentiary from Topeka for a slaying, killed another man in the penitentiary and a year ago was transferred to Larned.

The other fugitives, also transferred from the penitentiary, were Charles Luster, 35, sentenced from Topeka for forgery; Lee Trittle, 25, sentenced from Winfield for petty thievery, and Forest Holtzclaw, 50, sentenced from Jackson county for burglary.

Glenn was returning from lunch when he saw the inmates emerge from a door with their hostages. Grisco drew a long knife, Glenn said, and threatened to kill Barnes if Glenn came closer.

Tug Firemen End Strike Against Towing Company

Settlement of the strike against the Great Lakes Towing company of Cleveland was announced yesterday. The strike affecting Chicago and 13 other lake ports, was called April 25 by the Tug Firemen, Linemen and Oilers' union, an American Federation of Labor affiliate. Twenty-four union tugmen have been on strike here, and nine tugs have been idle at South Chicago. They are owned by the Dunham Towing Company, associated with the Cleveland concern.

Boothe Play Is Compounded of Wit, Hokum

"MARGIN FOR ERROR."

Satirical melodrama in two acts by Clare Boothe. Directed by Otto Preminger. Setting by Karl Amend studio. Presented by Richard Aldrich and Richard Myers in the Grand Opera house, Monday evening, May 6, 1940.

The Cast.

Otto B. Horst	Alexander Clark
Baron Max von Alvenstor	Morgan Farley
Officer Moe Finkelstein	Sheldon Leonard
Frieda	Cyrilla Dorne
Dr. Jennings	John McKee
Sophie Baumer	Josephine Dunn
Karl Baumer	Kurt Katch
Thomas S. Denny	Don Terry
Capt. Mulrooney	Edward Nannary

BY CECIL SMITH.

A successful play is not necessarily a good play, even when Clare Boothe writes it. Last night there could be no mistaking the resounding popular success of "Margin for Error," Miss Boothe's wisecracking polemic against the Nazis. The hearty and frequent laughter and the intent concentration of the audience presaged a prosperous, and perhaps extended, engagement.

"Margin for Error" stands unashamed in its employment of virtually undiluted hokum of the old melodramatic school, dressed up in Miss Boothe's brash and sophisticated farce vocabulary. Like many plays of its ilk, it is quite interesting to watch, and the author's supply of gags is as inexhaustible as it is uneven. To thousands of playgoers it will offer an excellent vicarious opportunity to blow off steam about much that is ugly in Nazi ideology and personal behavior.

Two cartoon characters, drawn with unsparing unsubtlety, dominate the scene. One is the German consul in "a large American city," a Beast of Berlin in the best Eric von Stroheim tradition—b a l d headed, swinish, treacherous, and subhuman. The other is Officer Moe Finkelstein of the police force, with East Side grammar and an East Side brogue, with a heart of gold, and with a spontaneous intuitive belief in the democratic way of living and thinking.

The consul is murdered half way thru the play, a great relief if only Kurt Katch were not the best performer in a generally mediocre cast. The entire second half is devoted statically to an attempt to smoke out the murderer, with Officer Finkelstein cross-questioning, reckling, and kidding a roomful of suspects of diverse political sympathies.

This conventional crime story would scarcely last two days without the sustaining help of Miss Boothe's much advertised with. By now the author has fully perfected the craft of seizing upon a joke for its full audience value, whether it applies or not, and whether it is in good taste or not. She possesses a fantastic foreknowledge of the exact psychological moment at which to release a gag. Of course her humor never was of the genial variety, but in "Margin for Error" most of her audience does not have a genial attitude toward the kind of people she is harpooning.

If I dreamed for a moment that we were expected to take this play seriously I should not be so placid. As political satire it is shallow and vulgar. It does not remotely measure up to its problem. These are disturbingly serious times. The threat of Nazi expansion has nothing in common emotionally with the hunt for a movie heroine. Yet the theme here is treated on the emotional level of "Kiss the Boys Goodby," with a few effusive patriotic utterances added at moments when they will not interfere with a laugh. The Nazi philosophy needs to be challenged by a more trenchant attack than this. Go to "Margin for Error" for fun, but for goodness' sake don't go for self-improvement.

If I skip hastily over the details of the performance, it is because only Kurt Katch and Morgan Farley are really good. Mr. Katch's impersonation of the consul has power, directness, and consistency. Mr. Farley's secretary is fine grained and appealing. Sheldon Leonard as the policeman and John McKee as an elderly doctor are sufficient to their assignments. The others are not. Wouldn't you think it might have been possible to find a girl who could speak well inflected German for a maid's rôle all of which is in German?

Thru the LOOKING GLASS

A clear, smooth skin is a beauty asset at any age, but its importance during the teen-age cannot be stressed too strongly. The correction of adolescent complexion ills will not only save unnecessary heartaches, but contribute to the child's poise and self-assurance.

Undoubtedly the prayers of many youngsters who have been subject to embarrassing skin conditions have been answered thru the diligent and sincere efforts of a noted beauty authority who is now at a Chicago store to give consultation to women on facial, scalp and makeup problems.

Too often the skin problems of growing boys and girls are accepted by their parents as a necessary evil that accompanies the growing stage. They consider it a distressing condition that will disappear as they mature. They overlook the harm done by this neglect. The beauty and texture of skin can be permanently damaged. Complexes are born that often last into maturity, and heartaches are suffered that could be avoided.

Fully appreciating the part that adolescent skin troubles play in the lives of teen-agers, this woman has directed much of her time and attention toward perfecting preparations for the care and correction of youth's complexion ills.

Her creed is based on cleanliness, the root of young beauty. She has created a series of young skin preparations designed to correct the skin troubles of the adolescent. There are a liquid soap that is a thoro cleanser, greaseless lubricants that will not add to the oil-burdened skin, and a protective lotion with soothing properties.

While the young skin and its problems are her favorite subject, the needs of the mature skin have not escaped her attention. She has also created preparations designed to fill the needs of the dry skins.

St. Luke's Board Changes Date of Style Show

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE woman's board of St. Luke's hospital met for luncheon yesterday at the home of Mrs. Chauncey B. Borland and decided to change the date of its annual fall fashion show from Oct. 29 to Oct. 15. The Philadelphia Symphony orchestra is to play here on the night of the 29th, and Mrs. John W. Gary, president of the board, and her fellow workers felt that two events on that night would handicap each other.

The 42 board members who were at the meeting were interested to learn of the birth of a third daughter to Mr. and Mrs. W. Irving Osborne Jr. on Sunday night at the Alice Home hospital. Mrs. Osborne is corresponding secretary of the board, of which her mother, Mrs. A. Watson Armour, long has been an active member. Mr. and Mrs. Armour are arriving at home today from Florida. They have two new granddaughters to see, for the Osbornes' three daughters have a tiny cousin, Laura Schweppe Armour, the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Watson Armour III.

All of the St. Luke's officers excepting two were reëlected at the annual meeting recently. The new ones are Mrs. John J. Mitchell, third vice president, and Mrs. Robert M. Adams, recording secretary. The others are Mrs. Walter B. Wolf and Mrs. Frank P. Hixon, first and second vice presidents; Mrs. Harold C. Smith, treasurer; Mrs. Cyrus H. Adams III., assistant treasurer, and Mrs. Walter Field McLallen III., assistant secretary.

Antiquarian Society Preview This Afternoon.

One would need to be twins to attend all the interesting events on the calendar for this afternoon. The Antiquarian society is giving a preview of its spring exhibition from 3 until 5 o'clock at the Art institute. The annual Chicago Junior League Art exhibit will be held from 4 until 7 o'clock at the Arts club—with men guests admitted free. Many league members will want to combine a glimpse of the exhibit with attending the marriage reception of one of them, Miss Margaret Wilder, who will become Roger Dustin Shaw's bride late this afternoon.

On view at the Antiquarian party will be English domestic silver of the 18th century, lent by Chicago collectors. Russell Plimpton, director of the Minneapolis Institute of Arts, will talk about the exhibition at 3 o'clock in gallery A-12.

Some of those who are lending the interesting silver pieces are Mrs. Richard T. Crane, the junior Albert B. Dicks, Mrs. Dick Sr., Russell Tyson, and the Robert J. Dunhams. Mrs. Potter Palmer is arranging the tea table decorations.

An exhibit of the work done by children studying at the Art institute on league scholarships always is of interest at the league shows. Four boys and a girl are receiving instruction at the institute now. The arts committee of the league also provided 20 season tickets to the Chicago Symphony orchestra's young people's concerts.

Get-Rich-Quickies.

Akron, O., May 6.—Postmaster Rol Witwer, of this city, has learned from at least a dozen Akron residents within the last few weeks that a "clip" artist in Mexico City has been bombarding business men here with a proposition that is as tempting as it is phony.

The letters, one of which was addressed to Jim Schlemmer, sports editor of the Akron Beacon-Journal, are identical: "I am in prison, sentenced for bankruptcy, and I have $285,000 in a trunk which I shipped to an American customs house. It will be necessary for you to come here to get me out of prison and also pay for my suitcases, one of which has the baggage check of the trunk I shipped to North America. For your efforts I will give you one-third of the money." The third would amount to $95,000.

The formulae of all "clip" artists are fundamentally the same. They admit frankly that they are crooked and then hold out the promise of a share of dishonest money. All of these fleecers know that there are thousands of people whose cupidity will silence consciences.

The man in Mexico City is smarter than most, because he removed himself from the jurisdiction of the United States postal authorities by posting his letters south of the border. Apparently he is a former convict, because it is during those long stretches in jails that the cunning prisoner dopes out these get-rich-quickie schemes.

You'd be staggered at the identities of famous men and women who have been "taken" by such clippers. Sometimes the story hits page 1, but not often. . . . Lupe Velez lost $5,000 when a band of coast gypsies bedazzled her by showing her how to turn $5,000 into $10,000. Her superstition and her cupidity cost her dearly. . . . Reginald Owen and Ralph Bellamy were suing an oil stock promoter when we left the coast to retrieve tens of thousands of dollars they had deposited with him. . . . But generally the victims [particularly if they are bankers or business men], take the loss and keep quiet about it, because they'd be ruined if it became public knowledge that a business giant was so gullible. You wouldn't want to bank your earnings with a banker who had lost $500,000 on a crazy hunt for buried treasure, would you? I know two famous bankers who lost more than that.

There are so many ways in which a sucker can be separated from his dough that it would require several volumes to set them down. Probably the man in Mexico City is a former Wall street shyster or a card expert who is temporarily out of work since the big boats stopped commuting to Europe. The chaps who worked the boats had a very soft touch, and again the victim's lack of principle was his betrayal. In any crooked card game the sucker is dealt an apparently unbeatable hand, and on top of that he is given a quick view of his rival's cards. It is only when the victim takes advantage of an apparent sure thing that he learns the hand is quicker than the eye.

"Never sympathize with anybody who loses money in a fixed card game," one noted gambler told me, "because he never would have bet if he hadn't been sure that the crookedness was in his favor."

Police departments will tell you that is right; the victim has larceny in him, the crooks play to that larceny and then clip him.

Kreuger, Swedish match manipulator, had it all over the small timers who work the boats. He reasoned that the big bankers would be just as easy to clip if he could arouse their larceny. What he did to some bankers was something to make your hair stand on end. He had so many corporate setups that they never did figure out whether he was dealing from the top of the financial deck, or from the bottom, or the middle.

Suffice it to say that Kreuger made bankers and investment brokers appear positively imbecilic, 'altho they tried to hush it up when he punctured the fantastic bubble by driving a steel jacketed bullet thru his head.

England, of course, always has been a particularly easy target for the confidence men and the promoters.

This has been occasioned in large part because of England's colonial holdings. Promoters could paint roseate pictures of mines in New Zealand, gold in Australia, diamonds in India, wheat in Canada. All of these were probable money makers, and Britishers have been "taken" hundreds of times. There was one famous chap who noted that England was fond of bicycles. He staged a stock promotion scheme in bicycles that made him a multimillionaire and left his victims too poor to get a bicycle pump.

"Butch," replied Mr. Hague obligingly.

A.—Well, fire engines have two pedals, a fireman has two feet, a half of two feet is one foot, one foot is a ruler, Queen Mary is a ruler, Queen Mary is a ship, a ship sails on the ocean, the ocean is full of fish, the fish have fins, the Finns fought the Russians, the Russians are Reds, fire engines are always rushin', so that is why fire engines are red.

Marry My Daughter

By Alice Duer Miller

(Copyright: 1940: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.)

Millicent Dunham's mother dreams of marrying her off to some one like Dick Shard, who is kind, distinguished, and rich. Dick lives in New York, but Mr. Dunham worked for the Shard firm in Kansas before his death and Dick, who had stayed at their home while visiting his branch office, gave Mrs. Dunham a job after her husband died. On a business trip to New York Dick invites Mrs. Dunham to a theater party with his friends, Constance and Aleck Stewart. Aleck is an invalid, and Mrs. Dunham realizes that Dick is in love with Constance. After the theater, Mrs. Dunham is hit by a car while saving Dick's life and, while she is dying, she makes Dick promise to marry Millicent. Tho still in love with Constance, Dick keeps his promise. Altho Millicent doesn't love Dick, she thinks he loves her and Dr. Ogden, a family friend, advises her to marry Dick, for they know it was her mother's wish and she has been left penniless and untrained. After the wedding Dick tells Millicent why he married her and that she will be free to do as she pleases, but that until she decides what she wants to do, she can live with him in his New York apartment. She is humiliated but agrees to stay with him for six months and then let a divorce go thru. Dick tells Constance how badly dressed his wife is and she agrees to get a personal maid for Millicent who will choose the right clothes for her. When Dick returns from work the first day after their wedding, he expects to find his bride sad because of his neglect, but instead she has met a young man while visiting the Metropolitan museum and they are laughing together when Dick enters the apartment.

A PARTY FOR THE BRIDE.
INSTALMENT XIV.

Far from being ashamed by her husband's question Millicent began to laugh. "How very clever of you to know that!"

"Not cleverness, my dear—experience."

"Yes, he did say young and pretty, and so naturally we got talking, and he showed me about and told me the most interesting things about that queen with all the statues . . . I thought I had learned her name, but now I've forgotten it again, but is begins with an H."

"Now let me get this," said Shard, "you'd never seen him before?"

"No, of course not, but that didn't matter. You know we're different from easterners—we all talk to each other in my part of the world. Does that shock you?"

No one likes to be considered a stickler for ridiculous etiquette. Shard said rather stiffly that he wasn't shocked, but that he thought there was a certain danger in picking up strangers in New York.

"Danger?" said Millicent, and then she added with a faint giggle. "What could any one do to you in the Metropolitan museum?"

It was a hard question to answer, and Shard decided to let it go—the boy was obviously all right, and he hated to spoil her good spirits by any criticism. He said instead: "Well, I'm glad you weren't alone all day. And now I suppose we ought to be dressing."

Millicent's face lit up. "Are we going somewhere?"

"No—at least not unless you want to. A man likes to dress after a hard day's work. But you do as you like."

Millicent looked rather grave. "I think I won't," she said, "because as a matter of fact I have nothing to change to—except that dress I was married in and I was thinking I ought to keep that for best—in case we were asked anywhere."

The opportunity was too good to miss. Shard seized it. "O, look here Millicent," he said, "I hope you won't think me interfering, but I don't like that black coat of yours . . ."

"Neither do I, but what can I do? Doctor John gave it to be as a wedding present. I can't just throw it away."

"Yes, you can—just that. Or give it away, if you'd rather." And then he explained that he had engaged a maid for her, and that he wanted her to go out the next day and get herself a complete trousseau.

Millicent colored deeply. The red flared up to the roots of her gold-brown hair. "O, I can't do that," she said, and then drooped her head so that he couldn't see her face. He was alarmed—she was hurt—possibly angry. He began to make a case for himself. She was now his wife—the world thought so anyhow. If her clothes weren't just right every one would think that he was being niggardly . . . He went on talking and talking until suddenly it crossed his mind that she had already yielded. He put his finger under her chin and turned her face up so that he could see it. She was smiling.

"But you're going to."

"O, you know too much," she wailed. "You know everything about people's inmost hearts."

He laughed. "It doesn't take so much knowledge of the human heart to know that you'll do this to please me."

"But that isn't why I'm doing it. I know it's horrible for a girl in my position to take clothes from a man . . . I'm going to because I'm weak . . . I can't resist temptation."

"A charming trait," said Shard.

"I don't think so . . . I think it's horrible, but I'm going to do it. I want to so much."

"Well, it's nice we're united about one thing anyhow," Shard answered and went away to dress.

• • •

A week later Constance gave the bride and groom a dinner. She had insisted it was her right to be the first to introduce Millicent to their world.

"Every one thinks I am heartbroken—let them at least see that I can be brave and generous to my successful rival."

As a matter of fact tho she still resented Shard's marriage, she looked upon it more as an inconvenience than a disaster. She had thoroly accepted his estimate of his wife—tho she had not seen Millicent, she knew she was an inconspicuous badly dressed child with at the best a nice little face. She had not depended entirely on Shard's testimony. Lucille a few days after being engaged by the Shards had called upon Constance with an ethical problem—would it be wrong if she accepted some small "douceurs" from the shops to which she guided Mrs. Shard's feet? Constance laughed at her: "What nonsense, Lucille. You mean to do it, whatever I advise."

Well, Lucille admitted that it would mean a great deal to her and nothing to Monsieur. She was a thin competent French woman, like most of her nation in close contact with reality. She described at length Monsieur's great generosity and the excellent use she had made of it—the furs, evening dresses, lingerie, and costumes which she had bought and ordered for Madame.

Constance longed to question her as to Millicent's appearance and could think of only one way to do it: "And I hear Madame is so pretty," she said.

At this Lucille put on a wonderful act—she raised one thin shoulder and said "Enfin, Madame," a number of times, and then she began to use such terms as "une jolie taille," and to talk of freshness and a charming nature—all the attributes bestowed on woman who cannot be described as pretty. Constance was completely satisfied that Shard had been telling the truth, when he said that Millicent had a nice little face. It never occurred to her that Lucille was depreciating the raw product so that her own artistry might be more valued when the finished product was exhibited.

The result was that Constance had almost come to feel a little pity for Millicent. She knew that Shard had neglected her shamefully. He had taken her once to the theater, but on the two following evenings he had dinned down town. Constance knew this because on one of them she had dined with him.

She had never feared Millicent as a rival—she was too proud and too beautiful for that, but now even her detestation of the world thinking she had a rival had died down—she began rather to enjoy this deception she and Dick together were practicing upon their friends—a deception that actually drew them closer together.

The party she had arranged for the bride and groom was small and very carefully selected. They were to be 10 in all. The Andrews—Andrews was the head of the well-known Wall Street firm, a great friend of Shard's and one of his board of directors. The Lays—Lays was a lawyer—years older than his pretty wife, Celia, who was devoted to Dick, and had once been as near a rival as Constance had ever known. And then the useful extra girl and extra man, whom every social group possesses. The useful girl is always kind, conversable, not too good-looking, and ready to sacrifice herself freely for other people's benefit. The extra man is idle, dissipated, good-looking, and apt to make love to his neighbor's wife. Sarah Cramer and Donald Eaves were perfectly true to type.

Tribute Is Paid Tschaikowsky by Orchestra

BY EDWARD BARRY.

If he had lived Tschaikowsky would be 100 years old today. Izler Solomon and the Illinois Symphony orchestra began the celebration of the Russian composer's centenary week by including his fifth symphony on their Studebaker theater program of last evening.

If Mr. Solomon intended to show that this music is still very much alive, he succeeded perfectly. Under his hands the symphony was so searchingly beautiful and so overwhelmingly eloquent that it fairly stormed its way across the lip of the stage. There were passages in the second movement that would have made a graven image want to cheer.

There was, in fact, considerable cheering at the symphony's end. The final chord touched off a demonstration which was compounded of very fast and long continued applause, big open mouthed shouts, and even a shrill whistle or two.

The evening also brought forth a first Chicago performance of the late Henry Hadley's concertino for piano and orchestra. Marie Zorn played the solo part. Even when he had little or nothing to say, Hadley always said it with a superb patness and finish and taste. The concertino is a perfect example of this. The grace of its contours and the delicate beauty of its surfaces were persuasively in evidence thruout the performance.

BENEFIT RECITAL

For the benefit of its scholarship fund Zeta chapter of Phi Beta fraternity presented in recital in Kimball hall last night Margaret Heywood Wood, soprano, and Frederick Newell Wood, tenor, singing singly and together, and Francis S. Moore, organist.

Mrs. Wood's luminously beautiful voice should be heard more often. When it was employed in songs that were musically congenial to her—Sibella's "Non ho parole," for example—the result was quite exciting. In that she caught and sustained the Italian lyric mood exactly; vocally, she was able to give it a full-voiced, brilliant climax and a soft, high conclusion with equal ease. She was less at home when singing Bach and Mozart, failing to give dignity to the one and aristocracy to the other, but in other works she again proved highly satisfactory.

In the duets and in his solos Mr. Wood sang with an agreeable voice and a graceful style. Mr. Moore was most effective in an unusually long organ solo called "Meditation in a Cathedral."

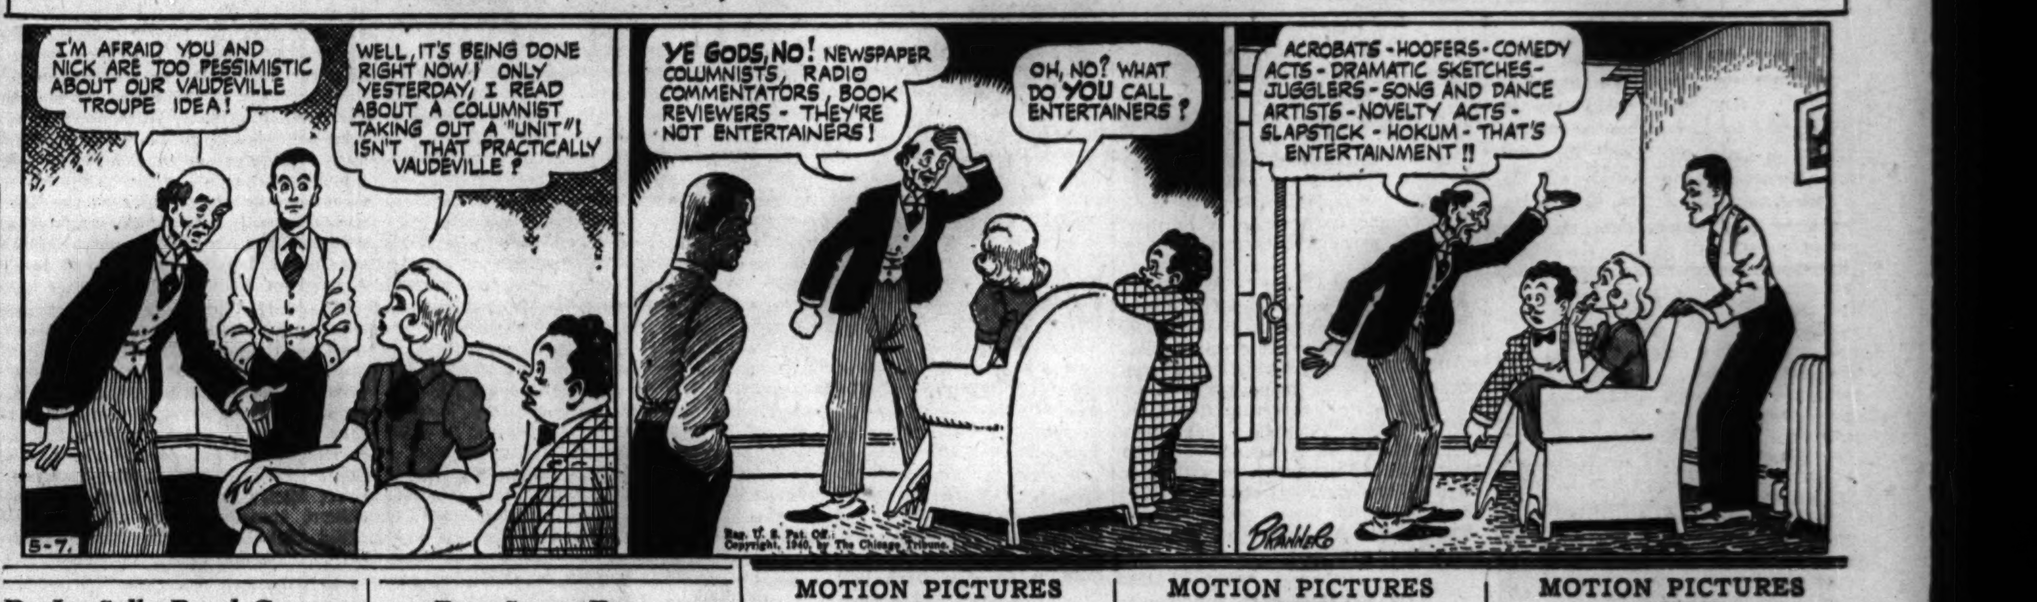
GASOLINE ALLEY—SWEET MUSIC

WINNIE WINKLE, THE BREADWINNER: That's Vaudeville



St. Luke's Board Changes Date of Style Show

ding will take place at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. William Hamlin Wilder of Kenwood avenue, with a reception following at 5 o'clock. Dean Charles Gilkey of the University of Chicago will read the service.

Miss Margaret Ann Wehrman of St. Joseph, Mo., who went to Vassar with Miss Wilder, will be the bride's only attendant. Dr. Russell M. Wilder of Rochester, Minn., will give his sister away. John I. Shaw will be his brother's best man. They are sons of Mr. and Mrs. Arch W. Shaw of Winnetka, who gave the bridal dinner last night at their home.

Mr. Shaw and his bride will go to Sea Island, Ga., on their wedding trip. They will be at home for the summer in the Wilder home.

Mrs. Kersey Coates Reed is giving a luncheon today for Mrs. Milton Wilson, who is here from her home in Santa Barbara, Cal., for a visit. Mrs. Reed will take her guests to the Antiquarian society tea in the afternoon. Mrs. George A. Ranney will take her luncheon guests to the same party.

Bridge Party to Aid French Air Defense.

Three hundred women who enjoy bridge will gather early this afternoon at the Casino to play for the benefit of isolated French air defense posts. The Chicago committee for canteens has arranged the card party and a fashion show and tea that will be given at 4:30 o'clock. Many who have not taken tables for cards will attend the show and tea.

Mrs. Hal Crompton Bangs is chairman of the Chicago committee, of which Mrs. Frank J. Loesch is vice chairman. Mrs. William M. McGovern is secretary of it and Mrs. Walter Dill Scott the treasurer. Mrs. Walter B. Wolf has planned the fashion show, in which the models will be Mrs. Frank Pierce, Mrs. Maggi McNellis, Miss Betty Walsh, Miss Olivia Little, Miss Elinor Chapman, Miss Carlotta Lagorio, Miss Jane Stude, Miss Florence Hermes, Miss Nancy Leigh Bowes, and Miss Mary Alice Bacon.

Mrs. Frank Fuller and Miss Georgette Hill shared the task of obtaining young women to usher at the benefit.

Several parties have been planned for Miss Eleanor Foster of Florence, Italy, who will be the house guest of Mr. and Mrs. Louis C. Sudler thru next week-end. This evening the Sudlers are having a buffet supper for their guest, and on Thursday Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Fentress Jr. will have a theater party. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gross have planned a dinner party for Friday. Mrs. Sudler is departing June 15 to spend the summer in Harbor Point.

Mrs. Dudley Root departed last week-end for the east, where she will spend a few days prior to sailing for her home in France.

Mrs. Augustine J. Bowe, the new president of the Cercle Français, will give a luncheon at her home, 1120 Lake Shore drive, for the past presidents and the incoming board of officers. After luncheon the guests will go to the benefit at the Casino.

The Housewife

The woman who likes to arrange flowers knows it's often almost impossible to work with fragile stems such as those found on pansies, violets, and other small flowers. Roses, too, at times have stems that are too flexible. There's a clever little trick on the market now, tho, that is a great help. It's a small, silver-like gadget that clamps along the rim of your flower bowl and that provides little metal loops thru which you pull the stems of the flowers. Then use good old chicken wire mesh for the center of the arrangement, and there you are. These new clamp-on affairs are sold by the dozen.

EDITH WEIGLE.

No two pot roasts are exactly the same, even when made by the same cook with a single recipe. Under these circumstances two pot roasts could indeed be very much alike, but technique and the ingredients themselves are bound to vary from one pot roast to the next.

Most cooks don't want their pot roasts to become standardized. The basic recipe always is the same, of course, but there are dozens of ways to change and adjust the seasonings to make both cooking and eating more fun.

Pot roasts always are made from the less tender cuts of meat, those which require long, slow, and moist cooking to break down connective tissue and produce tenderness.

Cuts from the chuck, rump, and round of beef are most often selected for pot roasting. From the chuck section come the blade pot roast, arm pot roast, the rolled neck, triangle pot roast, and boneless chuck [boned and rolled]. The rump roast may have bone in or be boned and rolled. The round includes the heel of round and the Swiss steak which, when you come right down to it, is nothing more nor less than a pot roast.

GENERAL METHOD FOR ANY POT ROAST.

Wipe the piece of meat carefully with a damp cloth. Dredge it in flour. The flour assists in browning and helps thicken the gravy. Brown in hot fat on all sides, until the meat is as brown as you want it. It will not often brown further during the pot roasting. Season with salt and pepper. The usual proportion of salt to use for meat is a teaspoonful to the pound.

Add a small amount of liquid to the meat [water, sour cream, tomato juice], turn down the heat, cover the skillet, or transfer meat to kettle and cover it if it is too large for the skillet. Cook very gently for from 1½ hours to 3 or more, depending upon the size of the meat. During cooking any spices or herbs preferred may be added, and vegetables may be added during the last three-quarters of an hour of cooking time.

Renew liquid from time to time as it cooks off, but never add it in large amounts if you want to have a full flavored piece of meat. Thicken the liquid for gravy just before serving.

POT ROAST VARIATIONS.

1. Brown a cut clove of garlic with meat and remove garlic after 5 minutes. Use tomatoes as liquid.

2. Use a barbecue sauce as the liquid.

3. Cook 2 onions, sliced, 2 bay leaves, and 4 cloves with a 3 pound pot roast, and use ¼ cup vinegar and 2 tablespoons sugar in ¼ cup water or tomato juice as liquid.

4. Spread prepared mustard lightly over meat and use water as liquid.

5. Add mushroom soup for liquid.

6. Use fruit juice for liquid.

Sauerbraten is a pot roast which has been soaked in a vinegar and spice sauce for a day or so before cooking. It has a tantalizing flavor.

For Cross-Stitch Enthusiasts

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1940: By Ely Culbertson.]

The more I watch "masters" in action the more I think of average players. There is no denying that the former know a great deal more about bridge than the latter, but it is one thing to have knowledge and quite another to be able to apply it in practice. Even at the major tournaments some of the bids and plays are virtually gruesome. Today's hand offers a notable example. The North-South team whose bidding I have recorded is reputedly one of the two or three best teams in the country, perhaps in the world. Yet, as will be seen, it managed to reach a contract that must have made the declarer shudder and which was fulfilled only thru a brand of luck upon which so-called masters should not have to depend.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	1 club	1 spade!
2 clubs	Pass	Pass	4 hearts!
Pass	Pass!	Pass

Altho I have included North's pass to the four heart bid among the calls to be honored with an exclamation point, it is no more than fair to say that 95 per cent of the blame for the final contract must go to South. To begin, his one spade overcall did not even closely represent the potentialities of his hand, and his first bit of luck sprang from the fact that West had a shade too much to pass. If one of West's low clubs had been a heart or a spade, he would have passed and, of course, North and East would have done likewise. So South would have found himself in a one spade contract, whereas a game was an absolute laydown. Presumably, South realized that he had underbid absurdly, because when he was fortunate enough to get another bidding opportunity he jumped all the way to game in his other major suit. Altho it is quite understandable that he was trying to make up for his previous "bull," the fact remains that this change of horses was not only entirely inconsistent but also incomprehensible to his partner. North, a truly fine player, could not but fear that the previous spade bid had either been psychic or that South [whose bidding is customarily erratic] had considerably better and longer hearts than spades. Perhaps North should have solved the problem and gone back to spades, holding three of these against only two hearts, but the point is that there was no reason to leave him in the dark. Opposite a normal or orthodox bidder, North, of course, would have given the spade preference, but, as I have said, he had had long experience with this particular partner and knew there was a substantial chance that South had something like seven hearts and five spades.

East, of course, was delighted with the heart contract and did not make the terrible mistake of doubling and thereby giving the opponents a chance to run to spades. But, to East's utter disgust, there was no defense!

Tho declarer was ruffed down to four trumps on the second club lead, the perfect break of spades and the fact that the heart finesse was onside left the defenders helpless. Declarer, having ruffed the second club, laid down the ace and king of spades. Then, with that situation cleared up, he entered dummy with the diamond ace, led a heart to his own queen, cashed the ace of hearts, then merely ran off spades. East's two trumps, altho high, were worth only two tricks.

It goes without saying that South should have landed in a four spade contract merely by bidding two spades over the opening club bid, and later showing his hearts without another jump. North then, of course, would have given the preference for spades.

Discard Play Pen if Child Dislikes It

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Are you having "playpen trouble" at your house? I had it in mine and for that reason, more than because of any neat little theories on the subject, I want to quote a leter and offer a reply.

"Dear Mrs. Bevans:

"I have read your articles for some time, but with greatly increased interest since the birth of my baby ten months ago. I do not know your practice in regard to correspondents. But I hope it is possible for you to reply directly to me.

"Three months ago we began putting Judy in her play pen [she was 7 months old then] and for three months, an hour every morning and an hour every afternoon [except on days when an outing was possible] have been filled with heartbroken crying and great sobs, which we have ignored, thinking she would learn that they were bringing no results, but the performance continues and I am just about at the end of my string. There are a few clothespins, a tin pan, blocks, and a rubber doll in the pen, and the baby enjoys these as long as there is some one in the room with her, but when she is alone she does nothing but cry and will do so for an hour.

"Could it be that she gets too much petting during the rest of the day, and that these solitary playtimes are too much of a contrast? We very rarely pick her up just to 'love' her, but when we are dressing her or taking her to bed we do talk with her and play and generally 'make a fuss' over her.

"She enjoys her crib during the hour she lies awake there, alone, from 6:30 to 7:30. What can I do to create this same happy attitude toward the playpen?"

To begin with, a "playpen" is not a "must." Some children don't take to a playpen. In our family I remember that the small son, when put in his playpen [it was one without a floor] objected to the restriction, took hold of it and moved it all around the room. After a day or so I folded up the playpen and gave it away.

I can see no point in enforcing the use of a playpen if it is accompanied, as in the case of Judy, by tears and sobs. After all, a playpen is just a device. It isn't vital that a child use one, as other things are vital, such as her learning to accept happily her bath and the toilet chair, and being dressed. A child's individual reaction to everything must determine our way of treating her.

As to Judy's being alone, well, there are two things to be said. One is that these early years are those in which a child is physically closest to her mother. They are, in that sense, the most companionable years. I can see no harm in a very little boy or girl playing in the same room with mother, or near her. If a child is wisely managed this is not going to interfere with her self-reliance or ability to concentrate in play. These things all come along in good time.

What is at the root of much fretting and friction between babies or small children and their mothers is, "I don't want to spoil her."

As to little Judy, she, like all other young things, needs lots of loving and approval and playfulness. These never have spoiled a child yet.

Lecture on China.

Mrs. Geraldine Townsend Fitch, wife of a Y. M. C. A. secretary in Chungking, West China, will address the Rotary club at its luncheon meeting today in Hotel Sherman. Her topic will be: "China Survives Her Crisis." Mrs. Fitch was the only woman to testify before both the senate and the house foreign affairs committees during the neutrality act revision hearings at the last session of congress.

Youthful, Flattering Frock

WOMAN'S AND MISS' FROCK.

This is one of those youthful frocks which women of all ages may wear because of its simplicity and figure flattery. Ingenious paneling does for this dress what a lot of trimming does for most. The lines of today's frock, in other words, provide its chic without the trouble of ruffling, lace, and other frills. All types of materials, from washable cottons to pastel woolens, will make up well, and prints are as popular as plain colors. A collar is optional.

Style No. 3300 is designed for sizes 12, 14, and 16, and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measurement. Size 16 requires 3⅝ yards of 39 inch material, with ¼ yard of contrasting for collar for the short-sleeved dress.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central annex, NEW YORK CITY, including 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be sure to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

For 15 cents buy the spring Chicago Tribune book of Clotilde Fashions, on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower; 10 cents if ordered with a pattern. Address mail orders to the New York address above.

South Shore's Horse Show Set for June 8 and 9

BY INDIA MOFFETT.

Plans for the South Shore Country club's fourth annual charity horse show were announced yesterday at a luncheon at the Electric club. "Our ring on the lake front is beautiful, with sailboats in the background——," said James C. Thompson, chairman of the stable committee. "Sailboats could have been in the ring last year," interrupted Frederick Herendeen, noted wit and master of ceremonies [by popular request] of the show.

There will be nothing like that this year, however, Mr. Thompson is certain, for he and his co-workers chose the dates, June 8 and 9, after consulting the almanac at the corner drugstore. They did that three years ago for the first show and the weather was perfect; two years ago and last year they neglected the almanac and it rained. So this time they returned to the old fashioned weather prediction. But, just in case, the women of the Kenwood Social Service club and the South Shore center of the Infant Welfare society, which benefit from the show, are trying to talk the men into taking out rain insurance.

Rain or shine, tho, the show will be a success, every one connected with it is sure, and it is expected that the Infant Welfare society will receive as much or more than it has in the last three years. More than $10,000 was realized by each of the preceding shows. The South Shore has been holding horse shows for years, but it was only three years ago that the club started giving the proceeds to charity.

The South Shore show is the first of the summer shows in Chicagoland. This year, in addition to the regular classes there will be exhibitions by the Black Horse squadron and by a little Shetland pony that has been trained by 6 year old Harriett Atlass, who will put her pet thru his tricks in the ring. There will be three performances, Saturday morning and afternoon and Sunday afternoon. The horse show ball, one of the outstanding social events of each year at the club, will be given on Saturday night.

Among others at the luncheon yesterday were Fred L. Thompson, president of the club; Franklin B. Evans, a past president and member of the show committee; Marvin K. Brown, publicity chairman of the club; Mrs. Herendeen, Mrs. J. C. Thompson, Mrs. George K. Hendrick, and Mrs. Vincent J. Ream of the South Shore center; and Mrs. Eugene K. Lydon and Miss Jane Dubbs of the Kenwood club.

The week-end following the South Shore show will bring the Hinsdale show, which also benefits the Infant Welfare society. Mrs. Junius F. Cook Jr., Mrs. Porter E. Essley, Mrs. Robert L. Hasbrook, Mrs. Palmer Boothby, Mrs. David V. Thomas, and Mrs. Irving H. Clendenen are among the women coöperating with the horse show association members in planning the show, to be held on June 15 and 16. Paul Butler is donating the polo field at Oak Brook for the show.

The Lake Forest show will be held the next week, June 19 thru the 22d. Whatever profits there are always go to the Lake Forest Hospital association.

Newest in Ties for Men Come with Diagrams

BY REA SEEGER.

That bright gleam you see in the eyes of the men about town is the result of a new way to struggle with a cravat, tie, or what you gentlemen use for color contrast with a dark suit. If this urge for something different in a knot doesn't make some proficient contortionists out of the strugglers, it isn't the fault of the directions.

To us, the giddy half of the world, it's an awful lot of dither over a knot, even with one bearing the romantic name of Windsor. Having tied more bows and knots in a lifetime than can be counted, maybe we've blunted the fine edge of our appreciation!

Gay young blades, dignified tycoons, bachelors, and benedicts all are spending time before the mirror, alternately whistling, cussing, patting, and finally gloating over the results.

Getting to the knot, it's a good looking concoction of tie, looped under and over, and under and over again, pushed thru up, then down, all according to seven lines of detailed directions. Cabalistic instructions to a mere female, sounding like the involved A-B-C maze under certain famous cartoons. However, the scouts say it's as clear as glass, you can't go wrong, for pictures are furnished to show each of the seven steps.

No less a Beau Brummell than the duke of Windsor ties his cravats in such a deft and handsome manner, movie stars and other celebrities likewise knot in this fashion. What pleases a feminine fashion sleuth no end is the knowledge that good looking American men are really having such fashion fun. Maybe these same knot tiers will mellow a bit and forget to heckle us about our funny hats and fashions.

First summary of the Windsor knot is: It can be tied properly with any length of tie. It's flattering and swanky for the most critical inspection. It's worn with a wide spreading opening on all collars, particularly the cutaway collar, soft or starched, and may be worn with a button-down collar attached. It is not the type of tie knot for a pinned collar.

EIGHTH ANNUAL GOLF SCHOOL OPENS NEXT TUESDAY

CHICAGO PROS TO INSTRUCT ON FOUR COURSES

Lessons Are Free to Every One.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Fore!

The eighth annual free golf school conducted by THE TRIBUNE, largest system of group instruction in the history of American sports, will open Tuesday night, May 14, on the four courses of the Chicago park district, with members of the Illinois section of the Professional Golfers' association again making up the faculty.

In 1933, the first call to this system of imparting the fundamentals of golf to men, women, and children of the Chicago area was sounded. The venture received more than its share of criticism by skeptics who thought it impossible to successfully conduct such a plan.

In the seven years since its inception, the Tribune school has converted those doubtful ones and has become a model for similar schools thruout the country. A total of 198,000 lessons has been given to Chicagoans interested in learning the A B C's of the game thru that seven year span. Last year's aggregate of 73,000 lessons marked a new high for the school.

Illinois P. G. A. Does Big Job.

Members of the Illinois P. G. A., who have established themselves as the most progressive section in the national organization, have been highly instrumental in making the school the success it has been. Ten years ago the value of spreading the gospel of golf thru group teaching was just beginning to be a topic in P. G. A. meetings, sectional and national. The Illinois P. G. A. was the first section to take definite action, with the Tribune school serving as its vehicle.

The 1939 aggregate of lessons can be traced to the use of the Chicago park district courses. When the school was started in 1933, the courses of the Chicago Daily Fee Golf association were the classrooms for all instructions. In 1936, the sponsors of the school decided, with the approval of the Chicago Daily Fee men, that its scope could be broadened thru the use of the park district courses, all of which had convenient locations, easily reached by rapid transit, bus, and surface lines.

Park Courses Boom School.

The use of the park courses, with the approval of the commissioners of the Chicago park district, proved to be the final answer to the perfect school. In the four years since the introduction of these four links, thousands of metropolitan residents who would have been unable to reach the outlying courses became pupils in the school.

The Tribune school is not restricted to those who have played the game previously, nor to rank novices who never have swung a club. The golfer who has been trying to break 80 is as welcome to attend the classes as well as he or she who has yet to hit a ball. The lessons are absolutely free. The only requirement for joining the school is your prompt presence at that one of the four park district courses nearest your home on each of the four nights of the regular classes. Bring a club to each lesson. If you don't own one, borrow one.

Each lesson will begin promptly at 7 p. m. Pupils are urged to appear at the course nearest their homes 15 minutes before that hour, to facilitate the opening of the class on time.

The first lesson will be held next Tuesday night, the second on Thursday night, May 16; the third on Tuesday night, May 21, and the fourth

Two Records Made as Bees Beat Pirates

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 6 (AP).—Manager Frankie Frisch gave Pittsburgh a drastic shakeup today, but the Pirates lost their sixth straight game to Boston, 10 to 7, in 12 innings. Six Pirate regulars were benched to start the contest. Before it ended 24 Pirates participated, a major league record. Another record was the use of 40 men by the two teams, exceeding the 39 in yesterday's Brooklyn-St. Louis game. Score:

Detroit, Mich., May 6 [Special].—The Monarch Beers of Chicago are the champions of the 1940 American Bowling congress tournament. As the five man event ended tonight none of the contenders on the closing program could approach the Monarchs' total of 3,047 scored on April 13.

It was the seventeenth time that the five man title was won by a Chicago team. And it was the first time in the 40 year history of the A. B. C. that a team won the championship with a substitute after the regular quintet had started. Bill [Jake] Lenzen, anchor man, was taken out of the Monarchs' lineup in the fourth frame with a total of only 41 pins and replaced by Harry Angel, who finished with a 170 game and then added 187 and 192.

Second Title for Leo Faetz.

Leo Faetz, captain of the 1940 champions, also piloted the Oh Henrys of Chicago to the team championship in Kansas City in 1928 with a 3,057 total. Leo hit 613 this year. His brother, Matt Jr., led the Monarchs with 704. Bill Flesch scored 578 and Dick Winsberg 603. Their scores by games follow:

Flesch	217	201	160—	578
M. Faetz	209	251	244—	704
L. Faetz	216	233	164—	613
Winsberg	184	217	202—	603
Lenzen	170	....	....—	170
Angel	..	187	192—	379
Totals	996	1,089	962—	3,047

The Monarchs, 1939 champions of the Chicago Classic league, have averaged 2,965 in the A. B. C. tournament for the last five years. They scored 3,042 in 1936 and 3,008 in 1939 in Cleveland. The only other team to exceed the 3,000 mark this year was the Roseland club of Kansas City, Kas., with 3,003.

End Singles, Doubles Today.

The 62 day tourney, largest and longest in history, will end tomorrow with the completion of the doubles and singles.

Chicagoland contesants in this year's competition paid entry fees of $21,785 in the three events and will win more of the $241,000 prize money than any of the other 731 cities represented. There are 1,034 prizes in the five man event, 2,081 in the doubles, 4,177 in the singles, and 416 in the all-events. Approximate low totals in the prize class on the eve of the windup are: Team, 2,636; doubles, 1,111; singles, 571; all-events, 1,774.

A score of 2,897 by the Detroit Altes Lagers was best in the final team firing. Detroit fans again packed the Coliseum for the windup, helping to establish an all-time attendance record.

Attendance Exceeds 100,000.

"While official figures are not yet available, our total paid attendance will run over 100,000," said Frank G. Mitzel, secretary of the Detroit A. B. C. tournament committee. "This does not include an additional 50,000 free admissions for the 30,000 contestants and their wives and families," he added.

Chicago probably will win another title tomorrow with Herb Freitag and Joe Sinke favored to retain first place in the doubles with 1,346.

RIGNEY BLOWS 2 RUN LEAD; SOX LOSE TO A'S, 3-2

Potter Stops Chicagoans in Last Six Innings.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., May 6.—The White Sox blew a chance to soar out of the American league cellar today when they allowed the Athletics to blot out a 2 to 0 lead and whip them, 3 to 2.

The Sox looked pretty powerful, tho hit-wasteful, in the first three innings, but Nelson Potter made them a sick lot in the last six innings, in which he yielded only two hits and faced only 19 batsmen, one over the minimum.

John D. Rigney went all the way to absorb his third defeat in four starts. Sam Chapman nicked him for a homer in the third, but that left the Sox ahead, 2 to 1. The blowoff was in the sixth, when doubles by Benny McCoy and Dick Siebert and a single by Frankie Hayes did the business.

Winning Streak Broken.

Thus ended a two game winning streak for the Sox and gave the Chicagoans a loss total of ten as compared with half as many triumphs. The team still has a .500 road record, however, having lost one and won one in each of the five cities it has visited.

With all their disappointment at having been nosed out after getting off to a good start today, the Sox, in the cellar, are only 5½ games out of first place and two games out of the first division. Moreover, if they had won today, they would have gone into a sixth place tie with the world champion New York Yankees.

The Sox, possibly because they, along with six other clubs, are enjoying the discomfiture of the Yankees, continue in excellent spirits despite their cellar habitat. With the Yanks choking the way they are, all the habitual also rans of the last four years are taking a renewed interest in pennant matters.

They Fight to Play.

All the Sox in the lineup are fighting to stay in it, which is a good sign. Taft Wright and Luke Appling could have been excused today because of injuries and illness. Both insisted upon playing and each singled his first two times at bat. Wright's two hits, in four times at bat, lifted his league leading average to .410.

Joe Kuhel lost undisputed home run leadership of the majors when Jimmy Foxx knocked one in Boston and Joe failed to add to his own total of six. However, Joe batted .667 today and scored both of the Sox runs, after starting things with singles.

The Sox made six hits in their two

Makes Flashy Start

Mother Makes First Baseman of Art Mahan

There's more than one story behind the story of why Art Mahan, a lanky 24 year old Massachusetts boy, is well on his way to becoming the Phillies' regular first baseman.

The Phillies have appeared more like a first division team than a perennial tailender in the two hard battles they've waged against the Cubs in Wrigley field, and young Mr. Mahan has held up his share admirably.

When spring training opened Mahan was the property of the Boston Red Sox, who had paid him $5,000 to sign three years ago after he was graduated from Villanova. But the Red Sox have a fellow named James Foxx as their first baseman. They also have his heir apparent in Paul Campbell, which is the reason Mahan no longer is with Boston.

Collins Helps Prothro.

This spring the Red Sox moved Mahan up to their Louisville farm club from Little Rock, where he hit .307 last year. A week ago Campbell was sent to the Colonels on option with instructions from the Red Sox that he be played at first base. This left Mahan jobless.

Eddie Collins, Red Sox general manager, told his good friend, Doc Prothro, manager of the Phillies, that Mahan might solve his first base problem. So the Phils, who usually are on the other end of player sales, bought Mahan outright and installed him at first base barely a week ago. In the two games against the Cubs he's made 6 hits in 11 times at bat.

His graceful fielding style recalled memories of Charley Grimm to more than a few north siders. And that brings up another story. When Grimm as manager took the Cubs into Boston in the summer of 1936 a young man approached him and asked for a tryout. Grimm watched his actions around first base and was agreeably impressed. The lad was Mahan.

Cubs Are Second Again.

The Red Sox got there first when Mahan was in a signing mood. He was with Hazelton, Pa., in the Eastern league in 1937 and 1938.

Mahan is a native of Somerville, Mass., which produced two big leaguers of note, Frank [Shanty] Hogan, who once caught for the Giants, and Dan MacFayden, Pirate pitcher. When Arthur, as a kid, expressed a desire to play baseball his mother bought him a first baseman's glove because a first baseman's glove seemed to afford better protection for the hand than a finger mitt. So by parental decree he became a first baseman and nature did the rest by giving him a tall frame. He is 5 feet 11 inches tall, and weighs 174 pounds.

Manager Prothro, altho elated at Mahan's performance, prefers to wait a little longer before bragging that the Phils' long search for a first baseman is ended. They've been trying to get some one to take Dolph Camilli's place since selling Camilli to Brooklyn. When and if Mahan proves beyond doubt that he's the answer to the Phillies' hunt, that will be another story.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Mr. Diz Dean, the man who says he can come back, caused his Cub mates more embarrassment yesterday, but they didn't let it get 'em down. Jerome Hannah, or Dizzy, whatever you want to call him, was treated to another speedy bounce, whereupon his fellow workers got busy. They finally nailed down the annoying Phillies on a drive that Billy Herman sent whistling into the left field bleachers with one out in the 11th inning. The score was 5 to 4 and was reached only after the respective managers had exhausted themselves with their master minding.

Old Diz, making his fourth start of the season, was just a thrower with nothing more puzzling than a sentence in a first grade reader. Good fortune attended his efforts for a time, but he couldn't hurdle the same inning that marked his collapse in two previous appearances. The Phils felt him out for two runs in the fourth and finished him with another pair in the fifth. His exact term was 4⅔ innings and he yielded eight hits.

French Wins No. 4.

After Diz had gone away, leaving a three run deficit, the Phils encountered some vastly different pitching. For a while they looked at Ken [Lefty] Raffensberger. For another short stretch they had to contend with Charley Root, making his second mound appearance of the season. Bad aim got the veteran into difficulties in the ninth so Larry French was asked to display his southpaw talents. He cleaned up the Root legacy and then breezed thru to the finish for his season's fourth triumph.

Altho the Cubs raised their left on bases total to 145, Hank Leiber had no part of it. He drove in a run by singling in the first inning. He doubled the same mate—Billy Herman—across in the sixth and helped to eliminate Si Johnson, the Phils' starter. When a run was needed for a tie in the seventh, Hank moved it home by scratching a single from the delivery of Lloyd [Lefty] Brown, making his 15th run driven in this year. And Brown was still pitching when Herman's homer, his third hit of the game, suddenly ended everything.

Diz Starts Like a Winner.

Diz really fooled 'em in the first inning. Schulte led off with a healthy line drive and happily for Diz, it sailed straight to Nicholson. Herschel Martin followed with another drive, but this went into an open spot in right center for a double. Phil Cavarretta smothered Art Mahan's fairly sharp grounder and Morrie Arnovich lofted to Leiber.

The Cubs also got a double in their opening inning, but along with it there was a single, hence a run. Herman clipped a two bagger into the left field corner with one out. Augie Galan was somewhat embarrassed when Johnson fanned him. But Leiber sent a single into left to score Herman.

Diz was fair in the second and third. Chuck Klein opened the second with a double to right center, but two of the next three fellows flied to

MRS. MARS TAKES ACTIVE ROLE IN TURF OPERATIONS

Makes Own Decisions at Saratoga Sales.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Louisville, Ky., May 6.—The orange and chocolate colors which Gallahadion carried to victory in the Kentucky Derby last Saturday have become a familiar sight on race tracks from New York to California in the six years during which Mrs. Ethel V. Mars has been operating the Milky Way Farm stable.

Mrs. Mars, whose home is in River Forest, Ill., takes an active part in the management of the establishment. Roy Waldron, who is recognized as one of the most thoroly capable trainers in the country, confers with her frequently on practical concerns as well as on matters of general policy. Each year she goes to the Saratoga sales to make her own decisions on the bidding for likely looking yearlings, tho she is willing to listen with an open mind to the advice of Waldron, who accompanies her to the auctions.

Shows Balanced Judgment.

In all affairs pertaining to her stable, she shows a nicely balanced judgment, exercising a will of her own, but at the same time weighing with respect the opinions of the man directly responsible for the development of her horses. Waldron has been the Milky Way trainer since September of 1938.

Mrs. Mars is usually looking on when her horses are running in the big stakes, tho she suffered one of the unluckiest breaks imaginable by being detained at home because of illness on the day that Gallahadion won the Derby. She had been trying to win this event every year since 1935, when her representative, Whiskolo, finished third to Omaha. She scored another third with Reaping Reward in 1937, but The Fighter, Mountain Ridge, and On Location failed her completely in the Derbies of 1936, 1938, and 1939.

Seeks Handicap Performer.

Now that she has won a Derby Mrs. Mars' great aim is to develop a first class handicap performer to compete in the big cup races. Waldron thinks that Gallahadion may be the answer to this, too. He's a well set up horse, with distance running ability and the strength to carry weight. He's not particular about track conditions, either. Muddy or dry footing suits him equally well.

Before going after honors in the handicap division, however, Gallahadion will be pointed for the big 3 year old events. His next engagement is the Preakness at Pimlico for which the Derby winner left today in the same car with Charles S. Howard's Mioland. Then he'll run in the Belmont Stakes. Gallahadion also was nominated by Trainer Waldron today for the $50,000 added Hollywood Gold cup stakes to be run at the Hollywood Turf club track in Inglewood, Cal., on July 27. He is likely to appear in Chicago for the Arlington Classic and the American Derby.

Gives Juveniles Time.

In line with her aims at developing strong handicap performers, Mrs. Mars has established a policy of going very light on the racing engagements of her 2 year olds. She wants to give them plenty of time to develop before putting them thru the rigorous routine of pointing for big prizes. Gallahadion, for instance, wasn't brought to the races until the middle of August last season. In all he ran only five times as a 2 year old. Some of her juveniles are withheld from racing entirely.

Milky Way Farm is located in Giles county, near Pulaski, Tenn. It spreads over 3,500 acres of rich pasture land similar to that found in the blue grass area of Kentucky. No breeding is done on the farm for Mrs. Mars acquires most of her race horses as yearlings at the Saratoga sales. She usually buys about a dozen each season. The farm serves as the home grounds on which the horses are turned out for rest and freshening up between campaigns. There is a five-eighths of a mile training track on the property.

Approximately 30 horses are in active training at present. This requires quite a staff of stable hands and exercise boys. The quota is one man and a boy for every three horses.

Tough Hombre Liked.

Next to Gallanadion, Tough Hombre is considered the best of the Milky Way 3 year olds. In addition to winning the secondary feature of the Derby day program, this horse won the Daniel Boone purse on the preceding Saturday. Both were sprints. Waldron intends to increase the distance of his races gradually and let him take his time coming to top condition, but he hopes to have him going the longer routes before the summer is over. Tough Hombre is at his best only on a dry track.

The best of the older horses in the Milky Way stables are No Competition and Up the Creek. Both are 4 year olds. They will compete in several handicap events during the summer.

At the conclusion of the fourth regular lesson on May 23 the No. 1 teacher at each of the four courses and his colleagues will choose the most apt pupil—man, woman, boy or girl—at each course, together with those rated second best in acquiring the fundamentals of the game during the four regular lessons.

Select Four Best Pupils.

This will make up a graduating class of 32 prize pupils. These will assemble on Sunday afternoon, May 26, at one of the four park district courses to be announced later. A special jury composed of the men who have handled the teaching duties at the four courses then will examine the swings of the 32 pupils. The four adjudged to have learned their A B C's best will be given golf bags and sets of clubs by THE TRIBUNE. The remaining 28 finalists each will receive one dozen golf balls.

Each of the four lessons will be supervised by a teacher-lecturer on each of the four courses. Jackson park's classes will be handled by Matt Matteson of Ridge, secretary and treasurer of the Illinois P. G. A. The Columbus park lessons will be under the direction of Lew Waldron, one of the most capable group teachers in the game. Harry Kinnell of Edgewood Valley, another P. G. A. enthusiast, will be in charge at Marquette park, and Bill Gordon of Tam o' Shanter, who made a successful debut last year at Diversey, will return to his 1939 classroom.

Alex Cunningham of North Shore, president of the Illinois P. G. A. and one of the prime movers in the conduct of the school, will assist in the teaching at the Diversey course in Lincoln park. Tom Walsh of Westgate Valley, national P. G. A. president and one of the originators of the school idea, will visit all four courses.

Pleasant and Kozole Fight 8 Round Draw

Fight Decisions

At Marigold Gardens—Joe Sutka beat Al Tibbitts [8]; George Nyberg stopped Phil Latona [2]; Don Siegel stopped Jack Jersey [3]; Eddie Kozole and Johnny Pleasant drew [8].

Eddie Kozole, 1937 Golden Gloves lightweight champion, and Johnny Pleasant, who won the title last year, battled eight rounds to a draw in Marigold Gardens last night.

Judge R. A. Goudie voted for Kozole, 45-35, but Referee Walter Brightmore and Judge Harry Gamson scored the bout a draw. Pleasant weighed 135½ pounds and Kozole, 144.

Don Siegel, former Michigan tackle, who was a member of the 1939 College All-Star team, stopped Jack Jersey of St. Paul, in the third round of the four round semi-windup Siegel, one of the most promising heavyweight prospects to come out of college, scored two knockdowns before Referee Frank J. McAdams Jr., stopped the bout. It was Siegel's seventh straight knockout.

George Nyberg, Port Arthur, Ont., welterweight, scored his fifth consecutive triumph by stopping Phil Latona, of Denison, Tex., in the second round. After being knocked down in the first round, Nyberg rallied to floor Latona five times in the second.

Al Tibbits' winning streak ended at 11 in a row when he lost a decision to Joe Sutka in an additional fight of eight rounds. Attendance was 1,374 and gross receipts $1,590.72.

LEADING MIDGET AUTO DRIVERS TO FIGHT FOR TITLE

Inquiries to the Chicago Bowl corporation indicate the world championship midget auto races in Soldier's field next month will find the leading auto race drivers of the country battling for the monetary awards and the title.

Sam Hanks, colorful coast star; Ronnie Householder, last year's national champion; Bob Swanson, west coast champion; and Emil Andres and Harry MacQueen are some of the top-notch riders who have indicated they will be on hand the opening night, June 9.

In the meantime, President Arthur W. Folz and Managing-Director A. J. Strak, are busying themselves with approval of plans for the quarter-mile board track championship event. The wooden saucer used for the '39 race found the midgets averaging 80 miles per hour and coming close to the 100 mile mark on the straightaways.

One of the engineering ideas under consideration is a minor change in the construction of the surface leading in and out of the turns. This will add several additional miles to the average and will be adopted, provided it does not lessen the safety feature.

MOON MULLINS—WORDS TO THE WISE

Herman Hits Homer in 11th; Cubs Win, 5-4

Galan and the other popped to Herman. Dean's only trouble in the third was a pass to Martin with two gone, and he went out attempting to steal. The only Cub accomplishment in these two innings was a double by Stan Hack.

Mahan beat out a bunt to Dean's right to open the fourth and Old Diz was soon up to his neck in work. He picked up Arnovich's tap to force Mahan at second and then handed a pass to Klein, whose previous hit hadn't been forgotten. Ben Warren filled the bases with a single knocked down by Bobby Mattick in deep short. Emmett Mueller banged a single past Cavarretta to send Arnovich and Klein across and put Warren on third. Warren tried to score on Del Young's tap to Cavarretta, but was out. Johnson let Diz down easy. He fanned.

Phils Catch Up With Diz.

Feeling refreshed because they hadn't been damaged by Bill Nicholson's double in the fourth, the Phils lost no time completing their operation on Dean in the fifth. With one out Martin walked and Mahan singled to left. Arnovich let a third strike float past, but Klein drilled a single into center, Martin scoring. Warren whacked a single over short, Mahan scoring and Diz going to more peaceful surroundings. Raffensberger took charge and closed the inning with Mueller flying to Galan.

French Saves the Day.

The Cubs enjoyed excursion rates in the seventh when they scored the tying run. Dom Dallessandro, batting for Raffensberger, walked, whereupon Brown replaced Higbe. Brown's globe circling curve got away for a wild pitch and Dallessandro took second. After Hack and Herman had been set down, Dallessandro went to third on another wild pitch. Galan walked and Leiber sent a slow roller toward third, beating it out for a hit, Dallessandro scoring. Manager Gabby Hartnett batted for Nicholson and forced Leiber.

The Phils had the Cubs more than a little worried in the ninth. Schulte opened with a single off Root and was sacrificed to second by Martin. Root threw out Mahan, but then lost control, walking both Arnovich and Klein. Gus Suhr sauntered forth to bat for Warren so French took Root's place and struck out Suhr. Thereafter French did pretty well for himself.

Cubs Try for Two, Settle for One

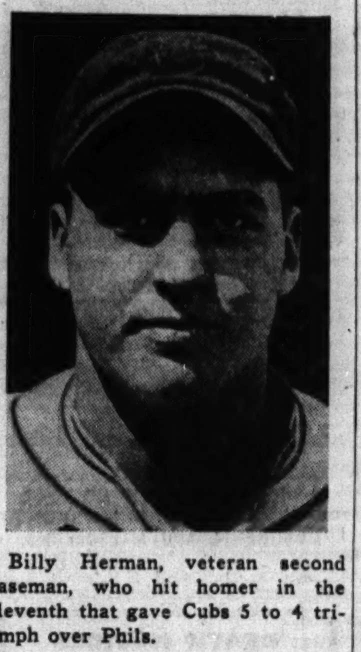
Cubs, Passeau Face Pearson in Game Today

The Phillies will send Ike Pearson, a right handed collegian, against the Cubs in the final game of the series in Wrigley field today. They lured him off the Mississippi State campus last year. The Phils will have to contend with their former pal, Claude Passeau.

Clay Bryant, the No. 2 cripple, celebrated the appearance of the No. 1 cripple, Diz Dean, by donning a uniform yesterday for the first time since his tonsils were yanked. Bryant says his bum arm feels frisky already, but until he actually does some pitching it will have to be charged to imagination.

Before yesterday's game Billy Herman, observing that Si Johnson was warming up, remarked, "Well, my cousin is going to pitch, so I may start hitting." He doubled the first time up and singled to start the productive sixth, which terminated Johnson's terms. And his homer in the 11th off Lloyd Brown won the game.



Billy Herman, veteran second baseman, who hit homer in the eleventh that gave Cubs 5 to 4 triumph over Phils.

Rigney Blows 2 Run Lead as A's Win, 3-2

scoring innings, negotiating one run on three singles in the first inning and one on three singles, a sacrifice, and a walk in the third inning.

After Bob Kennedy had fanned to get the game going, Kuhel singled to center, paused while Mike Kreevich flied to Bob Johnson, took third on Wright's single and scored on Appling's single, Wright taking third. There was a base running mixup after Kuhel scored, which resulted in Wright being run down between third and home when he apparently thought somebody over near Appling at first had the ball.

Sox Miss Another Chance.

A walk to Julius Solters and a hit and run single by Mike Tresh had Sox runners on third and first with one out in the second inning, but Rigney was called out on strikes and Tresh was forced by Kennedy.

The second Sox run, like the first, was scored by Kuhel. Joe opened the third with a single to left and advanced on Kreevich's sacrifice. Wright came thru with his second single, scoring Kuhel. Appling put Wright on third with his second single and Solters walked, loading the bases. Then Eric McNair hit into a double play.

Rigney retired the first six Athletic batsmen, but the seventh, Chapman, not only reached base, he reached all of them by knocking the ball into the left field stands. Al Rubeling struck out and Potter walked. Bill Lillard struck out and Wally Moses doubled to right, Potter stopping at third. McCoy bounced to Kuhel.

Athletics Get Busy.

The Sox, with all their seven hits in the first three innings, made only one off the same pitcher in the next three and it didn't count for much. McNair singled with two out in the sixth, but was out trying to stretch it to a double.

The Athletics, in the meantime, threatened in the fourth and fifth and went ahead in the sixth. McCoy opened the home sixth with a double off the right field wall, took third on Johnson's infield out, and scored the tying run on Siebert's double to right. Hayes singled to left, Siebert scoring to put the Athletics ahead, 3 to 2. Chapman hit into a double play launched by Kennedy.

It appeared the Sox were on the way to the tying run when Tresh opened the seventh with a double to right and took third on Rigney's fly to Chapman. But Kennedy knocked a grounder to Rubeling, whose throw to Hayes headed off Tresh. Hayes dropped the throw, but Tresh had turned back and soon was run down, Kennedy reaching second. McCoy threw out Kuhel.

Knott to Make '40 Debut Today Against Macks

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., May 6.—Jack Knott is scheduled to make his first appearance of the season as a starting pitcher in tomorrow's White Sox-Athletics series final here. He probably will be opposed by George Caster, who was announced for today, but was supplanted by Nelson Potter.

Manager Jimmy Dykes arrived at the ball park this afternoon with the announcement that Mrs. Dykes had rallied splendidly after an operation in a Philadelphia hospital. Jimmy will remain in Philadelphia until Wednesday morning, then will go to Washington in time to direct the two-game series there.

The Sox, long aloof in the matter of scheduling exhibition games during the regular season games, have arranged several for this summer, the first of which was announced today. On June 10 the Sox, instead of playing their scheduled game here, will play a night game in Wilmington, Del. They also will play the Athletics at night, on June 11, in Philadelphia.

Illinois college scored once in the sixth and twice in the seventh. Gulyash drove in the tying and winning runs in the seventh.

Giants Halted by Thompson; Reds Win, 9-1

Cincinnati, O., May 6 (AP).—The rampant Reds staged a seven run spree in the sixth inning today and overwhelmed the New York Giants 9 to 1 on the five hit hurling of Gene Thompson.

Paul Dean made his 1940 debut, pitching two scoreless innings in a relief rôle for the Giants. The ex-St. Louis Cardinal had an easy seventh after supplanting Harry Gumbert. The Reds got two singles off him and two long, hard flies, in the eighth.

Gumbert was the victim of all the Cincinnati scoring, yielding a run in the first and again in the third, each time on three hits, and then going to pieces in the sixth during a five hit bombardment climaxed by Harry Craft's three run homer. Score:

"Old Country Beer Lovers Won't Drink a Beer That Has to Be Freezing Cold to Be Palatable Please Enjoy the Delicate All-Grain Fragrance in Our Brew."

By Richard Seibold
Meister Bräu Brewmaster

COMPARE FLAVOR AT 50 DEGREES... undisguised by Cold!

● Maybe I'm too fussy about serving beer at the right temperature. But ice-cold beer is wrong. There's no use our putting the finest grains in a brew just to have the flavor over-chilled so you can't recognize it. We might as well add sugars or syrups and save time. We might as well add artificial gas when we bottle instead of using only natural draft beer carbonation created in the beer itself.

Beer flavor, good or bad, shows up at about 50 degrees. If you want to know what kind of beer you're drinking, drink it at 50 degrees. That means, take an ice-cold bottle out of the refrigerator and let it stand until it's the proper temperature.

Do that and you'll never again say, "Give me a bottle of Beer." You'll know it pays to ask for Meister Bräu. For 49 years we've made a beer for the 50-degree drinkers—the beer cranks. Order Meister Bräu today and I'll stake my reputation on your verdict if you make the "50-degrees" test.

PETER HAND BREWERY COMPANY, Chicago

Thousands have switched to MEISTER BRÄU after making this "50-degrees" Test

Ask for Meister Bräu Draft Beer. Bars take special care to serve it at the proper temperature.

Since 1912, Mr. Schlake had been trustee of Concordia Teachers' college, River Forest, from which he was graduated in 1883. In 1920, he was named by the Missouri synod of the Evangelical Lutheran church to head a commission for reorganizing the work of the church in Alsace-Lorraine.

URGES A SLIDING SCALE OF UTILITY RATE SCHEDULES

Determination of rates charged by Illinois public utility companies by a "sliding scale" method similar to a plan now used in Washington, D. C., was proposed yesterday by Harry R. Booth, counsel for the Illinois Commerce commission.

The plan, explained by Booth, provides for an initial agreement by the utility company and the state regulatory commission on a valuation of the company's properties. Thereafter the costs of additions are added to the valuation and depreciation is subtracted from it. A base percentage of return on the valuation is agreed on, and annual adjustments are made of the rates charged customers, to make the revenues produce the agreed percentage return. The base return for gas and electric companies in Washington is 6.5 per cent on the agreed valuation.

"If statutory authority in Illinois could be obtained," Booth said, "rates fixed under this method should be fair to the utility, the investors, the regulatory agencies, and the public."

HELP KIDNEYS PASS 3 PINTS A DAY

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. Kidneys remove excess acids and poisonous waste from your blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

HOSPITAL TESTS REVEAL GREAT DISCOVERY FOR CONSTIPATION

Tests in a world-famous hospital have proved a "little daily dose" of Kruschen (world-famous formula) actually produces nature's own bowel movements by keeping the waste matter in the colon moist, soft and easy to expel.

Scientists report: "Kruschen can be taken for years without having to increase the dose." Kruschen acts as a mild Antacid and Kidney Stimulant. Gives you MORE for your money. A jar that costs only a trifle lasts for WEEKS. Over 245,000,000 jars have been sold throughout the world. Kruschen MUST be good—it MUST do the work! Made in U. S. A.

3 VAST CHICAGO BUSINESSES SET SALES RECORDS

New High for Sears, Ward, Walgreen.

All time April sales records were reported yesterday by Sears, Roebuck & Co., Montgomery Ward & Co., and the Walgreen company — three of Chicago's largest merchandising enterprises.

Thomas J. Carney reports Sears-Roebuck gain.

In addition, Sears, Roebuck and Montgomery Ward reported the largest volume of sales in history for the first quarter of their fiscal years which begin on Feb. 1 The Walgreen company reported the largest volume in its history for the four months ended April 30.

Sears, Roebuck and Montgomery Ward are the largest mail order houses in the world and each also operates large chains of department and general stores. Walgreen is one of the largest drug store chains in the United States.

Sears Sales Up 10 Per Cent.

April sales of Sears, Roebuck & Co. amounted to $56,372,006, compared with $51,235,757 in the 1939 month, a gain of $5,136,239, or 10 per cent. The volume of business for February, March, and April was $148,106,749, up $12,202,851, or 9 per cent over the $135,903,898 reported for the first quarter of last year.

Thomas J. Carney, president of Sears, reported that retail sales were slightly better than mail order business. He said that sales improved during the latter part of last month as a result of more favorable weather conditions.

"It is interesting to note how evenly sales increased in our stores and thru mail orders from all parts of the country," Carney said. "Demand for spring merchandise is good and business has improved considerably in the industrial areas."

Better Former Records.

April sales of Montgomery Ward & Co. reached $45,855,988, a gain of 10.24 per cent, or $4,260,673 over the $41,595,315 of a year ago. Sales in the first quarter totaled $115,228,534, compared with $102,289,291 in 1939. Since sales in April and the first quarter of 1939 were at record highs, the $12,939,243 gain, representing 12.65 per cent, was regarded highly significant by the company.

Walgreen company sales in April were 1.4 per cent larger than a year ago, totaling $5,865,696, against $5,785,162. The gain was made despite the fact Easter came in April last year and the 1939 month had five Saturdays, the best sales day of the week for this and other companies in its field.

The drug system's sales in the first four months of 1940 totaled $24,092,577, topping last year's volume of $23,079,527 by 4.4 per cent, or $1,013,050.

Steel Industry Gain Reported by Stettinius

Hoboken, N. J., May 6 (AP).—Sounding an encouraging note on the steel industry's immediate prospects, Edward R. Stettinius Jr., chairman of the United States Steel corporation, told a large gathering of stockholders today the corporation is now operating at 63 per cent of capacity. He said the rate was only 43.3 per cent at this time last year.

More significant, the 63 per cent was reported by other corporation spokesmen to be well above the operating rate a month ago.

This, along with other reports on the general steel trend, including the American Iron and Steel institute estimate that this week's operations are up 4 points to 65.8 per cent, was taken as an indication that the nation's number one basic industry was turning upward again after a long decline from the record high production level established last November.

War Profits Are Illusory.

Stettinius also told the 300 stockholders who crowded the meeting room that war had stimulated the corporation's export business. But he endorsed the opinions of other steel men and industrialists in declaring that war profits were illusory.

Quoting from the corporation's annual report Stettinius said:

"It seems appropriate to state that quite aside from the humanitarian and moral issues, war orders represent only a fleeting prosperity and war business is certain to result in a disruptive shifting of our economy."

To show war's influence he asserted that thus far this year foreign business amounted to about 13 per cent of total finished tonnage shipped, compared with 9 per cent for all of 1939.

Competition Is Diminished.

"It is noteworthy, however," he added, "that a considerable part of the increase in our export business is not traceable directly to war needs but is due to diminishing competition from foreign sources in neutral countries as a result of the war."

Stettinius commented on the modernization program involving tin plate facilities in the Birmingham, Pittsburgh, and Chicago districts. In Pittsburgh the plan calls for installation of another cold reduction mill and processing equipment to increase production of cold reduced black plate at the Irvin works. In Chicago and Birmingham there will be installed additional processing and finishing equipment at the tin mills. The corporation spent $26,000,000 last year for improvements and betterments.

Ranking Officers Attend.

Many of the corporation's high officers attended the meeting. They included E. M. Voorhees, chairman of the finance committee; James A. Farrell and William A. Irvin, former presidents, and W. J. Filbert, former chairman of the finance committee, who have remained as members of the board. Leon Fraser, president of the First National Bank of New York, also sat in as a steel corporation director.

After Stettinius read his prepared remarks two or three stockholders gained the floor and urged that the management give more consideration to the interests of common stockholders. In answer to one shareholder who urged that the board declare another dividend soon, Stettinius said it was the corporation's policy to pay dividends on the common stock whenever possible, but that he could not predict the next payment.

SCANDINAVIAN, BRITISH EMPIRE BONDS BREAK; UNSETTLE WHOLE LIST

New York, May 6 (AP).—Distress signs reappeared in the bond market's foreign section today, chiefly in British empire and Scandinavian groups.

Wide breaks in the obligations of Norway and New South Wales tended to unsettle the whole foreign division, altho loans of Belgium, Hungary, and Italy were relatively steady. In markets obviously lacking bids Norway Municipal bank 5s of '70 dropped 27 points from the previous transaction and Oslo City 4½s of '55 plunged 18¾. Sydney 5½s gave up 5.

Domestic corporate issues tried to put on a rally, but many faltered in late dealings and the close was mixed.

WELLES REFUSES COMMENT ON OIL STAND OF MEXICO

Washington, D. C., May 6 [Special].—The state department is making a detailed study of Mexico's note rejecting the American proposal for arbitration of the oil expropriation controversy, but Sumner Welles, acting secretary of state, today said there would be no comment until all phases of the problem are considered.

Welles conferred with Patrick J. Hurley, counsel for the Sinclair interests which have made a separate settlement. Hurley was still awaiting word of formal and final approval of the agreement by Lazaro Cardenas, Mexican president.

In the meantime Representative Dewey Short [R., Mo.] in a house speech assailed the Mexican government as a "thief." He called for the imposition of economic sanctions in reprisal for its expropriation of American land, oil, and railroad properties. Short declared the Cardenas government was operating on "Moscow principles" and that "the hour has struck when the United States government must cease coddling the communists."

Twin Coach Gets Orders for 31 New Motor Buses

Railway Labor Divided Over Wheeler Bill

In Chicago, the heads of six powerful brotherhoods issued a joint statement asking their members to support recommitment of the bill. They charged labor had been "double crossed" by the railroads.

In Washington, D. C., 13 labor organizations joined in a statement advocating passage of the bill, which places water carriers and motor trucks under jurisdiction of the Interstate Commerce commission, which regulates the railroads.

Whitney Signs Statement.

Backed by President Roosevelt, the act originally had the support of railway labor and management. Several amendments were added in the course of its consideration by committees of congress and the interunion opposition developed.

Included in the Chicago group were A. F. Whitney, head of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen; A. Johnston, grand chief engineer of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers; D. B. Robertson, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen; J. A. Phillips, president of the Order of Railway Conductors; T. C. Cashen, president of the Switchmen's Union of North America, and V. O. Gardner, president of the Order of Railroad Telegraphers.

Cause of Protest.

Referring to provisions that in cases of merger or consolidation all railroad employés would maintain their pay roll status whether or not absorbed by the new organization, the Chicago statement said:

"We had every reason to believe that the provision would remain in the bill. We now learn that the carriers played an important part in having this section eliminated."

The statement issued in Washington was signed by the heads of the American Train Dispatchers' association, and unions of machinists, boilermakers, blacksmiths, sheet metal workers, electrical workers, railway carmen and oilers, clerks, maintenance of way employés, signalmen, sleeping car conductors, and the railway employés' department, American Federation of Labor.

Directors of General Motors corporation yesterday declared a dividend of $1 a share on the common stock. Disbursement, which will be made June 12 to stock of record May 16, will total more than $42,500,000.

A payment of 75 cents was made March 12. Payments of 75 cents each were made in March, June, and September, 1939, and $1.25 was paid at the year-end. Common stock holders at Dec. 31 numbered 364,675.

Brunswick Pays More.

Brunswick-Balke-Collender company authorized a dividend of 50 cents a share on the common stock, payable June 15 to stock of record June 5. In announcing the payment, R. F. Bensinger, president, said that the prospects for 1940 warranted the increased disbursement.

Together with the 25 cents paid March 15, this brings first half disbursements to 75 cents a share, compared with 50 cents for the first two quarters of 1939. Total payments in 1939 were $2.75 a share.

A dividend of 75 cents a share on the common stock and the regular semi-annual payment of $1.50 a share on class A stock, both payable July 1 to record June 12, were announced yesterday by the Coca-Cola company. A similar dividend was paid to common holders April 1, 1940.

Sheaffer Pen Votes Extra.

Directors of the W. A. Sheaffer Pen company, Fort Madison, Ia., declared an extra dividend of 25 cents and a regular dividend of 50 cents a share on common stock, payable May 25 to stock of record May 16. A dividend of $1.50 was paid Feb. 26.

Vick Chemical company directors voted the usual quarterly dividend of 50 cents a share on common stock, the usual extra of 10 cents, and in addition declared a special fiscal year-end payment of 60 cents a share, or $1.20 in all. The dividends are payable June 1 to holders of record May 1.

Thus far in 1940, payments voted total $1.80, contrasted with $1.20 in the first 1939 half. In all of 1939 the company paid $2.40 a common share.

Douglas Aircraft's Earnings Mount as Sales Set Record

Record sales in the three months ended Feb. 29 boosted net income of Douglas Aircraft Company, Inc., to $1,804,877 for the period, Donald W. Douglas, president, reported yesterday to stockholders. In the corresponding period a year earlier the company earned $771,521. Per share earnings in the respective quarters were $3 and $1.35.

Donald W. Douglas.

Sales soared to an all-time high mark of $12,920,904 in the three months, compared with $6,408,020 a year earlier.

The report showed that Douglas' backlog of unfilled orders was $113,744,398 last April 30. Of this $18,000,000 was in orders for commercial air transports for domestic and foreign air lines.

Adds Many New Employés.

"Sales and earnings in the first quarter of the 1940 fiscal year should not be considered as fully indicative of operations or profits for the entire year," Douglas said. "Difficulties in obtaining from outside manufacturers sufficient accessories and parts and a temporary decrease in operating efficiency resulting from rapid increase of personnel may find reflection in volume of sales and results from operations in the next quarter or subsequent quarters."

Douglas said the El Segundo and Santa Monica divisions of the company added 3,238 new employés between Nov. 29, 1939, and Feb. 29, 1940. The total on May 1, 1940, was 16,984.

Coca Cola Earns More

The Coca Cola company reported that net earnings, before income taxes, for the first quarter of 1940 were $7,632,666, compared with $6,524,664 for the first three months of 1939.

Checker Cab Manufacturing corporation reported consolidated net loss of $109,254 for the quarter ended March 31, compared with net loss of $80,982 in the 1939 quarter.

Loft, Inc., and subsidiaries, including Loft Candy corporation, but not Pepsi-Cola company, reported a March quarter net loss of $282,749. This compared with $393,734 net loss in the corresponding quarter of 1939. Pepsi-Cola company, in which Loft has a 79.2 per cent interest, reported March quarter earnings of $915,000.

CARNEGIE SEEKS CAN COMPANY'S TIN MACHINERY

The Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation said yesterday that it is negotiating with the Continental Can company for the purchase of the latter's tinning equipment in its plant in the Clearing industrial district at Chicago. If the purchase goes thru the equipment will be used at the steel company's Gary sheet and tinplate mills. The purchase will not affect the can making facilities of Continental, it was said.

Carnegie-Illinois announced some time ago that it was purchasing equipment to round out its facilities for production of cold rolled tin plate at its plants in the Chicago and Pittsburgh districts. It emphasized yesterday that it does not intend to go into the business of manufacturing tin cans and added that it is not buying Continental's plant at Clearing.

BRITISH POUND FALLS 6¼ CENTS TO NEW LOW SINCE START OF WAR

New York, May 6 (AP).—The pound sterling plunged 6¼ cents today to the lowest price since outbreak of the war in the wake of new German claims of empire losses at sea. Sterling closed at $3.41.

The price, which cracked as demand dried up, was further affected by reports England contemplated the addition of more empire products to those which can be bought only with certain currencies or with sterling bought at the official Bank of England rate. The price charged by the Bank of England is currently more than 60 cents above the local free rate.

OIL CONVICTIONS IN MADISON CASE ARE RULED VALID

Supreme Court Holds Law Violated.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 6.—The United States Supreme court today upheld the conviction of 12 corporations and five individuals in the so-called Madison oil conspiracy case in a 67 page opinion restating and apparently strengthening the antitrust law.

Justice Douglas writes majority opinion.

The Supreme court reversed the 7th Circuit Court of Appeals at Chicago, which ordered a new trial for the respondents, and sustained Federal Judge Stone of Madison, Wis., who refused to grant a new trial after a jury had returned a verdict of guilty under the Sherman antitrust act. The corporate defendants, all major oil companies, were fined $5,000 each, and the individual officials were fined $1,000 each.

Longest Pronouncement in Years.

Justice William O. Douglas wrote the majority opinion, the longest pronouncement handed down by the court in many years. Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes and Justice Frank Murphy took no part in the case. Justice Owen J. Roberts delivered a dissenting opinion in which Justice James Clark McReynolds concurred.

The dissenting opinion indicates that the decision wipes out the Supreme court's famous "rule of reason" as applied to agreements and combinations in restraint of trade. This was the rule prescribed by the court back in the 90's, when it held in the Standard Oil and American Tobacco company cases that the Sherman act prohibits only unreasonable restraints of trade.

Justice Douglas, in reviewing more than 40 years of antitrust law decisions, said the court had "consistently and without deviation adhered to the principle that price-fixing agreements are unlawful per se under the

Stocks

New York Stocks.

New York, May 6 (AP).—Light selling in the final hour halted a selective stock market rally today and extreme gains running to around 2 points were whittled down substantially or transformed into losses at the close.

Transfers totaled 526,000 shares, against 1,070,750 last Friday, and were the smallest for a 5 hour session since March 18. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was off 0.1 point at 49.7.

Steels led the forenoon upturn, but backed away notwithstanding a more than expected rise of 4 points in this week's mill operations. United States Steel ended off ⅛ and Bethlehem, after being up to 1⅞, finished only ½ higher.

Safeway Stores and United States Rubber, preferred were soft spots showing declines of 2¼ and 3½ points respectively. Lesser declines were shown in Chrysler, Boeing, United Aircraft, Anaconda, American Telephone, Santa Fe, Southern Railway, Westinghouse, Union Carbide, Johns-Manville, and Public Service of New Jersey.

After the close General Motors voted a dividend of $1 on the common stock, which had finished up ⅛. Chrysler loafed from the start and closed ¼ lower.

Douglas Aircraft was the only one of the aviations to do much of anything. It was up 1⅛, seemingly helped by its disclosure of profits amounting to $3 a share in the first quarter, against $1.35 in the 1939 period.

Chicago Stocks.

Chicago stocks made little headway yesterday in trading which resulted in losses and gains being about equal. Chicago corporation was the most active, but closed unchanged at 1¼. Commonwealth Edison, the second most active issue, likewise wound up without a change, closing at 32⅝. Volume was only 22,000 shares.

Bank Stocks.

HEAT IMPROVES WHEAT OUTLOOK; FUTURES TUMBLE

Clear and much warmer weather over the American winter and spring wheat belts more than offset increasing threats the European war would spread to the Mediterranean as a market influence yesterday. Wheat closed about the bottom with losses of 1⅛ cents a bushel.

Corn was under some pressure on reports that farmers had started redeeming grain from government loans in parts of Illinois. Futures closed ¼ to ½ cent lower. Other grains followed wheat and corn and showed moderate losses at the close.

Temperatures of 90 and over in the southwest over the week-end were regarded as favorable for the rapid growth of the wheat crop. Reports from the northwest indicated wheat seeded recently was germinating well.

SEC CALLS QUIZ ON UTILITY VOTE BUYING CHARGES

Union Electric of Missouri Named in Order.

Washington, D. C., May 6 (AP).—The Securities and Exchange commission ordered hearings today to determine whether the North American company and Union Electric company of Missouri had made illegal political contributions.

The commission said its investigators had obtained information indicating that the companies had spent sums on politics which were not shown on the books of the companies as reported to the commission.

Three separate orders against both companies were issued under the Securities act of 1933, the Securities Exchange act of 1934, and the Public Utility Holding Company act of 1935.

No Hearing Date Fixed.

No definite date was fixed for the hearings, but the commission said they would not be started in less than 20 days.

All three orders said that Commission Investigators Herbert S. French, Paul J. Cotter and Harry C. Coles Jr., "have reported to the commission evidence tending to show that for a long period of time conditions and practices of the character enumerated may have existed.

"In view of said report," the SEC said, "it appears to the commission to be necessary and appropriate in the public interest to determine whether:

"Substantial contributions have been made, directly and indirectly, in connection with the candidacy, nomination, election and appointment of various persons to public office, and in support of political parties.

"Substantial payments have been made for the purpose of influencing the opinions and conduct of persons holding public office.

Mentions Other Activities.

"Substantial sums have been disbursed for the personal uses of certain officers and employés thereof, for gifts to and entertainment of persons holding public office; such disbursements are not properly reflected in the accounts of said companies."

The orders gave no indication of what political campaigns might have been involved in the charges, or in what years the alleged payments were made.

Altho the orders were directed to the North American company, as well as the Union Electric company, the body of the charges contained no allegations of wrong-doing against the North American company, and apparently that firm was named principally because it controls the Missouri firm.

Aircraft and Auto Men Promoted

Eugene Edward Wilson

New York, May 6 (AP).—Eugene Edward Wilson was elected president of United Aircraft corporation at a meeting of directors today. He succeeds the late Donald L. Brown.

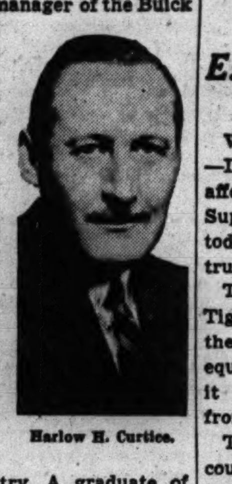
Wilson has been associated with United Aircraft since 1930, when he resigned from the navy with rank of commander and was made president of Hamilton Standard Propeller corporation, a United Aircraft subsidiary. Later he became president of Sikorsky Aircraft corporation, another subsidiary, and still later president of a third subsidiary, the Chance Vought corporation. Since 1937 he has been elected to the office of senior vice president of United Aircraft.



Harlow H. Curtice.

New York, May 6 (AP).—Harlow H. Curtice, general manager of the Buick motor division of General Motors corporation, today was elected a vice president of General Motors.

A graduate of Ferris institute at Big Rapids, Mich., his first job in the auto field was with the AC Spark Plug company in 1914 as an accountant. The spark plug company is now a G. M. affiliate.

Garrett has been director of public relations for G. M. since 1931.

PACKERS URGE: EAT MORE MEAT FOR BETTER DIET

The Institute of American Meat Packers yesterday announced a nation-wide advertising and merchandising program emphasizing the healthful qualities of meat and its place in a balanced diet. A large part of the advertising will appear in newspapers and magazines.

"The people of America need more meat for a balanced diet for greater health," George A. Schmidt, chairman of the board of the institute, said. "During the last five years the consumption of meat and lard averaged only about 12 per cent greater than during a similar period 25 years ago. Meanwhile our population has increased about 40 per cent.

"America is considerably behind other nations in this respect. From 1935 to 1939, inclusive, our per capita consumption has averaged only about 137 pounds a year, while in Argentina it was 326 pounds; in New Zealand, 321 pounds, and in Australia, 205 pounds."

SUPREME COURT UPHOLDS TEXAS ANTITRUST LAW

Exemption of Farmer Ruled No Bar.

Washington, D. C., May 6 [Special].—In one of a number of decisions affecting agriculture or industry, the Supreme court of the United States today held constitutional a Texas antitrust law enacted in 1925.

The act was challenged by Herbert Tigner of Harris county, Texas, on the ground that it deprived him of equal protection of the law because it exempted stockmen and farmers from its provisions.

Tigner had been indicted in Harris county on a charge of conspiracy to fix the retail price of beer. Seeking a writ to release him from custody, Tigner charged that he could be compelled to serve 10 years in a penitentiary while a farmer neighbor, "who does the same thing, cannot be called to account."

Argument of State.

The state of Texas, opposing his claim, asserted economic conditions have become such that it is a public policy to recognize agricultural producers and stock raisers as a separate class, exempt from the 1925 act, which prohibits conspiracies in restraint of trade.

"We find no constitutional bar against excluding farmers and stockmen from the criminal statute against combination and monopoly, and we conclude there likewise is no bar against making the exemption partial rather than complete," Justice Frankfurter said. Justice McReynolds dissented.

The high court agreed to review a decision that radio stations may appeal from a refusal of the federal communications commission to permit a license transfer.

FCC Had Appealed.

The FCC appealed from the District of Columbia Court of Appeals, which had denied a motion to dismiss suits brought by the Columbia Broadcasting system of California and the Associated Broadcasters, Inc., operator of station KSFO at San Francisco. Associated and Columbia requested consent to an assignment of the KSFO license from Associated to Columbia.

The court refused to review a National Labor Relations board decision ordering the Good Coal company of Harlan county, Kentucky, to reinstate 107 workers alleged dismissed for union activity and to bargain collectively with District 19 of the United Mine Workers of America.

Report Allies Inquiring for Cotton Goods Prices

New York, May 6 (AP).—Allied purchasing agents were reported today to have sounded out the textile market for prices on cotton duck and khaki for shipment to Europe, presumably for military needs. Similar inquiries were said to have been made in the Canadian market. Several weeks ago France was rumored in the market for substantial quantities of heavy duck for tents. So far as could be learned actual orders were deferred.

Supreme Court Declares Law Violated.

Sherman act and that no showing of so-called competitive abuses or evils which those agreements were designed to eliminate or alleviate may be interposed as a defense."

Inconsistent, Says Roberts.

But Justice Roberts said the majority opinion was inconsistent with the court's opinion in the Appalachian Coals case and with the firmly established principle that "concerted action to remove a harmful and destructive practice in an industry, even tho such removal may have the effect of raising the price level, is not offensive to the Sherman act if it is not intended and does not operate unreasonably to restrain interstate commerce."

It has been held, he said, that such action does not unreasonably restrain interstate commerce, "if, as here, it involves no agreement for uniform prices, but leaves the defendants free to compete with each other in the matter of price."

Eliminate Distress Gasoline.

There was substantial evidence, Justice Roberts declared, that all the defendants agreed to do, or did, was to act in concert to eliminate distress gasoline from the market because it tended to impair or destroy normal competition. There was substantial evidence, he said, that what they agreed to do and did neither fixed nor controled prices nor unreasonably affected normal competition.

"I think the defendants were entitled," Justice Roberts added, "to have the jury charged that, in order to convict them, the jury must find that, altho defendants knew the result of their activities would be a rise in the level of prices, nevertheless, if what they agreed to do, and did, had no substantial tendency to restrain competition in interstate commerce in transactions in gasoline the verdict should be not guilty."

Many Brought to Trial.

The government brought to trial 26 corporations and 46 individuals. The jury returned verdicts of guilty as to 16 corporations and 30 individuals. The trial court ordered new trials as to 3 corporations and 15 individuals and set aside the verdict as to one corporation and 10 individuals.

Those whose convictions were upheld today are the Socony-Vacuum Oil Company, Inc.; Wadhams Oil company, Empire Oil and Refining company, Continental Oil company, the Pure Oil company, Shell Petroleum corporation, Sinclair Refining company, Mid-Continent Petroleum corporation, Phillips Petroleum company, Skelly Oil company, the Globe Oil and Refining company of Oklahoma, the Globe Oil and Refining company of Illinois, C. E. Arnott, vice president of Socony-Vacuum, R. H. McElroy Jr., tank car sales manager of Pure Oil, P. E. Lakin, general sales manager of Shell, R. W. McDowell, vice president of Mid-Continent.

The indictment charged that the major oil companies, early in 1935, combined and conspired for the purpose of artificially raising and fixing the tank car prices of gasoline in the spot markets in the east Texas and midcontinent fields; that they maintained such prices and thereby in turn raised the general level of prices to jobbers and the retail prices to consumers.

Agree to Buy Distress Gasoline.

At a meeting of the tank car committee representing the major companies in February, 1935, according to the Douglas opinion, it was estimated that there would be between 600 and 700 tank cars of distress gasoline produced in the midcontinent field every month by 17 independent refiners. Each of the major companies, therefore, allegedly agreed to select one or more of the independent refiners as its "dancing partner" and to assume responsibility for purchasing its distress supply of gasoline. In this manner the buying program would be coördinated and the marketing regulated in an orderly manner.

As a result of this program, according to the opinion, service station prices in the midwestern area rose from 12.56 cents less tax in March, 1935, to 13.26 cents by the middle of April and never fell below that figure, altho rising still higher during the summer.

Cites Previous Decisions.

In reviewing previous decisions bearing upon the law, Justice Douglas said the Supreme court held, in United States vs. Trenton Potteries, that an agreement on the part of the members of a combination, controlling a substantial part of an industry, upon the prices which the members are to charge is in itself an unreasonable restraint of trade without regard to the reasonableness of the prices or the good intentions of the combining units. The court pointed out in that case, he said, that the so-called "rule of reason" previously announced did not affect the view that agreements to fix or maintain prices are illegal.

As to the contention of the defendants that they were doing only what they were required by law to do under the NRA, Justice Douglas said that, "admittedly no approval of the buying programs was obtained under the National Industrial Recovery act prior to its termination on June 16, 1935, which would give immunity to respondents from prosecution under the Sherman act."

Justice Douglas condemned, altho not as severely as did Justice Roberts, some of the statements made to the jury by government counsel. Some of their remarks, he said, were in the nature of appeals to class prejudice, were undignified, intemperate and highly improper. But these statements were not sufficiently prejudicial to constitute reversible error, Justice Douglas said.

Justice Roberts characterized the remarks of government lawyers as "egregious violations of the canons of fair comment and said they were sufficient in themselves to require a new trial.

"One of the most reprehensible things a prosecutor can do is to attempt to put into evidence before the jury his own, and his colleagues' opinion as to the guilt of the defendants he is prosecuting," Justice Roberts said.

TWO AIR TRANSPORT SYSTEMS REPORT BIG APRIL TRAFFIC GAINS

United flew an estimated total of 16,064,400 revenue passenger miles in April for a gain of 60 per cent over the 10,057,299 revenue passenger miles flown in April, 1939, R. W. Ireland, general traffic manager, said. The April total represented a 20 per cent gain over March, 1940.

Pennsylvania-Central flew 2,865,599 revenue passenger miles in April, a 75.53 per cent gain over the 1,632,569 total for April, 1939, Edward Sullivan, general traffic manager, said. The gain over March, 1940 was 17.55 per cent. Sullivan said the 16,166 passengers carried in April was the largest number in the company's history, setting a new record for the second consecutive month.

AUSTRALIANS HIT PROFITEERING BY BRITISH SHIPPERS

Declare Import Rules Harm Industry.

BY W. A. O'CARROLL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SYDNEY, Australia, May 6.—Crippling of Australian industries thru "short sighted" restrictions on imports is predicted by manufacturers who have complained to customs officials. They charge that British exporters are taking advantage of Australia's restrictions on imports from countries not in the pound sterling bloc to increase the price of goods which Australia now must obtain from the United Kingdom.

Manufacturers also charge that, despite the restrictions on raw materials, finished articles made in England from materials obtained in nonsterling countries are permitted to enter. They argue that unless this policy is rectified unemployment soon will become a pressing problem.

Charge Profiteering.

Customs officials have been told that groups of British industrialists have raised prices unnecessarily and have been urged to check importation of such articles. Manufacturers demand that if the government prevents raw materials from entering Australia from nonsterling countries it also should prevent the importation of goods manufactured in Britain from similar raw materials. They say that this results in no saving in nonsterling exchange and that British industry is reaping the benefit at the expense of Australia.

Approximately 40 per cent of the commodities comprised in the latest list of import restrictions are made in Canada. Some government advisers believe that trade among empire countries should be continued as long as possible on a free basis. The problem of exchange, they say, could have been overcome by a credit agreement between Australia and Canada.

Urge Selective Control.

Some change in the system of controling imports may come before the new licensing period expires, it is indicated. This change may take the form of control over only certain specified imports rather than general control over import items from nonsterling sources. Some businessmen believe such a system would prevent a shortage of raw materials for defense purposes, and would give the government the right to withhold such material from less important fields.

In the case of gasoline the government has been seeking to interest American companies in investing money permanently in Australia, but so far has not met with success. It has been suggested that oil and other companies be permitted to supply their own Australian branches with certain classes of goods without requiring transfers of dollar balances, but this cannot be permitted unless some of the restrictions on imports are lifted.

INT. HARVESTER'S PLAN OPPOSED BY NLRB EXAMINER

Plant Groups Dominated, He Reports to Board.

Washington, D. C., May 6 (AP).—A labor board trial examiner recommended today that the International Harvester company, Chicago, disestablish employé representation plans at each of its six plants. He contended that the plans were "dominated by the company."

The recommendation was made by Examiner C. W. Whittemore in an intermediate report to the board, a copy of which was served on the company.

His recommendation was based on a hearing initiated by C. I. O.'s farm equipment workers organizing committee. The union alleged the company interfered with self-organization of employés.

Would Affect 6 Plants.

The report, if complied with by the company, would affect the McCormick works, Chicago; Rock Falls works, Rock Falls, Ill.; Farmall works, Rock Island, Ill.; East Moline works, East Moline, Ill.; West Pullman works, West Pullman, Ill., and the Milwaukee works, Milwaukee, Wis.

Whittemore reported that prior to the Supreme court validation of the Wagner act in April, 1937, the company maintained what was known as the Harvester industrial council plan instituted in 1919 under the direction of W. L. Mackenzie King, who is now Canadian prime minister.

The examiner said that employé representation plans drafted by King for other industrial plants previously had been held by the board to violate the Wagner act.

Dissolution Notices Sent.

Whittemore said the company sent a notice to the plan representatives at each of the six plants late in April, 1937, advising them that the plan would be dissolved. He said, however, that employés generally were not advised of the dissolution and that the plan representatives "promptly initiated and led formation" of the labor organizations now existing in the six plants.

Whittemore asserted that it was "plain that the respondent [company] has not permitted its employés their free choice of a bargaining representative at each of the six plants."

MAY ISSUE STATEMENT.

At the offices of the International Harvester company in Chicago it was said last night that the company may issue a statement within the next two or three days on the labor board examiner's recommendations.

Trees in Good Condition.

May 6, 1940.

ALL except one of the 45 trees and shrubs planted last spring in a small arboretum at the Du Page county farm are starting their second season of growth, apparently in good condition. One tree, a moss locust, died soon after it was set out.

Most of them are kinds not commonly found in this region. They include the tulip, persimmon, cucumber, rhododendron, mountain magnolia, and other southern trees and shrubs that seldom are seen this far north. These made a good start last summer, but it was feared they might be winter killed. All withstood the winter weather in fine shape, and were putting out new buds when covered with snow last week.

The arboretum is in a sheltered spot where large trees all around serve as windbreaks. The plants were watered regularly during the long drouth last fall.

A Few Forest Trees.

While most of the specimens are either small trees or shrubs, there are a few large forest trees in the collection. These include beech, cucumber, and tulip trees.

Many of the shrubs had beautiful flowers last summer. Some started blooming early in May. Others blossomed at different times thruout summer and early fall. There were blooms on the rose of Sharon until the first of October.

The gardeners consider the dwarf buckeye among the most promising of the shrubs. It bloomed in August, when few other shrubs were in flower, and the blossoms stayed on nearly a month. The ornamental crabapples had fine blooms during summer and attractive fruits of varying sizes and colors in fall.

Canadian Trees Planted.

An addition to the arboretum was planted last November with Canadian trees brought from timberlands in Ontario and Quebec. Not all of these are expected to live. Some of the evergreens, especially spruces, are in poor condition as a result of being transplanted directly from the forests without being trained in a nursery.

The gardeners find it difficult to make successful plantings of evergreen trees direct from wild specimens dug in the woods. They think evergreens should be transplanted at least three times in the nursery before being set in a permanent location. The relationship between the soil and the root system usually is disturbed too much when the trees are taken from their natural state and transplanted.

Most evergreen trees are grown in nurseries for eight or ten years, depending on the variety. During this time the roots are pruned and trained thru successive transplantings so the trees may be moved without injury. Once established in the places where they are to grow the roots gradually spread out and make a normal growth.

STOCKHOLDERS LEARN OF FIRST QUARTER GAINS

United Gas Earnings Set at 29 Cents a Share.

Reports of improved business during the first quarter were presented to stockholders of several companies yesterday at annual meetings.

John E. Zimmermann, president of the United Gas Improvement company, said in Philadelphia that altho income for all of 1940 may be some what short of the full dividend of $1, the company's cash position and earned surplus would probably permit payment of quarterly dividends of 25 cents for the rest of the year. The dividend payable June 29 has been declared.

Earns 20 Cents a Share.

First quarter operations of subsidiary companies together with other income, he said, produced earnings applicable to United Gas Improvement stock of $6,750,000, or 29 cents a share, compared with 28 cents last year.

"While electric subsidiaries like the industry in general are showing new records in output, net earnings have been diminishing or showing little growth,' Zimmerman said "This condition is largely due to continuous increases in taxes and decreasing rates."

Commenting on the disposition of regulatory bodies to bring down the rate of return, he asserted this action is largely attributable to the influence of cheap money rates that have prevailed for several years. These rates cannot be expected to continue indefinitely, he said.

Allied Stores' Sales Up.

First quarter business of Allied Stores corporation, which owns 27 companies operating 31 department stores, was ahead of a year ago, E. Earl Puckett, president, told shareholders. He estimated profits for the period at $500,000, compared with $392,000 a year ago. Headquarters of the company is in Paterson, N. J.

Net profit of Amerada corporation during the first three months approximated 58 cents a share, A. Jacobsen, president, told stockholders. Earnings for the March quarter of 1939 amounted to $319,761, or 41 cents a share. The corporation, with headquarters in New York, produces and sells crude oil and natural gas thru a subsidiary.

ZIPPERS.

I have tried unsuccessfully to get some information about the company which makes Talon zippers. Is its stock listed? Do you have anything in your files on this firm?—E. E. W.

Answer: Talon, Inc., is one of the largest domestic manufacturers of metal slide fasteners used in the clothing, leather goods, and shoe industries. The company was incorporated as the Hookless Fastener company in 1913 and adopted the present title in 1937.

Capitalization of the company consists of 976,500 shares of $5 par capital stock, which is not listed on any exchange. There is no funded debt.

The company issues no financial reports, because the stock is held privately. Dividend payments, however, were reported as follows:

1932	$0.80	1936	$2.00
1933	1.55	1937	*2.00
1934	2.10	1938	2.00
1935	1.20	1939	4.25

*Dividends for 1937 and preceding years have been adjusted to the present capitalization. In October, 1937, capital stock was split 250 shares for 1 old share and changed from no par to $5 par value.

A dividend of 60 cents a share was paid last March 14.

WATER SOFTENER.

What is the business of the Permutit company? Do you have a record of its earnings?—C. E. H.

Answer: The Permutit company makes equipment and material for water softening and filtration. Factories of the firm are situated in Brooklyn, N. Y.; Rockford, Ill.; and Birmingham, N. J. Stockholders recently approved reduction in stock from 266,311 shares to 240,000 shares by retirement of 26,311 shares owned by the company. The stock is not listed on an exchange.

	Net sales.	Net income.	Earned per share.
1937	$2,765,000	$138,113	$0.52
1938	2,390,000	155,906	0.59
1939	2,938,000	188,034	0.71

An initial dividend of 50 cents was paid on the stock in 1937 and the same amount was disbursed in 1938 and 1939.

The balance sheet of the company at the end of 1939 showed total assets of $1,777,941, of which current assets were $1,334,926. Current liabilities were $419,533.

LARGER OUTPUT HELD CURE FOR ECONOMIC ILLS

Brandt Demands Market Aid for Farmers.

Increased production was advanced yesterday by John Brandt, Minneapolis, president of the Dairy Products Marketing association, as the solution of economic problems of the farmer and the industrial worker.

The American market should be maintained "for the American farmer to the full extent of his ability to produce for this market," Brandt told a meeting of the Agricultural club of Chicago in the Hotel La Salle.

The same standards required for shipments in interstate commerce should be applied to imports, "if we are to have shorter hours and higher wages for labor in this country," he said.

Advises Segregating Surpluses.

Surpluses should be segregated for the establishment of a price level in keeping with the American standard of living, he asserted.

The purchasing power of farmers must be raised or "inflation will do the job for us," he warned. Altho agriculture may benefit temporarily thru inflation, the nation as a whole will lose, he added.

Discussing labor and labor legislation, Brandt asserted that this country cannot continue to increase the value of an hour's time and decrease production during that hour.

Asks Larger Productivity.

The solution, he declared, lies in increased productivity per man with a better wage which still means lower costs and permits lower prices. This would enable better paid consumers to buy the necessities of life and have money left to spend for other things, he said. In this manner, he said, the unemployed will be put to work.

Brandt is also president of Land O' Lakes Creameries, a consolidation of more than 500 coöperative creameries in Minnesota, Iowa, and Wisconsin.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK

Top light loins wholesaled at $15.50 a hundred pounds, compared with $19.000 ten days ago. Top hogs fell to $6.00, off 20 cents.

Lambs were mostly weak to 10 cents lower. Reductions of 10 to 25 cents were registered in beef steer prices. Trading was slow in all classes.

JAPAN'S ABILITY TO OBTAIN GOLD PUZZLES WORLD

Country Taps 'War Chest,' Experts Believe.

Washington, D. C., May 6 (AP).—A survey of Japan's financial structure after the drain of nearly three years' war in China indicates that its gold reserves have shrunk to less than $100,000,000.

Washington authorities make that estimate of Japanese-held gold, despite the fact the central bank of Japan lists its gold reserves at $164,000,000, unchanged since December, 1938.

Japan paid $200,000,000 for goods purchased in the United States during 1939, shipping $100,000,000 of gold to this country to pay for the goods. Department of commerce figures show that Japan during the first quarter of 1940 sent an additional $55,000,000 to buy American goods.

American Officials Puzzled.

American officials, who long have predicted that Japan was reaching the bottom of its gold barrel, are puzzled as to where the Japanese are getting the metal.

One explanation is that Japan long ago began hoarding gold in a secret "war chest" against any trouble with Russia and has been dipping into this fund to pay its war bill in China.

Japan's gold production amounts to only about $62,000,000 a year. The country has made feverish efforts recently to develop every possible gold-bearing property, especially on the Island of Formosa.

Japan's ability to obtain gold is considered here to be minor and decreasing. Shipping services to other nations can bring in very little foreign exchange, experts declare, because most of Japan's fleet is needed in Far Eastern waters.

Remittances from Japanese living in the United States and other foreign areas have shrunk.

Export Balances Shrink.

Export balances from trade with other countries have decreased steadily, especially since Germany's invasion of Denmark and Norway. Japan obtains no foreign exchange from its trade with China, Manchukuo, and other yen-blocked countries.

The tourist business, which formerly brought a large amount of foreign exchange, has dropped almost to the vanishing point.

Japan's need of raw materials for industrial purposes and for war makes it imperative for the country to continue purchases abroad, foreign trade authorities assert.

In view of the predicted exhaustion of gold reserves, economists here are pondering whether the Japanese will be able to devise barter transactions or some other method of obtaining required raw materials.
